

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

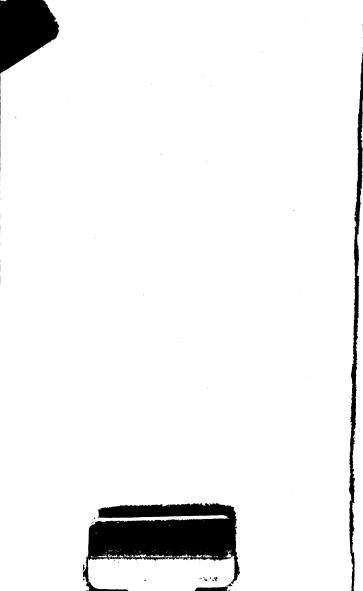

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Preface.

HE Lyra Mystica owes its origin more to accident than to design; and a few words will suffice to explain the reason of its publication.

Whilft arranging the Collections of Sacred Poetry which have been published under the titles of Lyra Eucharistica and Lyra Meffianica, by the kindness of Friends I was placed in possession of many Poems of considerable merit which, from the conditions imposed by allotted space and selected subjects, I was obliged to deny myself the gratification of publishing in those Books. The refult, however, which attended the iffue of the earlier Works led me to think that a Miscellaneous Collection of Religious Poetry, which should be written by the Contributors who fecured the popularity of the former Lyræ, and which should form at once a companion and a contrasting Volume to the Collections already published, would not be unacceptable to their Readers.

With the obliging permiffion of the Authors of the feveral Poems, this plan has been carried into effect; and the Poems to which I allude form the nucleus of the Lyra Myftica. This nucleus of Sacred Poetry, however, has been much enlarged from the original felection. Many translations have been made by Friends; original Poems have been received both from former Contributors and from other Authors; privately printed pieces have been kindly placed at my difpofal; and to thefe elements have been added, with a sparing hand, Poetry already published, chiefly by Contributors to the earlier Volumes.

The Title ' Mystica' was chosen as indicative of the mystical interpretation which has been given in many of the Poems in the following pages to the Sacred or Legendary Events, or to the doctrinal Statements of Holy Scripture, or to the other Subjects upon which the Hymns and Verses were composed.

I have not attempted to make any plan or arrangement of Subjects in the following Poems. The Hymns and Verses have been printed so as to produce as much variety in style and matter as possible. And the Collection, it is hoped, will be considered to be, as it was intended to be made, entirely miscellaneous in character and treatment.

hymns and Uerles on Sacred Subjects.

In Patale Salbatoris.

A Christmas Hymn of Adam of S. Victor.

PON the SAVIOUR'S Birthday bleft Let all who fhare this mortal ftate Send up fweet Hymns of joy and reft

To Angel-choirs subordinate,

That varying tones of many be Made one in holieft harmony.

This is a happy Day; on this The Co-eternal WORD made choice For our cold world to leave His Blifs— Let us be merry and rejoice; The True SUN lights our darkened morn, Of the meek Virgin GoD is born. That man the guilty might not die GOD a Redeemer fent below,

GOD in the Sole-Begot came nigh

To those He loved. Even so He called us back to Life's lost place Not for our merit; of His Grace.

He lived before He sought our clime,

Transcending time and space and sense; But now the Eternal dwells in time,

And now doth place confine the Immense; Our imperfections all He bore That He might all things fallen restore.

It is not sin He takes; it is

Only the form which finners wear; He comes a BABE of Holines

To earth grown old with guilt and care, Immortal to the mortal, Spirit To flefh, that flefh might Him inherit.

Thus the Eternal WORD hath lot

With Flesh in One Blest Person now,

And yet That PERSON changeth not,

Nor is made Twain. Whene'er we bow Our knees to our Incarnate LORD ONE altogether is adored.

This is a Thing Divinely great,

A Sacrament the crafty Foe

Might fearch in vain by fraud or hate, All blind this Mystery to know

Chrift in the Mildernelg.

What GOD'S Eternal WISDOM True Under the Veil of Flesh would do.

The vast Enigma is not read, By eager search it cannot be (Or subtle speech) illumined; To know the way is not for me, But I believe that GOD can make What human reason cannot take.

How deep His Counfels! how fublime Of GOD-IN-FLESH the Mystery! The Fleece is wet like grass at prime, The Rod doth blosson, all for me; What Saints of old so craved is done; The Virgin doth bring forth a SON.

Chrift in the Mildernels.

N the Camp where flares the watch-fire, In the lamp-lit street I had wandered, O my Master,

With what weary feet!

I had fate at Monarchs' tables While the red wine ran, And bright Beauty breathed her magic, A most lonely Man :

In the world's pale, restless market I had learnt to bend To the golden Idol, Money; Trampled foe and friend,

Scrambled fierce for place and riband, Cringed and fchemed and lied— Haft thou found a worthy Mafter, O fad Soul?—I cried.

Let us feek fome fimpler pleafures : There's a home I know, Lit by lanes of earlieft primrofe Where wild rofes blow.

So we dwelt 'mid jummer murmurs Of tall honied limes,

Heard across cool water-meadows Faint Cathedral chimes.

Ah! I felt a want, a longing E'en in earthly blifs,Felt a nobler impulse stir me From a young Child's kiss.

LORD, where art Thou? from my Manhood Unto Thine, I sighed :

Not an answer came, but ever Boomed Thought's sullen tide.

Thus along Life's mifty feashore, Tired of all, I strayed;

Heard Death's deep fea call me, call me, Of myfelf afraid. t

- Watched grey skies and ocean mingle; Nature kind replied-He is not where thou haft fought Him; Seek Him in the Wild. What fool praised Man's kindly Nature? Mad my Spirit (pake-Who can guide me o'er Grief's moorland, Through Care's thorny brake ? Devil's laughter rang around me, Moaned Doubt's hollow fea-Where's thy GOD? I know not any-Woe for me, for me ! Ah! a Hand fo kind and gentle Touched my wicked lips! Sorrow's sunset breathed a Bleffing On Hope's fading ships : I rose up; He went before me, Such a wondrous King : All my Soul did gladly follow Without questioning.
 - All the way grew bright beneath Him, Music stole around, Such as Angels love to whisper
 - On Heaven's holy Ground.
 - Strange and dark the rocks frowned round us, Hoarfe the torrent's cry:

Chrift in the Mildernels.

On He went; I could but follow, Half afraid to sigh.

- Darknefs fell, most weird and dreary, Sudden through the night
- I heard holy Pfalms uplifted : Then upon my fight
- Loomed a Minster's lighted windows; On He went before,
- I crept after wondering, dazzled Through the flashing Door.
- White robed Figures filent, kneeling Thronged the fapphire Nave;
- As I knelt, my Master turning One long Love-look gave.
- All my Spirit worfhipped weeping; When I raifed mine eyes
- He was standing at the Altar, And in lowly guise
- All around, like Priests, the Angels Woke a joyous song :---
- He has come, our wandering Brother, Looked for, oh, how long !
- Through the Nave and Aifles and Arches, With triumphant roll,
- Surged a deep of Heavenly Anthems, Flooding all my Soul.

Chrift in the Mildernels.

Then I faw Him in His Glory Take my tear-stained prayers, Place them in His golden Cenfer, Pass up Heaven's stairs. As He went, I heard His Bleffing-

Come to Me, My Child ! If in crowds thou find'ft no Mafter, Seek Him in the Wild.

Angel-faces came around me, Gladly on mine ear

Fell the Story of GOD's Gospel; With a reverent fear

I could see the Cavern manger, Roofs of Nazareth,

Learnt by Calvary's Wood-Altar Mysteries of Death.

I am Thine—I wept—O fave me, I will ftray no more :

Thou hast given me a Presence On the World's wild shore :

I fhall find Thee in all places, For I wear the key Which unlocks the Gate of Heaven

When I pray to Thee.

Then a Voice spake fondly, flowly— Fear thou, left thou fall!

Chrift in the Mildernels.

- Listen, when to inmost Conscience I, the Master, call !
- In the world, if thou wouldst find Me, In its wildest Wild
- Thou must seek Me, prayerful, fasting, O My Child, My Child.
- From the Camp or City hurry, Pilgrim to God's Shrine ;
- Dally not with Pleasure's whispers, Fear not! thou art Mine.
- From the Market and the Harbour Follow, follow Me :
- I will be thy gentlest Master Through Eternity.
- Then I rofe up with my fellows; All the Minster fled, Like a dream before God's morning Breaking overhead.
- O fweet Dayspring! Thy great Glory Fills this wandering breast;
- In Life's Wild I found my Master-He hath given Rest.

Speciolus Forma prae natis hominum Jelus.

A Sequence for the Transfiguration.

ESUS, Beautiful in Form above the fons of men,

On Whofe Countenance distilling

Joy Divine, through Angels thrilling, Seraphim defire to look :

Who, for us Himfelf abafing, All His Majefty effacing, King, a fervant's likenefs took :

The unapproachèd Light, to-day, Which veils His GODHEAD's Form fupernal, Doth to His Chofen ones difplay, As fhadowed forth by Light external.

Upon a lofty Mountain creft They faw His bright Transfiguration, The Mountain high above the reft Forefhown in Daniel's Revelation.

His Countenance was shining as the Sun, And as the Light His Raiment white To three alone This view Divine was shown.

10 Speciolus Forma prae natis, fc.

By flefh and blood this Vision was not won; By God in Heaven The glimpse was given, Whose awful Voice Declared the eternal Choice—

This is My Beloved Son, By all the world to be obeyed;

Now to Him be homage done, Be reverence to His Teaching paid.

Oh, how bleft, beyond all other, Witnesses of this to be :

Peter, James, and John his brother, Of the Chofen, chofen three.

Within the overshadowing Cloud The FATHER'S Voice proclaimed aloud The wondrous Mystery to which ye hearkened; That Cloud it bodes not fear to you, It sheds a gracious, Heavenly dew; With brightness glowing, not with vapours darkened.

Oh, fovereign Grace, oh, Dream of wonder, Meet reward for Sons of thunder.

The Bearer of the Keys is fleeping; But his heart is vigil keeping.

Afcend now this Mountain, And follow those three,

The Mell of Bethlehem.

From each of earth's quarters, His Glory to see :

A MAN above all men Exalted is He;

The Mountain is JESUS, Whom pure hearts shall see,

Reigning in the lofty Brightness Of the FATHER's Majesty,

Like as Moses and the Prophets Sang in constant harmony.

JESU, King of Glory, draw us after Thee. Amen.

The Mell of Bethlehem.

HERE is found of war in Judah, and over Ephrath's plain,

Though the fields are ripe for harvest, no Hebrew reaps the grain ;

- For the armies of the Heathen have come with flame and fword
- To waste the pleasant dwellings of the People of the LORD.
- In the Valley of the Giants Philiftine tents are fpread,
- And their warriors are marshalled within the House of Bread.

No Chief goes forth against them, and no Champion comes to fave ;

For Israel's Hope, an exile, is pent within a Cave.

Around him still are gathered a chosen faithful few Tried in full many a battle, and to his banner true.

- Upon the cliffs of limestone rock the autumn sunbeams beat,
- And glare upon the hunted band with all their parching heat,
- Till David, faint and thirsty, in his longing speaks to them—
- Would that I had but water from the Well of Bethlehem !
- Then up arofe three Chieftains from the places where they fate,
- To bring their Master water from the Fount beside the gate.
- They reck not of the thousand swords which fain would bar their way,
- But calm in strength and valour straight address them to the fray.
- Three men against an army vast, they have no thought of flight,
- For each against a host of men hath stood alone in fight.

Too well Philiftine widows have learnt thoje three names in woe,

Shammah, and Eleazar, and the peerless Adino.

- Those mighty men have broken through all that opposing ring,
- And have borne the cooling water in triumph to their King.
- But David hath the Chalice out before JEHOVAH poured,
- Saying—This is blood, not water, I may not drink it, LORD!
- O Type of future story ! O most deep and mystic fign
- Of the longing of the Nations for Him of David's line !
- There is found of war in all lands, and through its cruel bane,
- Though the Souls are ripe for harvest, no reaper stores the grain;
- For the hosts of evil Spirits make war with flame and sword
- Against the Gentile watchers who are waiting for the LORD.
- Afar in every Country their countless legions spread,
- To turn the poor and hungry from the bleffed House of Bread.

- And the fcorching rays of forrow on mourners ever beat,
- No Rock is in the weary lands to shadow from the heat.
- There is nothing to bring cooling, and naught may comfort them
- Save the Well of Living Water that fprings in Bethlehem.
- But Three go forth to seek that Fount, in faith and valour strong,
- Three who reck not of hindrances, nor of that travail long;
- They go o'er hills and deferts with the guiding Star before,
- Wife Caspar, true Baltasar, and the faithful Melchior.
- In vain the hofts of Satan would befet their wandering,
- For the mighty Men break through them to reach their new-born King.
- They haste in eager worship to that long-expected sight,
- To the Well of Life whofe Glory gives all believers Light,
- To the Chief Who comes to vanquish, the Champion strong to save,

ŗ

- To Ifrael's Hope, an INFANT, now laid within a Cave.
- And where the BABE is cradled, Whom the Three in awe behold,
- They lay their three rich Offerings, Myrrh, Frankincense and Gold.
- Then they turn them back in triumph once more afar to roam,
- Till they bear those Living Waters to thirsting hearts at home.
- And that Chalice of Thy Paffion, unto the FATHER poured,
- Although It is Blood, not water, yet we may drink It, LORD!
- O Pledge of future Glory! O most deep and mystic Sign
- Of the Healing of the Nations by Him of David's line!

HOU Spotless LAMB of GOD,

Bathed in Thine own dear Blood,

That flows to wash the world's deep guilt away,

Who on the stubborn Tree Dost seem to call to me,

16 hymn to Chrift Crucified.

With Arms outstretched, to find the Grace I pray; Ere yet life's flow decay Makes pale the lustre bright Of that celestial Face, And Death's cold fingers trace

- Their darkening shadows o'er those Orbs of light, O let one glance be thrown
- From Thy meek Eyes on me, to mark me for Thine Own.

Now when Thy Love profound Hath reached its utmost bound,

- Nor mortal veil fuch Might may more confine; While on the painful Rood, With fharpeft anguish bowed,
- Thy thorn-crowned Head Thou dost to earth incline, With Mercy's glance Divine

Thy Mother's gaze to meet;

And Thy majestic Prayer

E'en rebel Souls would spare,

Sent upward to Thy FATHER's Glory-feat; O let Thy Pardon free

Prevail for fins like mine. Now, LORD, remember me !

Now while Thy fuffering Hands Thy bounteous Grace expands, As though in dying still outstretched to give; And as in balance weighed, The full account is paid, Whereby poor slaves redeemed from bondage live;

Thy captive, LORD, receive; While every vital pore, With flowing Mercy rife, Bursts out, and parting life Drains from Thy Heart Love's ne'er-exhaufted ftore : Fain would I first be there, My loss, All-righteous SAVIOUR, earliest to repair. Thy Bedefman, LORD, behold, In thraldom dark and cold Long laid, entangled long in Error's chain : Yet Hope, o'ermastering Fear, Still prompts, that Thou wilt hear, My Advocate will not my prayer difdain : Since Mercy's higheft strain Decrees, that pardon free E'en there should most abound Where deepest guilt is found; And when the darkest stain is cleansed by Thee, Thy Blood with richeft coft Is lavished, and Thy Godlike Love rejoiceth most, What though with guilty load My drooping neck is bowed, And my fad Spirit faints with toil and care, Because my rebel pride Caft Thy mild Yoke aside, Doomed, justly doomed, a tyrant's bonds to bear : What though I might despair With weary steps and slow С

Hymn to Chrift Crucified.

To reach Thee, Thou art nigh, And never more wilt fly; Those royal Feet transfixed Thy Purpose show; Fixed on the firm-set Tree In patient grief they tell how Mercy waits for me. I know it, O my GoD: As in a quiet road My good defires may here at anchor ride; That Heart, in open fign Of pitying Love Divine, Seen through the lattice of Thy wounded Side, Hath all my need supplied : That to the dying Thief Gave comfort; one brief word He spake, and he was heard : E'en as a glad surprise the prayed relief Thy Answer gave; the night Of darkness left his Soul in dawn of Life and Light. I come in happy hour To feel Thy Grace's power, Now, when with Charter new, embracing all, Thy Gifts Thou dost prepare For all who feek to share : Now, when to Thy fad Mother, bowed in thrall, Thy fovereign Voice doth call And bids her find a Son. Bids John a Mother find, The Thief of contrite mind To look for promised Joy-shall I alone

Hymn to Chrift Crucified. 19

Still pine for Grace denied? No, LORD, each empty Soul with Thee is fatisfied.

Behold me, LORD, a Son In error's path undone, My portion loft, did Justice speak my doom : But Thy good Word hath faid. That Mercy's mildest aid Turns, stays, and guides repentant wanderers home. I come, Dear LORD, I come To kiss Thy fainted Feet, As on a rack, out pread On Thy hard dying bed; For here my forrowing voice Thy Grace shall meet, And Grace to Sons forgiven Here speaks-O lost and found, thy portion rests in Heaven. For token of that Grace To all who feek Thy Face, E'en now Thy Head in death Thou doft incline : I know that I have won Of Thee that priceless Boon, The earnest of my hope, in that dear Sign. O Majesty Divine, O Love of truth fo pure, Thy Bounty to bequeath, That the Testator's death Must pass to make the gift of Bleffing fure ! O Mercy great and high, That to confirm the bond e'en Mercy's LORD must die !

20 The Communion of the Saints.

My Song, we here must stay : Such theme to honour best

Not words, but flowing tears, should speak the reft : Sad filent musings chase loud fongs away :

Our notes we cannot keep,

When Earth is hushed, and Sun and Heaven in darkness weep!

The Communion of the Saints.

EAVEN is no world of felf-fufficing Blifs;

> Love is its radiance, Love its atmofphere,

And Love the last and least-beloved doth miss And counts each Soul, Love's Blood was poured for, dear.

Did not our gracious Master tell us this,

That Joy's vast thrill sweeps through Heaven's splendour clear

When one poor finner turns that he may live, And fhall not Heaven bewail one fugitive?

Think ye, each Saint who loved his brethren so

He felt their forrows his, loves less above? Does joy make hearts less tender? Surely, no.

Heaven is the dwelling-place of deathlefs Love. But your faint hearts, unconfcious of that glow,

Paint a false blis : myself do I reprove

Who shared your doubts; but Faith its world of light

And facred lovelinefs unbares to fight.

- The Virgin Mother, higheft raifed of all, Who at her heart earth's Wondrous SAVIOUR bore,
- Whofe meek affent retrieved Eve's primal fall, Can she forget her brethren evermore?

That tender heart of pity rests the thrall; She cannot cease to love on that bright shore: And JESUS' Foster-stather mourns with her

The fouls that mock, the loveles hearts that err.

And all that glorious Hoft no tongue can count, Apoftles, Prophets, Martyrs, swell their moan.

Within each Soul still springs compassion's fount :

Should human griefs and cares remain unknown? Number the funs; then weigh the vast amount

Of mortal woes! That can the Bleft alone. With tender yearning prayers for aye they feek To blefs the lovelefs and to cheer the weak.

And you, fweet Friends, who here partook our cares,

Have you forgotten and forsaken quite?

Nay, HE Who Shared the heart's fond yearning, Shares

Its tenderness and weakness infinite;

For weakness, strong in faith, is rich in prayers, And must be weak, while wrong contends with right.

HE would not drain the care-benumbing gall; Love, in the Highest, can be grieved by all.

He, on Heaven's Throne, their LORD and ours, Whofe Heart

Blends every Love, all human griefs in one !

- O, that this world could know Thee as Thou art, Undying LORD, the All-loving FATHER'S SON,
- Yet ours, our Friend, our Own, Who mak'st Thy part

To fue for ever hearts that fcorn and fhun : Thou canft forget not—how fhould Thine forget ? Love pays, for ever pays Love's boundlefs debt.

O Thou, the SPIRIT of Light and Wisdom, pour Thy quickening rays into these hearts of ours,

That they may brim with grateful ardours o'er !

- O, earth's bare fwamps shall yet be thronged with flowers.
- Could we but know, we furely must adore; Where sunshine streams, in vain the twilight cowers.

Come Light! come Faith! 'our colder felf destroy! We only ask to love, and Love, we know, is Joy.

Eucharistical.

HE evening shadows thickly fall O'er grassy slope and guarded wall, Till darkness folds them in her pall.

But still, while darkness creeps around, Linger the lights on holy ground, On Zion's mountain, Temple crowned.

Like a rich garment's golden hem, Or jewels in a diadem, So gleam thy towers, Jerufalem.

And still the fading lights creep higher, Till fretted roof and golden spire Stand up, like lances tipped with fire.

And then the fleeting glories fly, Maffive and dark the towers lie, Purple against a crimson sky:

While up and down, and round about, As fireflies Eastern darkness flout, The glimmering hearth-lights twinkle out,

And through the gathering darkness, yet Gleam the white Tents, in order set Adown the slopes of Olivet,

And ever from the bufy street Rife the quick founds of pattering feet, Where friends with friends in gladness greet.

Eucharistical.

For of the Jewish nation all, Obedient to their Prophet's call, Are met for their high Festival.

But He, to Whom the Feast was due, Sate fadly with the chosen few, Among the faithless only true,

As friends who meet, and meeting know That they must part, yet, lingering slow, Would eat and drink before they go.

He fate within the Upper Room, And told them of His coming Doom Amid the evening's gathering gloom.

He told them of His Foemen's fpite, And of His yielding to their might— Then one went out, and it was night.

He bleffed the Cup, He brake the Bread, And, 'This My BLOOD' for finners fhed, And, 'This My BODY,' fo He faid.

Then out into the darkening air-And then, the Agony of Prayer, One holy Angel knoweth where-

Till, underneath the Olive shade The hurrying torches gleaming played, And by His Own He was betrayed—

Euchariftical.

And then, the fcornful, cruel eyes, The Crofs, the Scourge, the bitter cries, The All-fufficient Sacrifice.

O Heavenly Food, O Living Bread, Whereon of old Thy People fed, Wherewith Thy Church is nourifhed !

O Bleffed Wine, by Thee outpoured When Thou wert prefent at the Board, Then for Thy Church in mercy ftored!

O bleffed Prefence, wherewith Thou Doft feed Thy Church in mercy now, While Saints and Angels reverend bow;

They who their glittering wings unfold, And they who still Thy Face behold Amid the flashing lamps of gold.

Silent they stand, those Words to hear, And Heaven is filled with holy fear, While fallen men on earth draw near ;

They draw their wings before their face, And filent for a little fpace Ádore The Mystery of Grace;

Adoring, while the Church they fee, Which fin had made in twain to be, In Heaven and earth made One in Thee;

Euchariftical.

Then from their golden harps again Peals forth the Church's rapturous strain, 'Worthy the LAMB that once was slain.'

O broken Flesh, O Blood outpoured, By man and Angels both adored, O Holy, Holy, Holy LORD,

Grant us to know with faithful eye, As Saints and Angels know on high, Thy Prefence in Thy Mystery,

With John's deep love to Thee to cling, Peter's warm faith to Thee to bring, With Mary's tender forrowing;

Then, by the Sufferings keen and fore Which once that broken Body bore, Draw near, and filently adore :

There, by our cares and troubles preft, There lean on Thee, and leaning, reft, As One that night, upon Thy Breaft;

Caft at Thy Feet our guilty fears, The load of all our fin-ftained years, And wash them, as that Saint, with tears;

Till all its strength Thy Love displays, And troubled hearts Thy Comforts raise, And mourners join in songs of praise,

"Why should my LORD delight In me? Behold how fair His Garden is ! How bright His Rofes blowing there; His Lilies all like Queens that know not toil nor care, " In white calm peace on high Each rears a bloffomed rod; The Gentian low doth lie. Yet lifts from up the fod An eye of steadfast blue that looks up straight to GOD. " I wait my LORD to greet, I can but love and figh; I watch His Eye to meet, He can but pass me by; And if His hafty Feet Should crush me, it were sweet Beneath His Feet to die." My Love, my LORD, has gone Down to His Garden fair, To tell o'er His Roses, one by one, And to gather Lilies there; Now will I rife and fing A Song which I have made Unto my LORD the King; Nor will I be afraid To ask Him of His Flowers that spring in funshine and in shade.

Soul-Bardening.

" Oh, what are these Roses bright, That in Thy Garland blow? These Roses red as blood, These Roses white as snow?" " Thefe blood-red Rofes grew On a field with battle dyed; These snow-white Roses strew A path that is not wide; None feek that path but they who feek Him Who was crucified !" " Oh, what are these Lilies tipped With fire, that (word-like gleam ? Oh, what are thefe Lilies dipped As in the pale moon-beam, That quiver with unsteadfast light and shine as through a dream?" " These fiery Spirits passed From earth through fword and flame: These quiet Souls at last Through patience overcame: These shine like stars on high, and these Have left no trace nor name; I bind them in one Wreath because their triumph was the fame." OTHING now is left to do, All the labour is gone through, CHRIST hath bought us with His Blood, Proved the work, and found it good, Sealed, and writ with iron pen,

The unutterable Amen.

Look not for the fiery car Borne above the winds afar, Where the Angel-horfes beat Golden air with flying feet, Flaming by a path untrod In among the ftars of GoD.

He returneth to His Rest, Back into the FATHER'S Breast.

Only by a chosen few Who believe His Promise true, Eat His Bread, and drink His Cup, He is seen as He goes up, Till the cloud, that waiting lies, Veils Him from their yearning eyes.

On the pure lips, ere He paffed, Words of Bleffing were the laft. His receding Hands, outfpread, Pour Redemption on their head. But the cloud comes in between, And the Form is no more feen.

Spake befide them, in their fight, Two Men robed in fhining white— Why in wonder thus do ye Gaze, O Men of Galilee? Hence! nor from the Work refrain Till your CHRIST fhall come again.

Then into the world they fare, And His Love goes with them there; To life's daily tasks they turn, And His secret Presence learn; While they do His gracious Will All is good and nothing ill.

Comes a Day when on the earth The new Kingdom fhall have birth, And with many a wondrous Sign Judah fhall arife and fhine; But the feason and the hour, These are in the FATHER's Power.

Now let us new comfort draw From the Vision which they saw, And ourselves example take From the word those Angels spake, Nor from the good work refrain Till our CHRIST shall come again.

And if here, in light fo dim, Toil itfelf is fweet for Him, If, when under clouds we go, From the Crofs true pleafures flow, What if ever we fhould ftand, Crowned in the Celeftial Land, With the Saints at GOD's Right Hand !

My Fellow-pilgrims pass me, and attain That hidden Mansion of perpetual Peace Where keen desire and hoped well free from pain:

34 After this the Judgment.

That Gate stands open of perennial ease; I view the Glory till I partly long, Yet lack the fire of love which quickens these. O paffing Angel, speed me with a fong, A melody of Heaven to reach my heart And roufe me to the race and make me ftrong; Till in such music I take up my part. Swelling those Alleluias full of reft, One, tenfold, hundredfold, with Heavenly art, Fulfilling north and fouth and east and west, Thousand, ten thousandfold, innumerable, All blent in one yet each one manifest; Each one distinguished and beloved as well As if no fecond voice in earth or Heaven Were lifted up the Love of GOD to tell. Ah, Love of GOD, which Thine own Self hast given To me most poor, and made me rich in love, Love that dost pass the tenfold seven times seven, Draw Thou mine eyes, draw Thou my heart above, My treasure and my heart store Thou in Thee, Brood over me with yearnings of a dove; Be Husband, Brother, closest Friend to me; Love me as very mother loves her fon, Her sucking firstborn, fondled on her knee: Yea, more than mother loves her little one; For earthly even a mother may forget, And feel no pity for its piteous moan;

How shall I then stand up before Thy Face, When from Thine Eyes repentance shall be hid And utmost Justice stand in Mercy's place : When every fin I thought, or spoke, or did, Shall meet me at the inexorable Bar, And there be no man standing in the mid To plead for me; while star fallen after star With Heaven and earth are like a ripened shock, And all time's mighty works and wonders are Confumed as in a moment; when no rock Remains to fall on me, no tree to hide, But I stand all creation's gazing-stock, Exposed and comfortless on every side, Placed trembling in the final balances Whofe poise this hour, this moment, must be tried ? Ah, Love of GOD, if greater Love than this Hath no man, that a MAN die for His Friend, And if fuch Love of Love Thine own Love is, Plead with Thyfelf, with me, before the end; Redeem me from the irrevocable past; Pitch Thou Thy Presence round me to defend ; Yea, seek with pierced Feet, yea, hold me fast With pierced Hands-Whofe Wounds were made by Love;

The Hymn of Aurelius Prudentius Clemens,

On the Eighth Day before the Kalends of January, (Christmas Day.)

HEREFORE doth the circling Sun Cease the downward course to run? Is it that the CHRIST is born, Lengthening out the path of morn?

Aurelius Prudentius Clemens.

Ah, how fwift the hurrying day Seemed of late to fleet away! Almost might the torch appear Quenched, of the declining year!

Now the Heaven in livelier glow Flames o'er gladdening Earth below; Mounting now the daybeam shines Gradual on the former lines.

Spring to light, All-lovely CHILD! Spring from Mother undefiled, Maid from fpoufal contact free, Bearing GOD and MAN in Thee.

WORD of GOD! though Thou be fprung, Uttered by the FATHER's Tongue, Yet in the Paternal Breaft WISDOM found an earliest rest;

She did heaven and earth ordain, Night and day, and all their train; At the Word their paths they trod, Duteous—for the WORD was GOD.

But, the world's foundation laid, All things in due order made, He Who wrought them all at will In His Father's Bofom ftill

For the tribes of lost mankind, Vanity-adoring, blind, Worshipped as their gods alone Senseless brass, and wood, and stone.

While they thus unfaithful strayed, They the Spoiler's prey were made, Prone their slavish life to steep, Hopeless, in the flery deep.

But the CHRIST would not that all Nations from His Realm should fall, Left the glorious Structure wrought By His FATHER come to nought.

He affumed a mortal Frame, That, arifing with the fame, He might rend Death's iron ban, To His FATHER bear a MAN.

This is that great natal Day, When amid the quickening clay Warm the Informing Spirit stirred, Breathing into Flesh the WORD.

Feel'st thou not, imperial Maid, All thy forrows overpaid, All thy Maidenhood's pure bliss Overblest by Birth like This?

Aurelius Prudentius Clemens.

O what mighty Joys shall come From that chaste and holy Womb, Whence the new-born ages bright Forth proceed in golden light!

At that wondrous Infant-cry Spring o'erspreads the wintry sky; From her gloomy trance Thy Birth Wakens up regenerate earth.

Well I ween that gracious morn Saw unnumbered flowers new-born; E'en parched Afric's fandy shore Fragrant nard and nectar bore.

All things barbarous, hard, and wild, Felt Thy Birth, Celestial CHILD! O'er her breast the dry rock drew Flowery veil of vernal hue:

Honey from the cliff wells down : Spicy gums the hard oak crown : Mid the fere and barren fields Odorous balm the tamarifk yields.

O thrice holy humble ftall, Cradle of the King of all, Ever to His Saints endeared, By the fpeechlefs race revered !

The Two Covenants : an Allegory.

RISE ! ye Children chofen of the LORD, And haften for your life ; Nor tarry in the land of GOD abhorred, Where all His Plagues are rife ;

Nor fondly gaze upon the accurfèd fpot ; Death lurks in Egypt's pleafures—touch them not.

- But first with Sacred BLOOD be ye baptized, That in this awful night
 - The dread Deftroyer, by that Sign apprized, May heed the holy fight :
 - Behold the LAMB! from the world's morning flain,
 - Make you His Pains your peace, His Grief your gain.
 - Aye, mark Him on your homes, your household ways,

Him always, First and Last,

Who by His Love can fuch deliverance raife Till the death-stroke be past :

Then sheltered by that Love draw near, and take Of the mysterious Feast such Love can make.

The bitter taste of penitential woe

Only the favour fweet Of meek obedience, and of conftant will That GOD in them His Purpofe should fulfil.

And then, will shoe-clad feet and staff in hand, Stand ready for the flight

From dying Egypt to the living Land Of freedom and of light;

And while ye safely pass o'er sea and plain, A much observed night let this remain.

Still are ye faring through life's middle space, The space of forty years?

Is the world's wilderness a dreary place Of perils and of fears?

Seems it a long way to the end of life,

A weary journey, and a ceaseles strife?

Children no more—but Chofen People still! God's Cloud is safest forrow:

His Banquet lies outspread; take now your fill, And trust Him for to-morrow:

The Two Covenants.

Ye wift not what It is; but It is fent To ftay your famished Souls : be ye content. O Marvel ever fweet, and ever new ! To rife up morn by morn, To wander forth, a Flock forlorn and few, Toil-stained and travel-worn : To find the Wealth of Heaven on this bare earth, And Canaan's plenty 'mid the desert's dearth. What though the wondrous Thing should melt away Upon the fcorching wafte-Have ye not stored a Bleffing for to-day Whofe joy ye still can taste? All purest Pleasures that your Souls can need Gathered in one-'tis Angels' Food indeed. GOD's Measure is-Enough : enough of toil, Enough of rest and calm, Enough of this world's care and fret and foil, Enough of His world's Balm : E'en of Himself enough, in joy and woe, Till Him in all His Fulness ye shall know. O weary Pilgrims! nearly Home at last, Close upon Jordan's shore, What are your troubles now that they are paft? What are your joys in store?. Only keep closer yet beneath His Hand, Who brings you to the borders of His Land.

46 The Two Covenants.

Do ye look back upon the far-off days When firft ye knew the LORD? And went afide from Egypt's evil ways Unto His Paſchal Board; And gained a Guardian through the dangerous time Of morning's early fluſh and golden prime? Or think ye on the troublous wilderneſs, Its pitfalls and its ſnares; Your faithleſs fears, your cries of deep diſtreſs, Your ſorrows and your cares; And how the priceleſs Manna GoD-beſtowed Lay, ' Meat enough,' along your Heavenward road?

Still to the last must your faint Souls be fed, GOD still prepares a Feast;

Upon His Altar lies the Holy Bread, The portion of the Priest-

Yea, and of those who, priestlike, stand and wait Absolved, cleansed, pure, within the gate.

GOD, Who through life hath fed you to this day, Defend you to the end;

His living Bread be still your Staff and Stay; His Angel still your Friend;

Till daylight fades, and hues of evening fall, Till shadows cease, and GOD is All in All.

Persecution.

HERE was filence in the Heavens When the Son of MAN was led From the Garden to the Judgment ;

Sudden silence, strange, and dread !

All along the empyreal coafts On their knees the immortal Hofts Watched, with fad and wondering eyes, That tremendous Sacrifice.

There was silence in the Heavens When the Priest his garment tore; Silence when the Twain accursed

Their falfe witnefs faintly bore : Silence (though a tremor crept O'er their ranks) the Angels kept While that Judge, difmayed though proud, Wafhed his hands before the crowd.

But when CHRIST His Crofs was bearing, Fainting oft, by flow degrees, Then went forth the Angelic thunder

Of Legions rifing from their knees : Each bright Spirit grafped a brand ; And Lightning flafhed from band to band : An inftant more had launched them forth Avenging terrors to the earth.

Stanzag.

Then from GOD there fell a Glory Round and o'er that multitude; And by every fervent Angel

With hushing hand Another stood : Another, never seen before, Stood one moment and no more— "Peace! Brethren, peace! to us is given Suffering. Vengeance is for Heaven!"

Law and Grace.

T is not true that unto us, enrolled Within CHRIST'S Band, the Law exifts no longer :

But this is true, that we, who fank of old

Oppressed beneath that armour's weight of gold,

Sustain it now in glory, being stronger !

The Form remains : but is a form no more To eyes infpired, that fee Through bondage Liberty,

And in His earthly Shape their GOD adore. To Love, all things are Love : To Grace, all things are Grace : And humble Faith can never move In an unholy place !

Within, but not beneath the Law we dwell: That wall, of old our prison's circuit, now, Girding the citied mountain's sovereign brow, Is but the bulwark of man's citadel:

Prayer of Hildebert.

Large views beyond are given; Safe views of all the earth, and healing airs of Heaven.

Within the Temple of the Law we stand, As once without it stood That awe-struck multitude; And on the marble Tables lay our hand: There, like the Priest of old, our GOD we meet, And stand up boldly by the Mercy-Seat.

Prayer of Hildebert to the Holy Trinity.

To the Everlasting Father.

IRST and Laft of faith's receiving, Source and Sea of man's believing, GOD, Whofe Might is all-potential, GOD, Whofe Truth is Truth's effential,

Good fupreme in Thy Subfifting, Good in all Thy feen Exifting; Over all things, all things under, Touching all, from all afunder; Centre Thou, but not intruded, Compaffing, and yet included; Over all, and not afcending, Under all, but not depending; Over all, the world ordaining, Under all, the world fuftaining;

Prayer of Hildebert.

All without, in all furrounding, All within, in Grace abounding; Inmost, yet not comprehended, Outer still, and not extended ; Over, yet on nothing founded, Under, but by space unbounded ; Omnipresent, yet in-dwelling, Self-impelled, the world impelling; Force, nor Fate's predestination Sways Thee to one alteration ; Ours to-day, Thyself for ever, Still commencing, ending never; Past with Thee is time's beginning, Present all its future winning ; With Thy Counfel's first ordaining Comes Thy Counfel's last attaining; One the Light's first radiance darting And the Elements' departing.

To the Eternal Son.

EXT in Revelation's fequel, Co-eternal SON, Co-equal, FATHER'S Light, and FATHER'S Feature, All-creating, yet a Creature, With our flesh Thyself enduing, All our righteoussels ensuing; With immortal Glory shining, Yet to death and time declining; MAN and GOD united ever. GOD in MAN confounded never. Not Thyfelf to flefh converting, All the GODHEAD still afferting; All the GOD to MANHOOD taking, Yet the MANHOOD not forfaking; One with GOD by conformation. Less than GOD by Incarnation; Man in substance of Thy Mother, Yet than GOD Thyfelf no other. Thus two Natures' wondrous union Stands in unimpaired communion ; What He was ere worlds were dated, That He was on earth created ; He our only Mediator, None but He our Legislator; Born for us, and circumcised, Dead, and buried, and baptized; Fell on sleep, to Hell descending, Rofe again to Life unending; Thence to Judgment comes to call men Who Himself was judged for all men.

To the Holy Spirit.

OD, of Glory unabated, Not begotten, nor created, SPIRIT, SON nor FATHER neither, Yet proceedest Thou from either,

đ,

Praper of Hildebert.

From no Heavenly source exterior, With no Quality inferior, From Eternity no lower, Substance, Majesty, or Power.

One the First-begotten's Glory, One the HOLY GHOST'S Proceffion-Three, but One to Faith's confession. Each Himself is GOD alonely, Yet not Three, but One GOD only. In this Oneness, worshipped truly, Three in One I worship duly; In their Persons ever Three, In their Substance Unity; None of Whom is less than Other, None is greater than Another : In each One no variation. Into each no transmutation; Each is GOD, and yet no blending, Everlasting, without ending.

TRONGHOLD fafe of Judah's Lion, 🐼 Take, O take me to thee, Sion ! Light's own GOD thy light's renewing, From the Crofs thy lintels hewing ; Living gems thy walls' foundation, Praise thy gates, thy streets Salvation. In that City funshine vernal Dwells for ever, Peace eternal;

The Ullion of the Blory.

There no taint of fin remaining, No defect and no complaining ; Stunted none and none unfightly, All conformed to JESUS brightly. City of time-fainted Sages Built upon the rock of ages, O'er the stormy world's commotions To Thee all my Soul's devotions Waft I, for thy Love expiring, Peaceful Rest and Joys untiring. Feasts how bright thy Saints are keeping, Without mixture, without weeping; Heart to heart what love entwining; With what stones the city shining, Jacinth or Chalcedon be it. They shall know who live to see it.

The Uluon of the Blory.

For the Feast of the Transfiguration, August 6.

RIGHT upon the vested Altar, partners of the early morn,

Flame the Tapers in the stillness of the rosy August dawn;

- Twin in number, twin in nature, earthly matter fhining bright
- With the flame which, uncommingled, sheds the radiance of its light,

- Uncontained, yet close united-undivided each, yet whole,
- As the human flesh is wedded with the reasonable Soul :
- While behind, diftinct, mysterious, casting.shadow from above,
- Spreads the Crofs its arms of Mercy and of allembracing Love.

* * * *

- Light of Light, from Heaven defcending to thy earthly Altar-throne,
- Lo! we call Thee, we receive Thee: Master, come unto Thine Own;
- For on Tabor shone the GODHEAD through its Fleshly Veil to-day,
- And the darkness comprehends Thee, and the Shadows flee away.
- On the Mount, the mists dispersing, cleared the Vision for a space,
- And weak man beheld the GODHEAD, unforbidden, Face to face ;
- Saw the Lowly MANHOOD kindle with a Glory not its Own,
- As the GODHEAD, Uncreated, from its Human Vefture shone;

- Saw Him there, but not in terror, as in olden time He came
- In the blackness and the tempest and the mountain wrapt in flame;
- Saw the covenanted meeting of the Old World and the New,
- Every Word confirmed and witneffed in the mouth of Three and Two;
- Saw the Two of all the Old World, of the New World faw the Three,
- Law and Prophets, chief Apostle, and the Sons of Zebedee.
- Sounds the Voice through all the ages—Man has finned, and Man must die;
- GOD has spoken in His Justice—Can the GOD of Justice lie?
- Love takes up the Challenge, pleading-GOD is Love, and GOD has won
- Pardon through the Blood-atoning of the Wellbeloved Son.
- GOD is Judge, and GOD the Ranfom: Heaven and earth in one rejoice;
- Hushed the earthquake; past the tempest; present is the still small Voice.

Bright upon the vested Altar burns the Tapers' steady light,

56 The Alfaon of the Blory.

- For the Day-ftar has arijen through the shadows of the night,
- And they show in type and figure what the eye of faith may see
- By the light of Tabor Mountain in an awful Mystery:
- In that Cloud we fear to enter : it is full of light within,

For the LAMB there kindles brightly the Burnt-Sacrifice for fin :

And we tremble as we worfhip; for, behold! in lowly guife,

Under Form of earthly Substance, lies the bloodlefs Sacrifice ;

- And the Soul flies back in memory to the Manger in the stall
- Where in Form of earthly Substance lay the GOD and LORD of all :
- GOD and MAN He willed for our fakes in One PERSON to combine ;
- GOD and MAN He comes for our Jakes under Form of Bread and Wine,
- That His Pure and Sinless MANHOOD, raifed from death, no more to die,
- May appeal from earth to Heaven at the Throne of GOD on high.

- Therefore on the vested Altar burns the Tapers' steady flame,
- Setting forth the Two-fold Natures wherewith CHRIST the SAVIOUR came,
- Setting forth the Heavenly Substance which the faithful Soul intent
- Must discern beneath the Substance of the fearful Sacrament;
- That the fainting may gain vigour, and the fickly be made whole,
- If the hem of that bright Garment do but touch upon the Soul.

The Life of Chrift.

From the Latin.

N Wifdom, GOD the LORD, Who by His potent Word The Univerfe controls, Beheld us as we lay

To guilt and grief a prey, And pitied our loft Souls. From His high Throne above The FATHER fent in Love His Meffenger to earth, That all things might be done As promifed to the SON Before His wondrous Birth. Soon as the Angel fpoke The Virgin's joy awoke— Hail! favoured One, for thou (Said he) fhalt bear a Son, Both GoD and MAN in One, To Whom fhall all things bow. Nor was it long delayed Before that Mother-Maid Embraced her Holy CHILD, The Light of faithful men Cheering the world again With Virtue undefiled.

The Eternal SON of GOD was born A MAN, on that illustrious morn; He Whom the boundless Heavens obey Then in the lowly Manger lay, And then awoke the exultant Hymn From raptured choirs of Cherubim. No proud ones faw the glorious light That burst upon the Shepherds' sight, But, Jesse's Rod in bloom, behold With Myrrh and Frankincense and Gold, Fit Gifts, the Magi come from far, Led on by Bethlehem's Herald-star!

Born for men, He was indeed Circumcifed as Abraham's feed; Him His Mother gladly brings With the appointed offerings; Simeon takes Him in his arms, Spared to fee the SAVIOUR'S Charms,

The Life of Chrift.

Who ere long in Jordan's river, In a glorious Mystery, Washed away our sins for ever, If repentant we shall be, If in the Baptismal wave We shall own His Power to fave. Soon followed Acts of glorious Fame-See wine from water flowing; Eyes for the blind, feet for the lame, Tongues for the dumb are growing : The deaf find ears ; difeafes fly ; The very dead show motion; The Devils shun His piercing Eye; He calms the storm-tossed ocean : Five thousand feast on what He gives, Five loaves and two small fishes; Blood is staunched; and the poor child lives, As faith maternal wishes. Now, as Holy Scripture reads, On the Crofs our Shepherd bleeds, Yielding up His precious Breath; Spotless LAMB of GOD, He lies Dying as our Sacrifice, Winning victory over death ! Dawns at length the appointed day; Hell flies open; Death gives way; Christians see their Risen LORD : Oh, the triumphs of that hour ! Miracles of faving Power Wait upon His gracious Word.

Having thus subdued His Foes, Up to Heaven the SAVIOUR role, Glory of our ranfomed nature : All Dominion is His own. One with GOD upon the Throne, LORD and King of every creature. Gift of His transcendent Merit, Soon came down the Promised SPIRIT, Fount of living Confolation, Fitting chosen men for teaching, With new tongues and power of preaching Truth and Love to every nation. Ye Saints, with faithful (pirit fing New fongs to your exalted King : The shades of night are melting fast, And morning light will come at last-Raise your joyous eyes To the glowing skies; For He comes to bles With more than primal happines.

Thy Daughter is dead, trouble not the Malter.

EAD is thy Daughter, trouble not the Master—

Thus in the Ruler's ear his fervants fpake, While tremblingly he urged the SAVIOUR faster Up the green slope from that white margined Lake.

The foft wave weltered, and the breeze came sighing Out of the oleander thickets red;

He only heard a breath that gasped in dying, Or ' Trouble not the Master-She is dead.'

Trouble Him not. Ah! are these words beseeming The desolation of that awful day,

When love's vain fancies, hope's delusive dreaming Are over—and the life has fled for aye?

We need Him most when the dear eyes are closing, When on the cheek the shadow lieth strong, When the soft lines are set in that reposing That never Mother cradled with a song.

Then most we need the gentle Human Feeling That throbs with all our forrows and our fears, And that great Love Divine its light revealing In short bright flashes through a mist of tears.

Then most we need the Voice that while it weepeth Yet hath a solemn undertone that saith-

Weep not, thy darling is not dead, but fleepeth; Only believe, for I have conquered death.

Then most we need the thoughts of Refurrection, Not the life here, 'mid pain, and sin, and woe, But ever in the fulness of Perfection,

To walk with Him in robes as white as fnow.

62 Thy Daughter is dead.

When in our nurfery garden fails a bloffom, And as we kifs the hand and fold the feet, We cannot fee the lamb in Abraham's bofom, Nor hear the footfall in the golden ftreet.

When all is filent—neither moan nor cheering, The hufh of hope, the end of all our cares— All but that harp above, beyond our hearing, Then moft we need to trouble Him with prayers.

Did He not enter in when that cold Sleeper Lay still, with pulseles heart and leaden eyes, Put calmly forth each loud tumultuous weeper, And take her by the hand and bid her rife?

Come to us, SAVIOUR! in our lone dejection, Speak calmly to our wild and paffionate grief, Bring us the hopes and thoughts of Refurrection, Bring us the comfort of a true Belief.

Come! with that Human Voice that breaks in weeping,

Come ! with that awful Tenderness Divine, Come ! tell us that they are not dead but sleeping, But gone before to Thee, for they are Thine.

The Shadow and the Substance.

AMARIA proud and glorious, Rival City of GOD, Thou standest still victorious, Free from the Syrian's rod.

The horfe and rider charge in vain, They hear a Phantom-fhout; A mighty army on the plain Flies, routed without rout.

The Spear-man flerceft in affault Flings fpear and fhield away, And flees, as one fears to halt, The imaginary fray.

The Leper drinks from cups of gold, And lies where princes laid; His loathfome fingers jewels hold For dainty nobles made.

'Tis rout, and shame, and ruin all With haughty Syria's men-There's plenty in the leaguered Hall, Pale famine feasts again.

Jerusalem, the Righteous, City of CHRIST and GOD,

64 The Shadow and the Substance.

Thou art in Heaven more glorious Thou art the Saints' abode.

- I ask Thee, GOD, the life to live Of holy Saints below;
 - I ask Thee, HOLY GHOST, to give The power of faith to show;
 - I ask Thee, CHRIST, on earth to fight Against the Powers of air;

I ask Thee that in craven flight No Child of Thine may share;

I ask Thee that no Phantom-voice May shake my trust in Thee;

I rather ask the Champion's choice, The Martyr's constancy.

Jerufalem, the Glorious, Thefe, thefe fhall dwell and fhine, O'er fin and felf victorious, True Citizens of thine.

Thefe, refting on Thy Bofom, LORD, The SPIRIT's Jewels wear; In Faith and Love they took the Word, And Faith and Love they are.

Surgit Christus cum Trophaeo.

An Easter Sequence.

HRIST with mighty Triumph rifes! All the gates of Death furprifes! From a Lamb a Lion ftrong: Hell through all its depths is quaking;

Earth through all its graves is shaking; Raise on high the Victor's song!

Hail the LAMB! adore Him greatly, Who.upon the Crofs but lately For His helplefs Sheep was flain; By His Death He brought Salvation, To the loft of every nation Showed the Way of Life again.

He alone His Paffion bearing, None His mighty Grief was fharing Save repentant Magdalene— Tell us Mary, 'mid thy weeping, By the Crofs thy ftation keeping, All the Woes that thou haft feen—

I beheld the LORD's Anointed Bear the Stripes to fin appointed,

Lifted on His Crofs to die; Saw the LORD His Thorn-crown wearing, Groffeft infult meekly bearing,

Pale His Cheek, and Junk His Eye:

Through His Hands the nails were driven, By the spear His Side was riven,

Then He bowed His facred Head, And His Soul to GOD commended, All His bitter Paffion ended—

Lo! the LORD of Life was dead.

Tell us, Mary, all thy doing, Still thy task of love pursuing,

When the SAVIOUR'S Soul was fled-By the martyred Mother keeping, While I foothed, I fhared her weeping,

Till unto her home I led :

Then upon the hard earth falling, Mourned I o'er that Scene appaling;

Mourned my SAVIOUR's bitter Doom; Then the fragrant fpices blending, Love's laft precious care attending,

Hied me to the facred Tomb :

Search for my Beloved making, Him for Whom my heart was breaking,

All my fearching proved in vain; Then my Soul was newly troubled, All my grief and care was doubled, And my tears burft forth again.

Weep not, Mary, now unduly CHRIST the LORD hath rifen truly, Broke the feal and 'fcaped the ward-

The Childhood of Chrift.

Words of comfort ye have spoken; And indeed no single token Saw I of the Rifen LORD:

Shining Angels told the ftory— Here is not the LORD of Glory, He is rifen, as He faid; See unwound each linen Cerement And yon token of endearment Which enwrapped His facred Head.

Yea, indeed, the LORD is rifen! Burfting from His narrow Prifon; Hope in Him, ye Sons of men! Rifen SAVIOUR, leave us never, Show us Love and Pity ever; Alleluia! LORD, Amen.

The Childhood of Christ.

HAT earth appeared to Angel eyes That Sabbath morn in Paradife, When man before his FATHER flood,

And GOD beheld that all was good-

When Nature, guiltless yet of stain, Returned her Maker's smile again, And over all created things Lingered the SPIRIT's brooding WingsSo fair, so fresh, so free from taint, Beyond all mortal skill to paint, So calm in growing Strength serene, The Holy Childhood must have been—

A Garden fed with Heavenly Dew, Where all things lovely bloomed and grew, Where Knowledge both of good and ill But left the heart more holy ftill.

But vainly would we feek to raife The veil that fhrouds CHRIST's early Days, Each wondrous A&, each Word fublime That beautified that glorious Prime.

A few brief lines of Sacred Writ Contain the whole we know of it; And there the eye of faith may see The lowly Home in Galilee,

Where daily in His Mother's fight He grew in Wifdom and in Might; The path of meek Obedience trod, In favour both with man and GoD.

He grew in Wifdom ! who can weigh The meaning which those Words convey; Or trace the deep mysterious line Between the Human and Divine?

We only know the daily growth Was that of Mind and Body both,

The Childhood of Chrift.

Until the Perfect Childhood paffed Into the Perfect MAN at last.

Yet one recorded scene alone A Glory o'er those years hath thrown, Revealing to His Mother's Soul A Realm beyond her Love's control:

Teaching both her, who meekly heard And treafured every facred Word, And all His Church, from age to age Who read them in the Gofpel page,

That far above all earthly claim Was that great Work for which He came, As far beyond all earthly tie, The Son(hip of His DEITY.

And if to those who love Him most, His Presence for awhile be lost, And on Life's crowded road they find That they have left their LORD behind,

Let them each erring step retrace, And seek Him through His Means of Grace, Who, in His FATHER'S House of Prayer, Still doth His Work of Mercy there.

We would see Jesus.

NCE, amid the wondrous Story of those thirty years and three,

When the GODHEAD's veiled Glory fhone through our humanity,

Burfta funlight transitory o'er that forrow-darkened sea.

- 'Twas within the Holy City, briefeft fpace ere He deceafed,
- In His world-atoning pity Pafchal Sacrifice and Prieft,

Chaunting pfalm and folemn ditty, came the people to the Feast.

Branch of palm before Him flinging, marched the multitude along,

Little children with their singing joined the unpresumptuous throng,

Joyous Jubilates ringing filled Jerufalem with fong.

- Then it was from those far Islands dear to story and to fame,
- From the claffic vales and highlands dowered with a deathlefs name,
- Breaking late the world's cold filence, Strangers with their queftion came.

We would see Him !—Him Whose Finger stills the storm upon the wave, Him for Whom the thousands linger, health and benison to crave,

- Him the glorious Godlike Bringer of corruption from the Grave.
- Oh! then, for that bitter weeping o'er His own dear Nation's doom,
- Came a fmile of gladnefs creeping like a funbeam on the gloom,
- Like a radiant Angel keeping vigil o'er a dreary tomb.
- For, beyond the darkening vision of that lordly Temple's fall,
- Of the stern day of decision, and the Roman battlecall,
- Rose a gleam of Light elysian, of a Day that dawned for all:
- When from Sinim and from Thulé, from the Islands of the Sea,
- With their Sacrifices duly, with their gold and filver free,
- Owning His Allegiance truly, Princes to His House should flee.
- And His Soul, through myriad ages, through the travail of the years,
- Solved the riddle of the Sages, heard the music of the fpheres,
- In the glad advancing ftages of a world that knows no tears.

- He, Who, with His SIRE Coeval, looked on Earth as first it stood,
- Saw return the hours primeval, faw the Universe renewed
- By the taming of the Evil, and the triumph of the Good :
- Earth's great murmur hushed for ever; all the strife, and all the pain,
- All the fruitless wild endeavour for unsatisfying gain
- Swallowed up in Joy's broad river, fwelling to a boundlefs main.
- But a Shadow dark and fearful ere that Light before Him lay,
- Of an Agony all tearful, and a dark untrodden Way
- With no friendly voices cheerful, brightened by no Heavenly Ray.
- And His Human Soul was troubled, like the troubling of the deep,
- When the gale, with force redoubled, lashes in a fudden sweep
- Wifps of foam that danced and bubbled, to a wild and angry leap.
- And, could the Unchanging waver, seemed it as the Fiend had power,
- Working aye in our disfavour, man's bright Hope to overlower,

- Should He fay, the world's Sole SAVER-FATHER! fave Me from this hour?
- But, while liftening Angels wonder, weeping o'er earth's finful frame,
- Though His Heart be rent ajunder, stands GOD's Purpoje without blame—
- Hark! amid the anfwering thunder—FATHER! glorify Thy Name.
- Be it so! Who suffers for us, answer to His Prayer be given!
- By the universal chorus let the firmament be riven,
- While the ages travel o'er us, glorified with Him in Heaven.

Faith.

AITH is the dawning of Day Where darknefs was before, The rifing of a folar ray To fet in night no more.

- Faith lights an Eye within the Soul From earth to Heaven that turns, And there, where wheels of Glory roll, Admires, adores, and burns.
- Faith plants an Ear that hears the Hymn Of everlafting praife,
- Which fainted Souls and Seraphim In Alleluias raife.

Faith.

Faith yields a Senfe of life and love Upborne on wings of prayer, Swift as an eagle or a dove That cleaves the liquid air.

Faith gives a Hand, that holds the heart Within the mystic veil,

Faft by that Friend who will not part From those who will not fail.

Faith feeds that Fire whofe holy flame Illuminates my road,

With all the Glories of His Name, Who deigns to be my GOD.

And forrows into Joys.

Faith leads me onward to the Crofs, And through it to a Crown, When purified from all the drofs That weighs the Spirit down.

Faith lifts the Glass which shows so well, In lines of weal and woe,

Those twofold worlds of Heaven and Hell, Above me, and below.

Faith is the Substance of my Hope, The Evidence of things

Faith.

- Where Angels fathom not the scope, But shade it with their wings.
- Faith is the Prop on which we lean In darkness or diftress,
- Far oftener felt and known, than feen Throughout this wilderness.
- Faith opens amidst wastes of fand A Fountain fresh and fair, Whose Waters, rising at Command, Annihilate despair.
- Faith is a Compass never wrong, Nor swerving from its Pole;
- It cheers the weak, directs the ftrong, And gladdens every Soul.
- Faith is the Charm that keeps our fight From wandering by the way;
- It fluds with flars the brow of night, Or turns it into day.
- Faith is the Talifman of Power No force can ever break,
- No beasts of prey can e'er devour, Nor sorcery ever shake.
- Faith is the Gem without a flaw Derived alone from GoD,
- The Ranfom of His broken Law, Bought with and bathed in Blood.

In Youth J died.

Faith is the Iris arching Heaven, Though gathering clouds are round, The Token glad of guilt forgiven, Of bondage thus unbound.

Faith takes her Balances of gold, And weighs with skill sublime Eternal Happiness untold, Against the dream of time.

O LORD, increase this Grace in me That with each fleeting breath

I more and more may know of Thee, And hail the hand of Death.

So Faith shall in Fruition end And Grace in Glory cease,

Where Praise her powers can never spend Nor aught disturb their peace.

In Youth I died.

N Youth I died, in Maiden bloom; With gentle hand Death touched my cheek,

And with his touch there came to me A Spirit calm and meek.

He took from me all wifh to ftay; He was so kind, I feared him not;

In youth J died.

My Friends beheld my flow decline, And mourned my joylefs lot.

They faw but forrow; I defcried The Blifs that never fades away: They felt the fhadow of the tomb; I marked the Heavenly Day.

I heard them fob, as through the night They kept their watch : then on my ear, Amid the fobbing, fell a Voice Their anguish could not hear.

Come ! and fear not !—It foftly cried— We wait to lead thee to thy Home. Then leaped my Spirit to reply— I come ! I long to come !

I heard them whifper o'er my bed-Another hour, and fhe muft die ! I was too weak to anfwer them That endlefs Life was nigh.

Another hour, with bitter tears They mourned me as untimely dead, And heard not how I fang a Song Of Triumph o'er their head.

They bore me to the Grave, and thought How narrow was my resting-place; My Soul was roving high and wide At will through boundless space.

Stanzas.

They clothed themfelves in robes of black; Through the fad Aifle the Requiem rang; Meanwhile the white-robed Choirs of Heaven A holy Pæan fang.

Oft from my Paradife I come To vifit thofe I love on earth; I enter, unperceived, the door; They fit around the hearth,

And talk in faddened tone of me, As one that never can return ; How little think they that I ftand Among them as they mourn!

But Time will ease their grief, and Death Will purge the darkness from their eyes; Then shall they triumph, when they learn Heaven's solemn Mysteries.

Stanzas.

The Armour of Christ.

LAD in the Panoply of Heaven What need I fear of Satan's power, His cruel darts against me driven, Or artful wiles in evil hour?

If CHRIST have given me fuch array To fave my Soul from hellifh fpite,

Stanzas.

Why should I dread to wend my way, Or fear to wage the holy fight?

For when with Truth my loins are girt, And Virtue's plate is on my breaft, No falfehood can my Spirit hurt, No vice within my bofom reft.

And if my feet be always shod With the defence of Gospel Peace, No rugged path, that must be trod, Shall cause my zeal and love to cease.

And while I hold the fhield of Faith To guard me from the wicked Foe, I am affured, nor harm, nor fcath, Can come to work me lafting woe.

And when Salvation's helm is mine To cheer me with a bleffed Hope, Why fhould my courage e'er decline, Or fear with evil powers to cope?

The SPIRIT's Sword is by my fide, The Word of GOD, pure, undefiled; Thus pride and error are defied, Though I am but a foolifh Child.

Prayer, alfo, is a weapon fure Whereby temptation to withftand, All Heavenly Graces to fecure From my Redeemer's willing Hand.

Stanzag.

And gives He not in very deed HIMSELF, His Sacrament of Love, With more than Angels' Food to feed My ranfomed Soul, from Heaven above?

Then shall I not suftain the fight, E'en though it be prolonged and sore; And shall not I be clothed with Might To wear the Crown, when all is o'er?

Hereafter.

OW feebly we adore Thee now; How lamely pay each holy vow; Our Faith how weak, our eyes how dim, How languid every laud and hymn! When at Thy Altar, LORD, we kneel, Thy Prefence fcarce our hearts can feel; Not even thofe on earth who knew Thy Form, Thy beft-beloved, could view On Tabor's folitary height One glimpfe of Thy Eternal Light: They fell, o'erpowered with fight and found, Amazed and fenfelefs to the ground.

But they who reach the Realms of Joy, Where fin our blifs can ne'er alloy, Shall look upon their Monarch's Face Within His very Dwelling-place :

Stanzag.

Shall all His Beauty fee and know, Enraptured gaze—nor only fo— But His effulgent Robe fhall wear, And, one with Him, His Glory fhare. Transcendent thought! that mortal men The secret things of Heaven may ken; And GoD the LORD for evermore With undivided Love adore!

The Redeemer.

Yes, Sinner, CHRIST in love forfook His FATHER'S Houfe for thee !

- And was He clothed in mortal Flesh, in human Form for me?
- Yes, Sinner, JESUS once became a little BABE for thee !
- And did He fast, and fainting pray, afflict His Soul for me?
- Yes, Sinner, CHRIST the LORD endured life's bitterest pangs for thee!
- And was He fcorned, and fcourged, and mocked, and buffeted for me?
- Yes, Sinner, JESUS oft-time bore most cruel taunts for thee !

- Say, did He groan, and bleed, and die, upon the Cross for me?
- Yes, Sinner, He with joy poured forth His precious Blood for thee !
- And went He to the Realms of Hell to vanquish Death for me?
- Yes, Sinner, and on Easter-morn CHRIST rose again for thee!
- And is He gone to GOD's Right Hand to intercede for me?
- Yes, Sinner, with His FATHER now, in Heaven He pleads for thee!
- Then, there is hope of Life, and Peace, and Pardon, e'en for me?
- Yes, Sinner, if thou go to CHRIST, Himfelf will give them thee !
- With JESUS may I refuge take, to Him for fuccour flee ?
- Haste, Sinner, JESUS gladly hails, and Angels welcome thee !
- Then, LORD, let me, a Sinner, come with contrite heart to Thee;
- Forgive, Ograciously forgive: in Mercy look on me!
- O fend Thy HOLY SPIRIT down, with Love to quicken me;
- That so, for evermore, I may devote my life to Thee!

The Sacred Beart.

Thou weary Soul? Lo! I have fought for Reft On the Earth's heaving breast, From pole to pole. Sleep-I have been with her, But she gave dreams ; Death-nay, the reft he gives Rest only seems. Fair Nature knows it not-The grass is growing; The blue air knows it not-The winds are blowing : Not in the changing fky, The stormy sea-Yet somewhere in God's wide World Rest there must be. Within thy SAVIOUR's Heart Place all thy care, And learn, O weary Soul, Thy Reft is there.

What wouldft thou, trembling Soul? Strength for the strife-Strength for this fiery war That we call Life.

The Sacred Beart.

Fears gather thickly round; Shadowy foes, Like unto armèd men, Around me close. What am I, frail and poor, When griefs arife ? No help from the weak earth. Or the cold skies. Lo! I can find no guards, No weapons borrow, Shrinking, alone I stand With mighty forrow. Courage, thou trembling Soul, Grief thou must bear, Yet thou canst find a Strength Will match despair : Within thy SAVIOUR'S Heart-Seek for it there. What wouldst thou have, sad Soul, Oppreffed with grief?

Comfort, I feek in vain, Nor find relief. Nature, all pitilefs, Smiles on my pain; I afk my fellow-men, They give difdain: I afked the babbling fireams, But they flowed on; I afked the wife and good, But they gave none.

The Sacred Beart.

Though I have asked the stars, Coldly they shine, They are too bright to know Grief such as mine. I asked for Comfort still, And I found tears, And I have fought in vain Long, weary years. Listen, thou mournful Soul, Thy pain shall cease; Deep in His Sacred Heart, Dwells Joy and Peace. Yes, in that Heart Divine, The Angels bright Find, through eternal years, Still new delight. From thence his constancy The Martyr drew, And there the Virgin band Their refuge knew. There, racked by pain without, And dread within, How many Souls have found Heaven's Bliss begin. Then leave thy vain attempts To feek for Peace; The world can never give One Soul release: But in thy SAVIOUR'S Heart

Securely dwell,

A Sequence for the Dedication of a Church.

LAD Zion's halls are founding With fong and feftal lay, And with bridal Joy abounding The Church is Bride to-day!

In robes of Grace excelling The glorious Bride is clad, And the organ notes are fwelling In anthems loud and glad.

Like rain and dew defcending Is the FATHER'S Heavenly ruth; In a bridal Bleffing blending Are His Mercy and His Truth.

Sanctae Syon adlunt Encaenía.

Comes, all His Love revealing, The Bridegroom, Mary's Son; Brings all the Grace of Healing Which He for earth has won,

Brings a glorious Bridal-dower For the Church which He has wed, In the Grace of fevenfold Power From His HOLY SPIRIT fhed.

With Mysteries life giving The Paschal Feast is rife, Where the LAMB for ever living Is Himself the Bread of Life.

And to the LAMB's great Wedding His SIRE, the Heavenly King, His chofen Saints is bidding With a gracious welcoming.

Comes Abel, witnefs bearing How innocence is bleft; Comes Noah, ftern declaring How Juftice is expreft.

In myftery confeffing The great eternal Prieft, Melchifedec his Bleffing, Gives ever to the Feaft.

And Abraham the proven, Has brought his faith sincere, With Israel the loving, And trustful Israc here.

And Mofes old and hoary, With light his forehead rayed; And Jofhua in his glory, Whofe word the Sun obeyed.

And ardent David fmiting In his youth the giant foe, On his kingly throne delighting In the Pfalms prophetic flow.

And the Law and Prophets greeting In union close rejoice; While their strength and power completing Comes the Gospel's glorious voice.

And over earth and Heaven Great peace and stillness fall, With the FATHER's Fulness given, And GOD is All in all.

Miriam.

H, for that day, that day of blifs entrancing,

When Israel stood, her night of bondage o'er,

.And leaped in heart to see no more advancing

Egypt's dark hoft along the defert shore; For scarce a ripple now proclaimed where lay The boasting Pharaoh and his fierce array.

Miriam! She filent stood, that fight beholding,

And bowed with facred awe her wondering head;

Till, lo! no more their hideous spoils withholding, The Depths, indignant, spurned their buried dead;

And all along that fad and vengeful coaft Pale corpfes lay-a monumental hoft.

Miriam ! She faw; then all to life awaking-"Sing to the LORD"-with a great voice she cried;

"Sing to the LORD"—their many timbrels shaking, Ten thousand ransomed hearts and tongues replied;

While, leading on the dance in triumph long, Thus the great Prophetess broke forth in song-

> "Oh, fing to the LORD, Sing His Triumph right glorious; O'er horfe and o'er rider, Sing His right Arm victorious; Pharaoh's horfemen and chariots And captains fo brave, The LORD hath thrown down In the bottomlefs wave.

" Man of War is the LORD, And JEHOVAH His Name;

Lays of Ancient PaleAine.

We trusted His Pillar Of Cloud and of Flame. Proud boasters, ye followed, But where are ye gone? Down, down in the waters, Ye sank like a stone.

"O LORD, Thou didft blow With Thy Noftrils a blaft, And upheaved the huge billows---Like mountains flood faft. Egypt fluddered with wonder, That pathway to fee---Thofe depths all congealed In the heart of the fea.

"' I too will march onward, (The Enemy cried)
I fhall foon overtake; I the fpoil will divide,
I will kill'—O my GoD! The depths fell at Thy Breath,
And like lead they went down In thofe waters of death.

" But o'er us the foft wings Of Thy Mercy outfpread To Thy own chofen Dwelling Our feet Thou haft led. Paleftrina, affrighted, The tidings fhall hear,

Lays of Ancient Palestine.

And your hearts, O ye Nations, Shall wither with fear.

"Thus brought in with triumph, Safe planted and bleft, On Thy own holy Mountain Thy People fhall reft. Shout! Pharaoh is fallen To rife again never. Sing! the LORD, He fhall reign For ever and ever."

Gibeon.

H! there were banners proudly dancing Round old Gibeon's royal walls; Oh! there were war-steeds furious prancing To the battle-trump which calls. On they come, five Kings in number, Oh, how stern their long array : Up! brave hearts, nor dare to flumber, Life and death are on this day. Men of Gibeon ! like a river Hebron rushes from afar; Jarmuth see! with bow and quiver, How he heads the burfting war : Lachish shouts with scornful gladness; Eglon! who his waves [hall ftem ? Many a mother faints with fadness At thy cry, Jerufalem !

Lays of Ancient Paleatine.

Onward! onward! buckler classes, Lances Shiver, helmet rings; On ! the roll of carnage dashes-Iron hearts are needful things. Earth and air, with ghastly wonder, Start to eye that dreadful fight; While each crash of martial thunder Shakes the crimfon field of fight. Hark ! and tell me, heard ye stealing Footsteps through the dead of night? Saw ye tread, their path concealing, Israel's chosen men of might? Canaan's sons ! no peace betiding, Moans that fullen night-wind's breath; For upon its black wings riding, Lo! the Angel comes of death. Thou, Bethoron ! tell the ftory, How they died that banded hoft : Bannered pomp and kingly glory, Where is now your fwelling boaft? Speak, Azekah! fay how o'er them Heaven its giant hailstones threw; GOD, their Foe, above-before them : Israel's host behind pursue.

Conquerors ! on ; but, fast declining, See ! the day is almost gone---

" Sun! stand still, on Gibeon shining : Stop, thou Moon! o'er Ajalon."

Lays of Ancient Palestine.

Wondrous fight! by Mortal fpoken, Sun and Moon obeyed that word, Till, the last proud foeman broken, Joshua triumphed and the LORD.

Gibeon's faved! ye Saints that languifh, Crouched in fackcloth and in duft, Rife! 'tis paft, your hour of anguifh---Perfect Peace awaits the Juft; You have fown in night of forrow, Reap in joy your promifed crown; Happy, glorious, endlefs morrow, Sun and Moon that ne'er go down.

Deborah.

AKE, Deborah! wake; and thou, Barak! arije,

And fwell the proud chorus which gladdens the fkies: Attend, O ye Kings, and ye Princes, give ear— I, Deborah, fpeak, but JEHOVAH is near.

O LORD, it was Thou with Thy People didft ride, When they conquering burft from rough Edom's dark fide,

The huge Mountains staggered along on Thy Way, While the hearts of the Nations all melted away.

But forfaken by Thee, then how triumphed our foes, Till I, Mother in Ifrael, Deborah, rofe; How filent our valleys, how wasted our plains, While we fat down in fackcloth, and wept o'er our chains.

Speak, Deborah! Speak; and thou, Barak! oh, say,

How captivity captive was led on that day; All honour to you who, infpired by our breath, So bravely did jeopard your lives to the death.

But curfe ye the cowards, who, trembling with fear, Refolved not the fummons of refcue to hear; Yes, bitterly curfe them, who mocked at the word— 'Gainft the mighty, oh, come! to the help of the LORD.

Oh, that was a triumph, a glorious fight, When ye came, O ye Kings! to Megiddo to fight; Ah, Sifera! well may your chariots be nought, When against you the stars in their bright courses fought.

Then tell me, O Kishon, then tell me, oh, whither Hast thou swept all their glory, thou deep-flowing river?

Where has vanished so swiftly their boastful array? O my Soul! down what strength hast thou trodden this day.

By the window she fat of her watch tower so high— It was Sistera's Mother : she looked at the sky— "Why tarries his chariot so long on the way? Why thus, O my conquering Son! dost thou stay?" Her wife Ladies answered—" The spoil to divide, The glad warriors rest on the steep mountain's side; They come"—Dreamers, hush ! shall I tell you the tale,

How your Sifera died by the sharp-piercing nail?

Thus perifh, confumed, at the flash of Thy Sword, The madmen who challenge Thy Honour, O LORD! But they who love Thee, on strong pinions unfurled, Like funs shall mount upward, and tread on the world.

A Sequence on the Incarnation.

HEN of His Grace the SON of GOD the SON of Man would be Then was a Bridal, GOD the Spoufe, the Bride Humanity;

Our nature was not lost in Him, nor He defiled by clay,

So let all earth meet joyfully and keep the Bridalday.

O bleffed end of enmity! O Peace which Angels tell!

Ofairestfair Espousals! GOD with us, EMMANUEL!

This is the Dew on Gideon's Fleece, the Earth in opening Spring,

- Oh, once the Prophets Spake of Him, and in the Fathers' day
- The eyes which He had opened faw a Gladnefs far away;
- But now their Voice is only love; He Whom they faw is nigh,
- And dawns, a Sun of Sinless, clear o'er the darkening sky.
- Then by a mortal Mother's Arms Immenfity was fpanned,
- Then was Humility most meek enthroned at God's Right Hand,
- Then GOD was manifest in Flesh, the Life would mortal be,
- And finners recompensed with hate Divinest Charity.

There is a wondrous Story, of dim Tradition born-There went a Virgin beautiful to fnare the Unicorn;

- She came upon his lair—oh then he laid his fierceness by,
- And leaned for flumber at Her Breast, the ambush lurking nigh;

This is our Aaron's Almond-rod to Glory bloffoming.

- There is a Truth more wondrous yet; GoD's Wrath was waxing fell
- When in the Pearl of Maidenhood He came as MAN to dwell;
- Thither He came and thence He went even foes to seek and save,
- Till through the Flesh He took of her the Nails of Death they drave.
- So let us meet and kindle each in other Love's pure flame,
- And fend our lowly 'not to us' there whence the Merit came;
- GOD breathed on earth His quickening Breath, then fell the SPIRIT's Shower,
- And lo! in Mary's Garden fprang Salvation's votive Flower.

The Tree of Life.

HE Tree of Life in Eden stood, With mystic Fruits of Heavenly Food, Which endless Life afford :

That Life by man's tranfgreffion loft, Caft out is man by Angel-hoft Until by MAN reftored. In vain the Lambs poured forth their blood, In vain the fmoking Altars ftood,

All unatoned was fin : Must greater be the Sacrifice, Before the Gate of Paradise

Can let the fallen in.

The LORD of Life His Life must give, That man an endles Life may live,

And Death's dark doom reverfe. The Crofs is made the mystic Tree, The Blood that flowed on Calvary Hath washed away the curfe.

Now Eden's Gate is oped once more, The guarding Angel's watch is o'er,

And sheathed the flaming sword : The Tree of Life now blooms afresh, Its precious Fruit the very Flesh Of the Incarnate WORD.

Cain and Abel.

WO Brothers each an Offering made, Two offerings on two Altars laid, Two differing hearts were there : In one was faith and hope and love, The other anger, malice move To murder and despair.

Type and Antitype.

The bloodlefs Offering lies in vain, The God most Highest will not deign To blefs fuch Sacrifice : But soon that Offering's stained and red With Brother's blood by Brother sted, Which loud for vengeance cries.

Again two Priefts ftand Face to face, Two Brethren of one common race Within the Temple walls : Again a BROTHER's Blood is poured An awful Offering to the LORD, But which for Mercy calls.

Upon our Altars now there lies A bloodlefs, endlefs Sacrifice, Earth's fruits of Bread and Wine : Our BROTHER brings His Blood to blefs And Confecrate by Righteoufnefs An Offering now Divine.

Abram and Melchizedek.

HEN conquering Abram Salem fought, To GOD's High Prieft his tithes he brought, His thankfulnefs to mark : Melchizedek an Offering made Of Bread and Wine on Altar laid, And bleffed the Patriarch. A Victory nobler far we gain, A nobler Sacrifice is flain, A better Bleffing shed : Our great High Priest in Heaven stands, Who gives Himself with His own Hands, In mystic Wine and Bread.

The Manna and the Rock.

OR forty years was Ifrael fed With daily Manna, Angel's Bread; The Rock with Water flows: That Water flowed, that Manna fell Like dew on favoured Ifrael, Who like a lily grows.

CHRIST'S Flefh is now the Living Bread, His riven Side the Rock which ſhed The Water and the Blood : From Him the Church her life renews, His Gracious Blood her Soul bedews With ever-ftreaming flood.

The Passover and the Eucharist.

N anxious hafte at GOD's Command All Ifrael's hoft prepare and stand To take its ordered flight : With bitter herbs, unleavened bread, And roasted Lamb the Feast is spread, That memorable night.

Merles.

The awful Angel foars on high, And Death is dealing far and nigh, Save where the Blood is found : Supported by that Pafchal food, The mighty hoft paffed through the flood Beyond the fea's dark bound.

All girded for its coming flight A Soul is paffing hence to-night, And bids the world farewell : Fed with the facred Nourifhment Of CHRIST'S most Holy Sacrament, It bursts through fin's dark spell.

All fprinkled with the Precious BLOOD

It calmly paffes through the flood Of Death's laft agony :

It chants, while borne on Angel's wing-

O mighty Death, where is thy fting ? Where, Grave, thy Victory ?

Uerleg.

Give me Children, or else I die.

IVE me Children, or elfe I die— 'Twas wildly faid, and ftill More wildly o'er the fpeaker's heart Thefe words were doomed to thrill:

Uerleg.

For they were uttered in an hour Of reckless love and pride, By one who brooked not aught on earth To her should be denied.

The found of that impaffioned cry Afcended up to Heaven, And to the loved and loving one A first-born Son was given.

Not in that hour did memory bring To that fond heart and weak The echo of those frantic words That she had dared to speak.

Perchance, not until anguish came Returned their sound again, Floating with fatal meaning through The dying woman's brain.

- For Rachel now, a fecond time, Must meet her trying hour, And Death, which she has once invoked, Now comes with fearful power.
- 'Ye know not what ye ask' is stamped On each unchastened prayer That lays not at GOD's Feet its weight Of hope or of despair.

Merles.

Comest Thou to me?

WARND comest Thou to me, O LORD, When I have need of Thee? Such was the Baptist's trembling cry, His self-denouncing plea. But none may shrink from work GoD sets, From high or lowly tafk : By thee is thine own part fulfilled? Is all that He will ask. A finner with a load of care And confcious fin opprest Must sometimes act an Angel's part, And speak of GOD's Behest. The highest place may sometimes prove A source of penance keen, And felf-abhorring pangs there are By all but GOD unseen. His Gifts, through human hands and frail, Without defilement flow, And Saints may kneeling claim the boon That sinners can bestow. When JESUS knelt that wondrous hour At His own Servant's feet, He taught proud hearts to bend the knee In lowly penance meet;

The Tomb of Joleph.

And in that hour the Sacred Dove Appeared to mortal eye, And GoD's own Voice in thunder fpoke A Bleffing from the fky.

The Tomb of Joleph of Arimathea.

WAS night ! ftill night !

A folemn filence hung upon the fcene ; The keen, bright ftars fhone with unclouded light,

Calm and serene.

Hushed was the Tomb ! The heavy stone before its entrance lay : No light broke in upon its silent gloom, No starry ray.

The moonlight beamed ; It hung above that garden, foft and clear, Around the watchful guard its radiance gleamed From helm and fpear.

The Tomb was fealed ! The watch patrolled before its entrance lone; The bright night every paffing ftep revealed; None neared the ftone.

Midnight had passed;

The stars their lustrous shining had decreased;

And day-break's earliest light was hastening fast In the pale east.

The Tomb of Joleph.

The morning-star,

Last in the filent Heaven, withdrew its ray,

And the white dawn spreading its spectre light Foretold the day.

An earthquake's shock Just at the break of morning shook the ground, And echoed from that rent and trembling rock With startling sound.

The guards, amazed, Fell to the earth in wonder and affright; And round the aftonifhed fpot in glory blazed A fudden Light.

An Angel there Defcended from the tranquil fky ; The glory of his prefence filled the air All-radiantly.

He rolled away From the still Sepulchre the massy stone, And, watching silent till the risen day, He sat thereon.

His garments white Shone like the fnow in its unfullied fheen; His face was, like the lightning's gleaming light, Dazzlingly feen.

All, all around Was filence, and fufpenfe, and liftening dread; The ftirlefs watch lay proftrate on the ground, Hushed as the dead.

106 Concerning the Chief Spiritual

At break of day

The SAVIOUR burft that Cavern's stillness deep, Rising in conquest from Death's shattered sway As from a sleep.

He rofe in Power, In all the Strength of GODHEAD fhining bright, Fresh as that hallowed Morning's dewy hour, Pure as its light.

He rofe as GOD, Rofe as a mighty Victor strong to fave, Breaking Death's silent chain and unseen rod There in the Grave.

He rofe on high, While Angels hung around on foaring wing, Wrefting from the dark Grave its victory, From Death its fting.

Concerning the Chief Spiritual and Beneral Bifts of Bod.

OW shall worthy praise and honour E'er by me to Thee be done, Made by Love the Sin-atoner, God's Alone-begotten Son—and General Gifts of God.

Me, endowed, by fuch a Donor, Thus with every Gift in one?

For, fince He to flefh hath deigned, I to live in Soul begin; Through the ftroke my LORD fuftained, I with Him am dead to fin; By this Bread of Life maintained, Onene(s with my SAVIOUR win.

Where is fuch Divine Nutrition Found on earth 'twixt pole and pole? Where fo fkilful a Phyfician, Raifing up the languid Soul? Holy hunger's glad fruition; Virtue's, Glory's perfect whole!

Me before ten thousand taking, Oh! how great Thy sovereign Love ; For my benefit forsaking

All Thine Heritage above,

Till, with all Thy Saints awaking, I the full Redemption prove.

'Tis for me the tomb Thou quitteft, Lifting up my Soul on high;
'Tis for me enthroned Thou fitteft, Glorious in the upper fky;
'Tis for me that Thou remitteft Thy Good SPIRIT ever nigh.

108 Concerning the Thief Spiritual

Now His foothing Smiles carefs me With each profperous delight; Now He pleafeth to opprefs me With the cloud of forrow's night : Yet, in either, He will blefs me, If my loving heart be right.

At His withering Infpiration Carnal pleafures ceafe to bloom; Burdens, by His Confolation, Lightfome to the flefh become : Oh ! how bright the Revelation When His Rays the fight illume.

Glories which our earthly fenfes, Dimmed by fin, can ne'er difcern, Through one Gift which He difpenfes, Every faithful Soul may learn; While with all Divine defences From them evil He doth turn.

No poor speech of man availeth Good so great as this to tell : Faith attempteth, but she faileth— Grace and Love unsearchable ! When defire the Soul assault, This alone its thirst can quell.

Lo! a train of Heavenly Bleffing, (Numbers fail the fum to give) Are the holy, this poffeffing, Fitted ever to receive : Their Bestower, without ceasing, Laud while endless ages live.

Be Thou raifed all heights transcending, FATHER, Fount of Grace and Might! Be Thy Glory still extending, Son, of men both Life and Light! Be Thy Praises never-ending, COMFORTER in forrow's night!

Advent of the Divine Stranger. 111

Let praise the Maker FATHER greet; Honour, the Saviour Son; And Glory to the PARACLETE, Renewer GOD, be done!

The Advent of the Divine Stranger.

HE Chriftmas Eve is waning, The Morning ftreaks the fky, Earth ceafes her complaining, Redemption draweth nigh !

i

But Who fo fwiftly moveth? Who on the mountains stands, To earth, as One that loveth, Stretching His gracious Hands?

Whence cometh He Whofe Gefture Infant-like doth invite, Yet glorious in His Vefture, And travelling in His Might?

Who for our greeting waiteth? Who waiteth us to greet? Walking a world that hateth— How beautiful His Feet!

Whofe is the Face that gloweth, And lighteth up the Sun? Whofe is the Voice that floweth Like many waves in one?

112 Advent of the Divine Stranger.

Whofe are the Accents ringing, Like far, faint, holy Chimes, Like Childhood's Carols bringing Their tones to exile climes?

Now from a lowly Manger, Now from the Throne on high, O Meek and Mighty Stranger, Thy Voice fills earth and Jky.

But lo! He draweth nearer, And full upon His Brow The eastern lights fall clearer-My God! What see I now?

'Tis not day's crimfon gleaming, 'Tis not morn's dewy gold,
That in His Locks is beaming, Too glorious to behold.

'Tis not the winter's treafure, The holly's blood-red beads, Strung for a wreath of pleafure— His tender Vifage bleeds.

'Tis not the Tyrian glory, His Raiment hath imbued,— His Head and Feet are gory, His Hands are red with Blood.

But decked with Light He shineth, Brightly, more brightly yet,

The Heavenly Fatherland. 113

With Light that ne'er declineth, With Beams that never fet.

Ring out, ye Chimes, your greeting, Ye Carols, mount on high, For Heaven and Earth are meeting In Him Who cannot die.

The Reavenly Fatherland.

The Rhythm of Bernard of Clugny.

ERE we have many fears, this is the vale of tears, the land of forrow :

Tears are there none at all in that Celeftial hall, on life's bright morrow.

- Oh, for the Joys in store; but one short moment more, then Life for ever:
- Oh, for the Joys in store, at the glad Heavenly door of the Life-giver.

What is the Prize? for whom ?—Heaven for the fons of doom; Life for the winner;

Blifs for the nothing-worth ; Gold for the drofs of earth ; GOD for the finner.

Loud founds the battle-cry; whence comes the victory feek you to guess?-Hence,

Full-streamed, without alloy, flows everlasting Joy from His bright Presence.

114 The Heavenly Fatherland.

- Hope here we live upon; here we see Babylon Sion invading.
- Now grief is all our lot; then Joys which wither not—garlands unfading.

O Sion bright with gold, flowing with milk thy fold, City of gladness,

- Tongue cannot tell thy blifs, heart finks opprest with this, even to fadness.
- I cannot strain my sight to that intense delight, nor tell the story,
- What throbs of ardent love thrill through the courts above, how vaft their glory.
- My ears may strain to hear, they cannot reach the sphere, for full before it
- Beams of jurpaffing light fall on my dazzled jight; mute I adore it.
- For Sion's halls along echoes the voice of fong : there the Departed,
- Fresh from the deadly fight, throng round the LORD of Light, jubilant-hearted.
- There is eternal Reft; there after toil the Bleft cease from life's fever:
- There in Heaven's banquet-hall founds the high feftival of the Receiver :
- There round the LORD of Might, vested in garments white, on that bright morrow

Musters their vast array; tears have all fled away; vanished all sorrow.

- For Sion's courts within Death may not tread, nor fin, nor guilt's endeavour;
- Thus without fault are they; peaceful, without difmay; at reft for ever.

O Sion glorious, City victorious, tower of Salvation, Thee I feek and defire; to thee I aye afpire in contemplation.

- Good works I offer none; I have no pardon won by my own merit;
- Firstborn of wrath am I; sold to iniquity, body and Spirit.
- I can bring nought at all, bondfman of fin and thrall, fcarred in each feature,
- In life and Soul I faint, under the poifon-taint of my loft nature.
- Yet day and night I cry—FATHER, Thy Help is nigh when we beseech it ;
- I fee the Prize above, stretch forth Thy Hand of Love, aid us to reach it.
- Thou to life call'st us forth out of the dust of earth; Thine own Ablution,
- When we were born in fin, washed our Souls clean within from all pollution.

116 The Heavenly Fatherland.

Thine is the Salve ordained for those whom guilt has stained, who by computition

Claim what no Soul can claim, unpurged by grief and shame—the Heavenly Unction.

From David's fount apace flows the pure stream of Grace ever descending,

- Through it fin's leprofy foon fades and dies away, and has its ending.
- O Grace of GOD, on high I fee beyond the fky; the clouds are riven:
- As through a glass I see, dimly and mistily, the gates of Heaven.
- O Sion, bright with gold, dear home of Joys untold, in GoD's Light burning;
- I ftretch my arms—my Soul; fhall I e'er reach the goal of all my yearning?
- O bleffed Fatherland, I fee the happy Band—the mifts grow lighter—
- I fee the light of day round their fair garlands play brighter and brighter.
- O bleffed Fatherland, fay shall I ever stand where I can share thee?
- Say but—' The time ſhall come when to this happy Home Angels ſhall bear thee.'

Is it a trance, a dream? Oh, do thefe things but feem? Is it a vision? Let me but grasp it fair ! No: 'twill not melt in air, in vain derision.

- O my dust, triumph thou! GOD is thy Portion now-thine now and ever!
- O my dust, triumph thou! GOD is thy Portion now-thine now and ever!

HUMAN-KIND, your voices raife In loud and fweet accord, And tune each feftal Choir to praife The Triumph of the LORD;

And let the joyous trumpet tell How He returns to-day, Leading the captive fpoils of Hell On His victorious way.

Ah, Bliss of GOD! to note how fair, How glorious, and how bright,

- The Divine Shoot of the ancient Root Is burfting into light :
- Above the thrones of the mortal ones, And Powers that dwell on high,
- The growth to which earth to-day gives birth Is lifted to the fky.

And a great amaze draws the wondering gaze Of His People first and last;
With uplifted eyes, in that dread furprise, Stand the Galilean men,
Watching the Cloud which must cover the crowd And hide Him from their ken.
When away from earth Elias broke In his chariot of flame,

- A twofold Spirit with the Prophet's cloak Upon Elifha came :
- But when our LORD with His lingering Feet Did the upward pathway trace,
- He sent to His Own, in the PARACLETE, A universal Grace.
- O'er Jordan must our Israel go, The stream that He must quaff, Burdened with His prevailing Love,
 - The Cross His only staff;
- With a twofold Band He is now at hand, With the treasures of all time,
- With the unincarnate Spirits and The Souls that fhall reign fublime.
- This is the Conqueror true and brave Who in Glory sweeps afar,
- Who from the portals of the grave Did rive every bolt and bar :

There, hid from mortal gaze, ONE knelt in deep amaze, A Heart oppressed beneath its burthen quailed. That ONE, in travail fore, Was our Dear LORD, Who bore Our fins' great burthen that on Him was laid; While none could bring relief To that exceeding Grief, The Grief that made His Human Soul afraid. But lo! from those hot Veins, Forced out by Mental pains, Great drops of Blood adown the verdure fall; Such whelming fears affail, That heart and courage fail, As first essays of fin's strange load appal. No other gaze but His Could fathom that abyfs, Whofe lowest depths to Him stood all revealed; The fins of Adam's race. Against God's Love and Grace, His Thought embraced them all as thus He kneeled. Ungodly counsels then, And deeds of evil men, All fins of each degree, of every kind, Not as to human eyes, But in their hellish guise

Were then all bared to His omniscient Mind.

The ponderous weight of all, From Adam's grievous fall, Till earth's Laft Day and folemn Reckoning Time, Of all God's Books record, The Curfe, the due reward, The iniquity of all now laid on Him !

That high-filled Cup of Woes His prefcient Mind foreknows, From firft approach of Judas' torch-led hoft; That falfe Difciple's kifs, And all that followed this, Till on the Crofs He yielded up the Ghoft.

> Each furrowed, bleeding gash From cruel scourge's lash,

And fharpest pricks of that mock thorny Crown; The infults, blows, and fcorn That must be meekly borne,

Thefe weigh the SON of Man's fad Spirit down.

He fees with Vifion clear, (And fhrinks with human fear) The Crofs with Curfe o'erlaid and angry Doom ; The hours of racking pain He muft, nailed there, fuftain While lingering death Life's marrow fhall confume.

Maker and LORD of all ! Behold Him prostrate fall, And humbly kneel in silent anguish there;

Bei filler nacht.

Till, with an inward groan, Towards the Heavenly Throne, With earnest pleading He directs His Prayer.

FATHER, to Thee I pray,

O take this Cup away :

Thou hast all Power to do Thy Will Divine; Remove, if it may be,

This Cup away from me :

Yet, FATHER, not My Will be done, but Thine.

Thus thrice our Suffering LORD, With proftrate Form, implored That even then that Hour might pass away; Until from Heaven at length An Angel brought Him strength,

And healing balm His troubled Soul to stay.

O well for us indeed,

He took, as was decreed,

And drained the Cup His Heavenly FATHER gave;

And therefore Songs of praise

We ransomed sinners raise

To Him Who meekly died our Souls to fave.

Sonnetg.

The Love of God: from S. Augustine.

HAT love I, when I love Thee, O my God?

Not corporal beauty, nor the limb of fnow,

Nor of loved light the white and pleafant flow, Nor Manna showers, nor strains that stream abroad, Nor flowers of Heaven, nor small stars of the sod. Not these, my Gool ! I love, who love Thee so. Yet love I Something sweeter than I know, A certain Light on a more golden road, A Somewhat not of Manna, nor the hive, A Beauty not of summer or the spring, A Scent, a Music, and a Blossoming, Eternal, Timeles, Placeles, without Gyve, Fair, Fadeles, Undiminissed, never dim,— This, This is what I love, in loving Him.

II.

This, This is what I love, and what is This? I afked the beautiful Earth who faid, 'Not I ;' I afked the Depths, and the immaculate Sky, And all the Spaces faid, 'Not He, but His.' And fo like One who fcales a precipice, Height after height, I fcaled the flaming wall Of the great Universe; yea, paffed o'er all The world of thought, which fo much higher is.

Sonnets.

Then I exclaimed—To whom is mute all murmur Of phantafy, of nature, and of art, He, than articulate language hears a firmer And grander meaning in his own deep heart, No found from cloud or Angel. Oh, to win That voicelefs Voice, 'My Servant, enter in !'

In My Father's House are many Mansions.

HE ftars are out in their eternal youth, That fuch a wealth of fancies nightly yield, The golden corndrops call them of a field Where the moon glideth like the gleaner Ruth ; And fome look on their company in footh For poefy, fome for love of loving eyes, Who fee the fame things in the fame blue fkies ; And fome in fearch of Hope and fome of Truth. I have my ftarry thought : the Twelve are up, The door is opened, and they linger yet : CHRIST'S Wine is in the Euchariftic Cup ; CHRIST'S Chalice waiteth Him in Olivet ; While He, His Eye on the ftar-fown expansions, Saith—' In My FATHER'S House are many Mansfions.'

God is a Sun and Shield.

Those songs of gold, of lilies, and the dawn,

Merles.

Clufter their myftic epithets together, As boughs do bloffoms in the funny weather, A wafte of beauty meaningleffly fair ? Not fo. I deem there is a purpofe there And both the words are true, and loft is neither : And one Divinely filvers o'er the pfalm, And one awakens fome far battle boom. The Shield is for the land that knows no calm ; The Sun for that blue country o'er the tomb : This for GoD's Garden is, that for His Fray ; The Sun for Home, the Shield is for the Way.

Herleg.

In the Beginning was the Word.

TERNAL WORD! GOD's True and Only Son,

Maker, and Lord, and Heir, and Judge of all;

First-born of every creature; Holy ONE! We praise Thy Name, and on Thy Name we call.

JEHOVAH dwells from everlasting years In filence and in folitude concealed;

And yet from Everlafting He appears In Thee to all His Universe revealed.

And life and love and truth and joy and might, And all the Creature lieth incomplete,

Merles.

Some darkness lingering in their purest light-Only in Thee doth all their fulness meet. Nothing fo dark as the pure Light of GOD; Nothing fo far from us and strange and high; Nothing fo weary as the grievous load The burdened Creature bears until he die. But in the SON of Love and Sacrifice Nothing fo near and clear as GOD appears; And lightly on the heart the burden lies Of all our imperfections and our fears. True SON of GOD, our Sonship is in Thee; True Light of GOD, our Wisdom too Thou art; O LAMB from earth's foundation flain for me, Thou bringest Life and Peace into my heart. Ever in Thee the FATHER is revealed, Ever in Thee all things are reconciled, Ever in Thee our fins and wounds are healed, Glory to Thee, the Pure and Undefiled.

I have finished the Work Thou gavest Me to do.

With finless, faultless, holy beauty graced; But when his task was ended, evermore The faithful Servant sally must deplore

It was a fair shortcoming at the best.

Never did Limner paint up to his thought ; Nor Sculptor chifel in the marble white

126

The visioned model after which he wrought; Never was Song from sweet melodious throat The perfect utterance of the Soul's delight;

Never did Hero wholly yet achieve

The feats of glory which he had defigned; Nor thoughtful Sage the abfolute pattern weave Of GoD's great Universe, which he might leave

A wonder and a faith to all mankind.

Still our best work is only partly done,

And grows from man to man, from age to age, Some failure lurks in every triumph won; Others will mend whate'er we have begun,

And blot some matter from our fairest page.

One only Life there is without a stain,

Accomplishing the FATHER's perfect Will; With highest aim—and never aimed in vain, Attempting nought which must be tried again,

But all the Thought of GOD it did fulfil.

Perfect the sinless Beauty of His Ways;

Perfect the Wifdom of His faithful Love; Perfect the Truft that walked with GOD always; Perfect in Suffering; perfect in the Praise

Which still like incense rose to Heaven above.

O fairer Thou than fons of men; and yet Not terrible Thy Beauty! In fweet accord All tender Graces in Thy Being met; And of their fulnefs all Thy People get Still growing to the Fulnefs of their LORD.

Uerles.

Behold! thy King cometh.

BO! He cometh, meek and lowly, Strew the palm-branch on His road, SON of David, Pure and Holy, King of Zion! CHRIST of GOD! He hath healed our sore diseases, Purged the eyeballs of the blind, And the dumb have fung to JESUS, Vexed with demons in their mind. And He spake, as never mortal Spake before, with Truth and Grace, Words which are the glorious portal Into Wisdom's holy Place. Lo! He comes, grand Foot-prints leaving All along the path He trod-Each a Miracle, and giving Token of a Present GOD. Gospel to the poor He preacheth, Will not break the bruised reed, And with holy Power He teacheth-Is not this the CHRIST indeed? He will heal us and enlighten, He will teach us Wisdom's ways, He will calm the storms that frighten, He will give us songs of praise.

Uerles.

Lift the high Gates everlafting, O ye Doors, be opened wide, CHRIST, the LORD, to us is hafting, In our hearts He would abide.

God forbid that I should glory, save in the Cross of our Lord Jesus Christ.

CROSS of fhame ! our boaft and glory, Darkeft, brighteft fcene in ftory : Through hatred felleft, love the pureft, Beft of Bleffings thou fecureft.

Strange, mysterious contradiation ! Death of fin in Crucifixion Of the Sinless ! and Salvation In the Just ONE's condemnation !

Joy expressed from Love's heart-bleeding! Peace and reft from wrath proceeding! Out of gloom the true Light springing, And from the Tomb the new Life bringing!

His Crofs from fhame all fhame hath taken, His Crofs from wrath doth Hope awaken, His Crofs the power of Death hath broken; O Crofs, of Love divinest token!

Js there no Balm in Gilead ?

S there no Balm in Gilead then, is there no Healer nigh?

No freshening Spring to cheer the waste so desolate and dry?

Hath Hope's dear vision vanished for ever from thy sight,

And darkness fallen around thee, the very gloom of night?

And feems thy Soul forfaken, her every Bleffing flown,

No foothing for her forrow, and nowhere to make her moan?

- Yet, stay : the Cross thou bearest thus hath first been borne for thee;
- JESUS Himfelf did hang thereon, thy Life and Cure to be.
- For thine own ease He bare it all, the Scourge and piercing Thorn,

The Nailing and the Bruifing, the Denial, Shame, and Scorn,

- Darknefs and Defolation deep, and Pangs beyond thy thought,
- And all for thy Soul's healing these fad Agonies were wrought.
- Upon His Crofs He yearned for thee, for thee His Heart-ftrings brake;

Himfelf of all forfaken, He could not thee forfake.

- Then ever more, when chastenings fore thine inmost spirit wring,
- Say-My Beloved is crucified, and I to Him will cling.
- How fhall I fing thy holy Love, dear Paffion of my LORD?

Or how thy mystic Virtue shall I worthily record?

- Thou art the Spring of all our hope, the Balfam of our woes,
- The Solace of our yearnings, and the Bower of our repose :
- True Paradife of all delights, fince joy of grief is born;
- For as the flowers but close at night to ope more fresh with morn,
- So He Who wept and bled for us, and bowed in earthly gloom,
- Now makes those Sorrows our bright Bliss, those Wounds our joyous Home.
- Here is a Covert from the storm when winds and waves arise,
- A Shadow in the scorching noon, a Light in starless skies,
- A Staff upon the rugged road, a Shield when foes affail,
- A Charm Divine against Whose Might no evil can prevail;

132 Js there no Balm in Gilead ?

- For where the Cross of JESUS is, is Peace, and there alone;
- And 'neath that Banner of His Love He gathereth His Own :
- And thou who wilt be JESUS', must not grudge thy portion small
- In His own bitter Chalice, Who once for thee drained it all.
- Thou know'st He went not up to Joy, but first He suffered Pain,
- And all the felfsame Path must tread, who that His Blis would gain :
- Is aught too wearifome or hard for JESUS' fake to bear?
- While He is crowned with Thorns, wilt thou a crown of roses wear?
- Lo ! this good Crojs He offers thee, it is thy very Life ;
- Anoint with holy Unction, it will aid thee in the ftrife;
- 'Tis hallowed by thy SAVIOUR'S Touch, Who hung on it for thee,
- And Love's fweet might shall make it light, and win the victory.
- Draw near, thou reft and drooping Heart, draw near, and lift thy gaze
- To Him Who yearns with outstretched Arms thee from thy grief to raife :

Commendation of a Christian Soul. 133

- Draw near, and clinging close beneath thy SAVIOUR'S Bleeding Heart,
- Tell o'er each throb of that deep Woe in which thou haft a part ;
- Tell o'er each Drop of dear Life-Blood which ebbs for thee so fast,
- And all thy weary heart-aching upon that true Love cast:
- In JESUS' Cross and Passion is the Medicine of thy Soul,
- Yea, there is Balm in Gilead, and a Healer to make whole.

Commendation of a Christian Soul.

NTO Thy Hands, O LORD,

This precious Soul we give, A jewel, 'mid Thy gliftening Hoard Of quickened ftones to live:

Now let Thy mild Fraternal Eyes Our darling deign to recognize, A work of Thy creative Mould, A Sheep of Thine Apoftles' Fold, A Sinner from the fiery flood Redeemed by Thine own Flefh and Blood.

Receive, with Arms outfpread, A Prize that cost Thee dear ! "Tis Easter round this dying bed When our true Life draws near !

134 Commendation of a Christian Soul.

The thought of Thy forfaken Tomb With brightness cheers this awful gloom; The stifling, sickening airs of death Are freshened by Thine odorous Breath; And Hades' gates are glorified At sight of Him that lives, and died.

Out of this world of tears,

O Chriftian Soul, depart! Farewell to pain and grief and fears,

And wants that rend the heart ! Go thou where these can come no more, Within the Cherub-guarded door, Nor dread to change a world like this For quiet deepening into Blifs, For Eden's dwellings calm and fair---Pass forth and take thy portion there!

Out of this world of fin,

O Chriftian Soul, depart ! The Stainlefs call thee; pafs thou in,

Full-pardoned as thou art ! O Crown of joys ! no more to ftray, No more to take thy own wild way, No more thy deareft Friend to leave, No more His Loving SPIRIT grieve, What promife fweet or boon fecure Can match those Words—'I make thee pure ?'

Now let the LORD arife And put thy foes to flight !

The Epiphany.

Let all the immortal Panoplies Array thee in their might ! Fenced round about by holieft things, From Satan fcreened by Angel-wings, To GOD Who made thee, GOD Who bought, And GOD Whofe Grace thy cleanfing wrought, That Hell no part in thee fhould claim— Go forth, fweet Soul, in JESUS' Name !

The Epíphany.

EYOND the barren Mountain-range Where Hor lifts up its facred head, And buried lies in mystery strange, As years work out their filent change, The City of the dead.

Where proud Euphrates day by day Winds through the plain, or fleeping lies, The watching Magi nightly pray, And feek the future's hidden way From planet-lighted skies.

Through the unclouded midnight air On vaft Infinity's dark page, With deepeft fkill and conftant care, They read the golden letters there That wax not old with age.

The Epíphany.

Lo! as they gaze with deep intent, A Star more brilliant than the reft, The Herald of fome great Event, Moves through the gilded firmament Onward towards the weft.

Then came the found Tradition brought From Peor's top in days of old, What time the Seer entranced caught Prophetic Power, and Spirit-taught The future did unfold.

A Sceptre shall from Israel rife, A Star from Jacob doubly bleft, And now before their wondering eyes The brilliant Meteor walks the skies Still onward toward the weft.

Where'er it leads, that fiery Light Unhidden by the blaze of day, And marking with intenfer might The darknejs of the deeper night, They follow on the way,

With morning's blufh, when funfets fade, On over rock and fteep and wild, By Palm and Cedar tree and fhade, Till in the homely Manger laid They find the Royal CHILD.

The Epíphany.

Intruding doubts away they fling, Unheeding the unwonted ftir, They from their coftly treafures bring Free Offerings for the Infant King, Gold, Frankincenfe and Myrrh.

Gold fhadows forth His Royalty, While Frankincenfe His Priesthood shows, And Myrrh that He shall buried be— And so the wondrous Mystery With deeper meaning grows.

Oh! for fome Heavenly Light enfhrined In GoD's dark Ways, or holy Word To break upon each erring mind With Spirit power, that all might find The SAVIOUR, CHRIST, the LORD.

Till walking in a living way To holier purpofe we arife, And on His Altar day by day Our thoughts and beft affections lay, A willing Sacrifice.

Meditation of a Faithful Soul: from the Latin.

Of Contempt of the World.

HEN I fee with heartfelt pain All this world defiled remain, All this world but makes my heart With concern and anguifh fmart.

When the Spirit pure and fair Thinks how vain is earthly care, For its fafety it will figh And from worldly care will fly.

When the mind ferene and pure Finds no worldly things fecure, Left with them the mind fhould fall, Carefully it flies from all.

When in earnest thought I find Worldly hope so false and blind, To a firmer hope I turn, Earthly hope I scorn to learn.

Worldly care when I regard, How depraved it is, how hard ! Him who owns its power I find Callous both in heart and mind.

When the world's applause I meet, Think of all its vain deceit, Fraud and worldly praife and fame Ear and heart will deem the same.

When I think of this world's fruit, Grief and woe in each pursuit, All its fruit is but a curse, Nothing than the world is worfe.

When the world's gay flowers are (pread, And I think what fcent they fhed, In them fo much grief I fee, Perfumes none they yield to me.

When I think of life's short days, And their vain and giddy ways, Light grows weighty then and strong, And the short is found full long.

Of the Fear of Death.

MHEN I dwell on Death's dread day, Calling me from life away, With deep fear am I posselfed, Then my Soul can take no reft.

When I think I am but dust, And that quickly die I must, Then with anxious fear possed Cold as ashes turns my breast.

When I think, condemned to die, What will be my destiny, Well may I be filled with fear, Unprepared to view it near.

How I dread that wrathful Day, Day of terror and difmay, Day of anguish, grief and woe, Vengeful Day on fin below.

Of the Coming of the Judge.

OW I tremble, filled with fear, As the future Judge draws near ; All shall be laid open, plain, Nought shall unavenged remain.

Who among ft us shall not fear, When he fees that Judge appear, And before Him raging Fire, Scathing (inners in His Ire?

From the Heavens He comes to view, Judge and Witness, faithful, true ; Nor shall He, approaching near, Hold His Peace, nor pause, nor fear :

Justly judge, nor will He spare, Favour none may hope to share, Not with gold can He be bought, Nor by prayer may then be fought.

He shall judge the Nations round, He shall save men guiltles found; But the strong shall feel His Power, Slaves to riches dread that hour.

All who pleasure sought and proved, Then shall curse those joys they loved ; All who worldly lived and vain Shall with Souls condemned remain.

What shall then the sinful do? What shall then self-love pursue? O what works (hall then avail When all power to work (hall fail?

Then shall hidden deeds appear, All past works be plain and clear, All shall tremble, high and low, Till their final doom they know.

Then will forrow come too late To avert the finner's fate, And to weep for fins and wail Then will prove of no avail.

Of the Sinner's Punishment.

HOW dreadful when that Word On the Left ' Depart ' is heard, While the great King on the Right Shall with ' Come' the Just invite.

Then shall every hope be past, And ' to-morrow' end at last; Each to torments doomed to go, No release shall ever know.

Burnt in Flames, yet not confumed, Food for worms and reptiles doomed, He in pain shall writhe and turn Who Salvation would not earn.

O what foul Tormentors then Tear and torture finful men, And unfparing Demons dire Sins avenge in endless Fire.

O how fad, that then too late Sinners moan their hopelefs fate, None can then their anguifh heal, When Hell's quenchlefs Flames they feel.

O Thou great Celeftial King ! Grace and fuccour to us bring, From thefe tortures fave us free, May we ever reft in Thee.

Of the Joy of the Bleffed.

HEN I think what fhall befall After death the Virtuous all, And how firm will ftand the Juft, Greatly I rejoice and truft.

For the Day is near when those Just and Good shall find repose, When their perfecutors cease And the Patient reign in peace.

O that Day of Life and Light, Day of unheard Glory bright, When grim Death itfelf fhall die, And the difmal night fhall fly.

Lo! the great, long wifhed for King Now Salvation haftes to bring, Now will at the just One's prayer Heavenly Bliss for him prepare.

Heavenly King, He hastens now; At His Coming all must bow, Judge and Witness, great and free, He Whom every eye shall see.

He will come and not delay, And His Glory will difplay, To reward the fuffering Juft, Who in Him have placed their truft.

O how happy! O how fweet! When those Souls shall Jesus meet, Whom in life they truly loved, And His faithful Servants proved.

Then with gracious Look and Word, Speaking, JESUS shall be heard;

Thus His Love shall utterance find In the sight of all mankind—

You who have your Faith maintained, And with Me have firm remained, You who bore for Me and fought, See the good you long have fought.

See the Kingdom promised you, Though concealed till now from view; Behold, posses, and reign secure, Ever shall your Joy endure.

Then the Just shall in amaze Speak with holy joy and praise, And reply exultingly, Praising what they wondering see—

To our GOD be thanks and praife! What we hoped for all our days, Now we fee and now poffefs; CHRIST our LORD we praife and blefs!

O how fweet, how bleft our fate, Throughout life the world to hate; Sad and bitter would it prove If the world had gained our love.

Happy those who mourned and wept, And their Souls in patience kept, Those to whom the world gave pain Now in endless Bliss shall reign.

The Child Chrift on the Crols. 145

There shall dwell no grief, nor fear; None shall ever shed a tear; Nor shall want; nor age, nor care, Nor defect be ever there.

There shall reign eternal Peace, Holy Joy shall never cease, There shall be the flower of youth, There Salvation's crown and truth.

None the Rapture can conceive, Nor the perfect Joy believe In Heaven's Glory to remain, And with Angels ever reign.

To that Realm Thy Children call, O Thou righteous Judge of all; Thee we feek, on Thee rely, Thee implore with frequent cry.

The Child-Chrift on the Crofs : an Anticipation of Calbary.

IS Face is flushed with Boyhood's glow, His earnest Eyes are raised to Heaven, Nothorn has scarred that bloodless Brow, Nor Hands nor Feet by nails are riven.

146 The Child Chrift on the Crols.

They have not bared His Limbs in fcorn, Nor stripped Him of His seamless Vest; No scourge His Virgin Flesh has torn, No soldier's spear has gashed His Breast.

No crowds prefs round with ribald cry To mock the Helplefs SAVIOUR'S woes; Why bides He there fo patiently? Why hangs the CHILD-CHRIST on the Crofs?

Not yet are poured the bitter Tears, The Blood to fave a world undone, And of those three and thirty years Scarce the first twelve their course have run.

Oh why that Self-made Cross embrace? Why antedate the coming strife?

Why blend with Boyhood's dawning grace Dread shadows of a tortured Life?

The Chalice steeped in this world's sin, The Sweat of dark Gethsemane, The burning Thirst our Souls to win, The Baptism of the bleeding Tree;

The Traitor in the midnight gloom, The guilty Herod's murderous fears, The fhout that hails the unrighteous doom Creep onward with the creeping years;

They come, they come, my SAVIOUR LORD, The fnares around Thy path are fet,

The Child Chrift on the Crofg. 147

The foeman's darts against Thee stored, They come, but oh, they come not yet. Not yet in pride, or hate, or fcorn A tyrant world has rifen to flay; Oh, wherefore (hroud Life's early morn In storms that wrap the setting day? Victim of Love, in Manhood's prime Thou will ascend the Cross to die; Why hangs the CHILD before His time Stretched on that Bed of agony? No thorn-wreath crowns My Boyifh Brow, No scourge has dealt its cruel smart, In Hands and Feet no nail-prints show, No spear is planted in My Heart. They have not fet Me for a Sign Hung bare beneath the funless fky, Nor mixed the draught of gall and wine To mock My dying Agony. The livelong night, the livelong day, My Child, I travail for thy good, And for thy fake I hang alway Self-crucified upon the Rood. To witness to the living Truth, To keep thee pure from sin's alloy, I cloud the sunshine of My Youth : The MAN must suffer in the Boy.

Visions of unrepented sin, The forfeit crown, the eternal loss, Lie deep My forrowing Soul within, And nail My Body to the Cross.

The livelong night, the livelong day, A CHILD upon that Crofs I reft; All night I for My Children pray, All day I woo them to My Breaft.

Long years of toil and pain are Mine Ere I be lifted up to die, Where cold the Pajchal moonbeams jhine At noon on darkened Calvary.

The thorn-wreath then will pierce My Brow, The nails will fix Me to the Tree; But I fhall hang, as I do now, Self-crucified for Love of thee.

The Signals of Levi.

Signal the First.

HERE is light on Hebron now, Hark to the trumpet-din ! Day dawns on Hebron's brow, Let the Sacrifice begin !

The Signals of Levi.

Hear ye the gathering found ? How the lute and harp rejoice, 'Mid the war of Oxen bound, And the Lamb's befeeching voice! This day both the Prince and Prieft Will hold, at Salem's shrine, A high and a haughty Feaft Of Flesh and the ruddy Wine. For a perilous hour is fled, And the fear is vain at last, Though foretold by Sages dead, And fworn by the Prophets past. They faid that a mortal Birth Even now would a Name unfold That should rule the wide wide earth, And quench the Thrones of old. But no sound, nor voice, nor word, The tale of travail brings; Not an infant-cry is heard In the Palaces of Kings. Blossom and Branch are bare On Jeffe's stately Stem ; So they bid fwart Edom wear Fallen Ifrael's diadem How they throng the cloiftered ground ! 'Mid Judah's shame and sin ; Hark to the trumpet found, Let the Sacrifice begin !

The Signals of Levi.

Signal the Second.

HERE is light on Hebron's towers ! Day dawns o'er Jordan's ftream, And it floats where Bethlehem's bowers Of the bleffed morning dream.

Yet it wakes no kingly halls, It cleaves no purpled room, The foft calm radiance falls On a cavern's vaulted gloom

But there, where the Oxen reft When the weary day is done, How that Maiden-Mother's Breaft Thrills with her Awful Son!

A Cave ! where the Fatlings roam, By the ruddy Heifer trod, Yea, the Mountain's rifted home Is the Birth-place of a GoD !

This is He ! the mystic Birth By the Sign and Voice foretold; He shall rule the wide wide earth And quench the Thrones of old !

The CHILD of Judah's line, The Son of Abraham's fame, Arife, ye Lands! and fhine With the Bleffed JESUS' Name.

The Signals of Levi.

This is the glorious dawn; So fades the night of fin; Lo! the gloom of Death is gone, Let the Sacrifice begin!

Signal the Third.

O! Watchman, what of the night? Tell! Chriftian Soldier, tell! Are Hebron's towers in fight? Haft thou watched and warded well?

Yea, we have paced the wall Till the Day-ftar's glimmering birth, And we breathed our trumpet-call When the funlight walked the earth.

What faweft thou with the dawn? Say! Chriftian Warder, fay! When the mifts of night were gone, And the hills grew foft with day?

We beheld the morning fwell Bright o'er the eastern Sea, Till the rushing sunbeams fell Where the westward Waters be !

City and bulwark lay Rich with the orient blaze; And rocks, at the touch of day, Gave out a found of praife!

The Tree of Life.

No hill remained in cloud, There lurked no darkling glen; And the Light of GOD is loud Upon every tongue of men!

There shall never more be night With this eternal Sun ! There be Hebrons many in sight, And the Sacrifice is done !

The Tree of Life.

From an old Latin Poem.

HERE is a fpot, of men believed to be Earth's centre, and the place of Adam's grave,

And here a flip that from a barren Tree

Was cut, Fruit sweet and falutary gave— Yet not unto the tillers of the land; That blessed Fruit was culled by other hand.

The shape and fashion of the Tree attend :

From undivided stem at first it sprung; Thence in two arms its branches did outfend,

Like fail-yards whence the flowing sheet is hung, Or as a yoke that in the furrow stands, When the tired steers are loosened from their bands.

Three days the flip from which this Tree should fpring Appeared as dead-then suddenly it bore, (While earth and Heaven stood awed and wondering)

Harvest of vital Fruit ; the fortieth more Beheld it touch Heaven's fummit with its height, And shroud its facred head in clouds of light.

Yet the same while it did put forth below

Branches twice fix, thefe too with fruit endued,

Which stretching to all quarters might bestow

Upon all nations medicine and food, Which mortal men might eat, and eating be Sharers henceforth of Immortality.

But when another fifty days were gone,

A Breath Divine, a mighty ftorm of Heaven On all the Branches fwiftly lighted down,

To which a rich nectareous tafte was given, And all the heavy leaves that on them grew Diftilled henceforth a fweet and Heavenly dew.

Beneath that Tree's great shadow on the plain

A Fountain bubbled up, whofe lymph ferene Nothing of earthly mixture might diftain;

Fountain so pure not anywhere was seen In all the world, nor on whose marge the earth Put flowers of such unfading beauty forth. And thither did all people, young and old,

Matrons and Virgins, rich and poor, a crowd Stream ever, who, whenas they did behold

Those branches with their golden Burden bowed, Stretched forth their hands, and eager glances threw

Toward the Fruit distilling that sweet dew.

But touch they might not these, much less allay

Their hunger, howfoe'er they might defire, Till the foul tokens of their former way

They had washed off, the dust and sordid mire, And cleansed their bodies in that holy Wave, Able from every spot and stain to save.

But when within their mouths they had received Of that immortal Fruit the guft Divine,

Straight of all sickness were their Souls relieved,

The weak grew strong; and tasks they did decline

As overgreat for them they shunned no more,

And things they deemed they could not bear they bore.

But woe, alas! some daring to draw near

That facred Stream, did prefently retire, Drew wholly back again, and did not fear

To ftain themselves in all their former mire, That Fruit rejecting from their mouths again, Not any more their Medicine, but their bane.

An Dde of Manzoni on the Patibity. 155

Oh bleffed they, who not withdrawing fo, Firft in that Fountain make them pure and fair, And who from thence unto the Branches go,

With Power upon the Fruitage hanging there : Thence by the Branches of the lofty Tree Ascend to Heaven—The Tree of Life oh, see!

O'er crags and hollows leaping,

A course resistless keeping,

The nethermost of evil He reached, and from its level Could rear his neck no more.

Who then among the inheritors Of malison from Heaven

Durst move the far-off Holy ONE

That they might be forgiven? Who made new Leagues eternal? Who forced the Foe infernal

His prizes to reftore?

Behold ! a CHILD is born for us : A Son to us is granted : If but His Eyelid quivereth

The hofts of Hell are daunted : His Hand to man He tenders. He raises him to splendours Beyond his former lot.

From Palace-courts ethereal

A Fountain is descending, And through the fiffures briary

Its living stream extending : Trunks are with honey flowing, And flowers there are blowing

Where life or fap was not.

O Son, to Whofe Original No age an epoch setteth, Eternal, Whom the Eternal ONE Like unto Him begetteth,

An Dde of Manzoni on the Patibity. 157

Who art, Whofe Comprehension Exceeds the world's extension, Whofe Word the world hath made—

Didst Thou Thyself humiliate

To wear this nature earthy? What excellence could render it Of fo much Bounty worthy? O Thy deep Counfels grounded

On Mercy, what unbounded

Compaffion they difplayed !

This Day He's born : to Ephrathah That place foretold, the Maiden, The Glory unto Ifrael,

With Him ascended laden : She to the Same doth owe Him, Who promised to bestow Him

Thence, when He comes on earth.

The Mother incomparable

In Swaddling clothes enlaced Him Of pooreft fort, and tenderly

Within the Manger placed Him : Then worshipped, O the greatly Favoured, That GOD That lately

From her pure self had birth.

The Meffenger Angelical,

That had to bear to mortals These wondrous tidings, halted not At rich or great men's portals :

158 An Dde of Manzoni on the Pativity.

But Shepherds world-neglected And fervent he respected; And showed a sudden blaze,

In which, around him clustering From all the nighted region, They faw Celestial Ministers, A flying, flaming Legion, That in their Heavenly measure, And fired with zeal and pleasure, Were heard to sing God's Praise.

Returning to the Firmament They ceafed not from their finging, Which through the clouds was iffuing Fainter and fainter ringing; Till higher yet afcended The facred Hymns, and ended For thofe Believers' ears.

Now rife the watchers fortunate, And feek without delaying

For that abode of poverty,

Which well they find difplaying The Truth foretold, where fwaddled And in the Manger cradled

The LORD of Heaven appears.

Sleep, Heavenly BABE, fleep quietly : No florms fhall murmur o'er Thee, That went like Thy Van-cavalry O'er guilty earth before Thee, Let flumber still posses Thee, And waking not distress Thee, Nor weeping gall Thine Eye.

Sleep, Heavenly ONE: the multitudes Have heard not yet Thy Story, But they shall be Thy Heritage Hereafter and Thy Glory; And in abode so lowly, And hid in dust, their holy Lawgiver shall descry.

Thou gavest me no Kis.

HOU gavest me no Kifs, JESUS, my Master, oft I sadly thought! Perchance Thou choosest to be found unsought

And I was ever feeking! Yet in this Methought, I cannot change; and fhould I mifs Thee on Thy Way, yet there I will abide And track Thy Foot-prints to the dark ftream's fide.

Thou gavest unto me No Sign! I knew no loving Secret told As oft to men beloved, and I must hold My peace when these would speak of converse high;

Yet would I, JESUS, Master, still be nigh When these would speak, and in the words rejoice Of them who listen to the Bridegroom's Voice.

Thou gavest unto me

No goodly Gift, no Pearl of price untold, No Signet ring, no Ruby shut in gold, No Chain about my neck to wear for pride, For love no Token in my breast to hide;

- Yea! these perchance from out my careles hold
- Had flipped; perchance fome robber fhrewd and bold
- Had fnatched them from me ! So Thou didst provide

For me, my Master kind, from day to day, And in this world, Thine Inn, thou badst me stay And faidest, "What thou spendest, I will pay."

I never heard Thee fay, "Bring forth the Robe for this My Son, the beft !" Thou gavest not to me as unto guest Approved, a festal Mantle rich and gay; Still singing, ever singing, in the cold Thou leavest me without Thy Door to stay, And the night draweth on, the Day is old, And Thou hast never said, "Come in, My Friend:" Yet once, yea! twice, methinks, Thy Love did send Declension and Revival.

IE to thy root, fweet Flower ! If fo GOD wills, die even to thy root, Live there awhile an uncomplaining, mute Blank life, with darknefs wrapped about thy head. Oh, fear not for the filence round thee fpread; This is no Grave, though thou among the dead Be counted, but the Hiding-place of Power :

Die to thy root, fweet Flower !

Spring from thy root, fweet Flower ! When fo GOD wills, fpring even from thy root; Send through the earth's warm breaft a quickened fhoot,

Spread to the funfhine; fpread unto the fhower, And lift into the funny air thy dower Of bloom and odour; life is on the plains And in the woods a found of birds and rains That fing together; lo! the winter's cold Is paft, fweet fcents revive, thick buds unfold. Be thou, too, willing in the Day of Power;

Spring from thy root, fweet Flower!

Death.

N Spring the green leaves shoot, In Spring the bloss fall, With Summer falls the fruit, The leaves in Autumn fall; Contented from the bough They drop; leaves, bloss now And ripened fruit, the warm earth takes them all.

Thus all things ask for rest,

- A Home above, a Home beneath the fod : The Sun will feek the West, The Bird will feek its nest,
 - The Heart another Breast

Whereon to lean ; the Spirit feeks its GOD.

Vespers.

When I have faid my quiet fay, When I have fung my little fong, How sweetly, sweetly dies the day

The valley and the hill along; How fweet the Summons " Come away" That calls me from the bufy throng !

- I thought befide the water's flow Awhile to lie beneath the leaves :
- I thought in Autumn's harvest glow To rest my head upon the sheaves;

But, lo! methinks the day was brief And cloudy; flower, nor fruit, nor leaf I bring—and yet accepted, free, And bleft, my LORD, I come to Thee.

What matter now for promise lost, Through blast of Spring or Summer rains? What matter now for purpose crossed, For broken hopes and wasted pains; What if the Olive little yields, What if the Grape be blighted? Thine The Corn upon a thousand fields, Upon a thousand hills the Vine.

Thou loveft ftill the Poor ; oh, bleft In poverty beloved to be !
Lefs lowly is my choice confeffed, I love the rich in loving Thee !
My Spirit bare before Thee ftands ; I bring no gift, I afk no fign ;
I come to Thee with empty hands The furer to be filled from Thine.

A Legend of S. Peter.

LL of you shall soon forsake Me—One already hath betrayed— So the LORD addressed His loved Ones; only One an answer made.

- Simon Peter, felf-reliant, yet the strongest in the Faith,
- Anfwered—Master, I go with Thee both to prifon and to death.
- Soon, too foon, he rued that anfwer! Now, by God's great Mercy bleft,
- Clings he clofer to the SAVIOUR thrice denied, yet thrice confeffed.
- And for Him Who knoweth all things, knows he loves Him, will he keep
- Until death that last Injunction, CHRIST'S Command, to feed His Sheep.
- Toils he on with patient labour through the work and wail of years,
- But though still in CHRIST rejoicing, sheds he still repentant tears.
- Still whene'er the bird of morning, ere the day break, founds his call,
- Up S. Peter at the fummons rifes—kneels to weep his fall.
- So, though holiest aspirations on life's work our hearts may fix,
- Still the tears of deep contrition with the nobleft aims must mix.
- Now at length, his miffion ended, in a prifon he must lie,

- Where the foes he braved have thrown him, captive, and condemned to die.
- But the brave and faithful Servant, eager yet to work for all,
- Cannot reft in patient waiting 'neath that dreary dungeon-wall.
- Stealthily he leaves his prifon in the filence of the night,
- Though no Angel now attends him fent from Heaven to aid his flight :
- Yet the massive gates of iron yield unto his trembling hands-
- What is this? Can fight deceive him? CHRIST, his LORD, before him ftands.
- Joy and wonder overwhelming, heart and head before Him bow,
- Scarce his lips can form the queftion-Mafter, whither goeft Thou?
- Falls the hope that erst had thrilled him, CHRIST with him might there abide---
- Peter, I to Rome am wending; there, I must be crucified !
- Then, as once when at Emmaus in the Breaking of the Bread,
- He before His two Disciples spake the Word and vanished,

166 A Legend of S. Peter.

- So e'en now He spake to Simon, spake, and vanished at the Word,
- Leaving him transfixed in wonder at the tidings he had heard.
- Ponders he—Though He redeemed us by His Death of shame and pain,
- Though fubdued is Death's dominion must He fuffer all again?
- No! 'Twas once for all He suffered, by His Death to make us free;
- But His Followers still may bear Him : He must die again in me.
- I who late have left my prifon, feared to fuffer for His Name,
- Have I thus again denied Him? Coward spirit! blush for shame.
- Have I then in deed belied Him, spurned the holy Truth's defence ?
- .Oh, the act of finful weaknefs! Satan! Tempter! get thee hence.
- Now, O LORD, would I confess Thee with no felf-confiding breath;
- LORD, I love Thee : take me with Thee both to prifon and to death.
- Humbled, yet in hope exultant, stricken, yet of fear bereft,

- Turns he back a willing captive to the dungeon he had left.
- With the iron chain they bind him, bear him prisoner into Rome :
- Ah! they little reck they lead him unto his eternal Home.
- One more Victim stands beside him, fellow-witness to the Faith,
- Who, for love of his Dear SAVIOUR, will endure the pains of death.
- Saints of GOD he perfecuted till he heard his Master's Call,
- Then with holy Zeal he laboured more abundantly than all.
- Now before the Crofs S. Peter stands confessing bold and free,
- Speaks the thought that feethes within him—Is this privilege for me?
- No! myfelf I will not liken to the LORD Whom once I (purned ;
- Of His Death I am not worthy; downward let my head be turned.
- Thus he fuffers-yet, who knoweth what Divine Support is nigh?
- Who fhall fay what golden Visions float before that closing eye?

An Easter Carol.

Who shall guess what inward rapture stays that short and gasping breath,

While the pallid brow is moiftened with the chilly dews of Death?

Who fhall doubt, the warfare over, on his Mafter's Breaft he lies ;

Face to face doth there confess Him 'mid the Joys of Paradise!

An Easter Carol.

HEY bound him well in the dungeon cell,

His father's best-loved son,

And the iron dole into Joseph's soul Its bitter way hath won :

But faith and truth have gained him ruth And loofed the tyrant's chain,

And the exile lone to Egypt's throne From prifon comes to reign.

The SON of the FATHER, Almighty to fave,

Was laid for three days in the heart of the grave,

- But the fetters which held Him no longer may bind,
- And He reigneth to-day over ranfomed mankind.

He laid him down in Gaza town, The forceful Nazarite,

And the heathen guard kept watch and ward To flay him at morning-light : But at midnight he roje from the midjt of his foes, No longer would he ftay,

And to Hebron's hill of his own strong will He carried their gates away.

The Nazarene Captive Whom Hell had enfnared, Around Whom the hofts of the Evil One glared, Hath gone from among them in conquering state, And broken in pieces their bars and their gate.

O now His rolling chariot wheels Lead bound captivity, And where His Presence He reveals His people bow the knee. He takes to Him a priestly Bride, And He Himself is glorified, And clad in white and gold: He sitteth on the royal seat, And all the nations at His Feet Lay tribute manifold. The riddle erewhile (poken, May now be read with ease, The flaughtered lion's token, The honey and the bees. To-day in full completeness The mystery stands good, Since from the strong comes Sweetness, And from the eater, Food.

Light the clearest, Light the dearest, Who our inward darkness cheerest

With Thy cloud-diffolving Ray: By Thine Advent men are mended, Sin departs, her empire ended,

And fin's ruft is wiped away.

Knowledge of the Truth Thou foweft; Thou the road of Justice showest, And the pleasant paths of Peace: Far from hearts perverse Thou sliest,

But, where Goodness is, suppliest Access to Thy Mysteries.

Nothing dark where Thou explainest; Nothing foul where Thou remainest;

Thy pervading Prefence bright Wakes exultant Spirit-voices ; Confcience feelingly rejoices In the cleannefs of Thy Light.

Thou canst render heart-strings tender, And expellest, where Thou dwellest,

Clouds of heaviness and gloom : Flaming ever, burning never, Hallowed fires from pain deliver

Human Souls, where Thou dost come.

Intellects that erewhile flumbered, With a deadening cruft encumbered,

Quicken in Thy glorious Light : Into Speech-divine Thou mouldest Tongues, and lovingly upholdest

Hearts made ready for the right.

Help of Souls for fuccour groaning, Comforter of mourners moaning,

Refuge of the friendless poor, Teach us to cast off the leaven Of this earth : to Thine own Heaven

Every erring love restore; Clear from taint what wrong hath blighted, Reconcile the difunited,

Be our safeguard evermore!

Thou who once, in visitation, Strength and lofty Consolation

To Thy trembling Church didst send, Visit, if it be Thy Pleasure, Even us, and in like measure

All who at Thine Altars bend.

Equal Majesty and Power Stand the everlasting Dower

Of the GODHEAD—THREE in ONE : Thou, the Third, art rightly reckoned Equal with the First and Second ;

Ordered scale existeth none.

The Advent Antiphons.

O Sapientia.

THOU, the Effential WISDOM, Who dost proceed

Eternal from the Eternal, in the Breaft Of the Great FATHER dwelling, ever bleft,

First Cause of all, and Crown of time's last deed ! Love's Sovereign purpose shines in Thee decreed Through void of ages making manifest,

In meafured Might harmonioufly expreffed, The unfeen Infinite, which does all things lead. Come! Quickly come! Thy Touch bids WISDOM [pring,

A stream of Grace from Nature's barren rock, To spread rich pastures for Thy wandering Flock. Come! Quickly come! enable us to bring Thanks meet for Heaven, to be accepted there : Thy WISDOM crowns us, if Thy Grace we share. O Adonai.

THOU who ever rulest Israel's Race

With Love still pledged to Abraham's faithful prayer:

In Sinai's bush, the Flame revealed Thy Care :

Thy Voice gives Light which clouds can ne'er efface.

Thy WORD calls forth a people full of Grace :

Why doubt we Thy Commands? Thy Might we bear,

Called from earth's chains Thy Laws pure robes to wear :

Cleanfed in Thy Name, we claim the children's place.

Come ! Quickly come ! Through fin's foul touch we pine :

And disobedience, wailing o'er her dead,

Finds pleasures wither where so'er she tread.

Come! Quickly come! stretch forth the Arm Divine!

In years of grief Obedience didft Thou learn : Redeemed Obedience waits for Thy Return.

O Radix Jesse.

THOU, the Root of Jeffe! Many an age Has trampled down Thy Stock with heedlefs mood!

- Yet was GoD's Truth Thy Guard: and aye, renewed,
- Thy Bloom shall cheer earth's briar-grown orphanage :

Kings shall fall prostrate and forget their rage, In filence by Thy fragrant Power subdued :

Nations shall flock to Thy blest folitude,

And claim in prayer GOD's promised Heritage.

Come ! Quickly come ! fpread wide Thy sheltering Grace !

Meek violets fed with tears are all our wealth :

- Love brings Thee all, and feeks Thy balmy Health.
- Come! Quickly come! Let Hope's imprisoned race
- Rife free and vigorous, tasting Thy soft Gale,
- And Love's bright form outfhine Time's cloudy veil!

O Clavis David.

THOU That beareft David's wondrous Key,

The Sceptre of united Ifrael!

No foe fhall enter where Thy Saints fhall dwell : Heaven's gates unfold their blifs to none but Thee : Men murmur at Thy Voice, but Thy Decree, Supreme in Power each flubborn heart to quell, Builds here on earth the Saintly citadel To fhine with Thine own Self for ever free. Come! Quickly come! fin shall be ours no more, Safe in Thy Sanctity! when scorners fly Shut out in darkness, hope and fear shall die.

Come ! Quickly come ! through Thee, Heaven's mystic door,

For Death's dark exile gain we GOD's true Light, For space-bound sense, existence infinite.

O Oriens.

THOU, the central Orb of righteous Love, Rifing in fulnefs of Eternal Light

On this our wintry world! Thy Radiance bright

Wakes the glad shout of Faith! Hope dwells above;

Thy Saints with holy lustre round Thee move, Stars of a new Creation, in the height

Of GOD's ordaining Counsel, as Thy Sight

Gives measured Grace to each, Thy Power to prove.

Come! Quickly come! and let Thy Beams difperse

The lingering taint of primal sin's defiling,

With kindling touch, transforming, reconciling.

Come! Quickly come! dispel fallen manhood's curse,

Till all our nature feels the eternal ray In Fellowship Divine of spotless Day O Rex Gentium.

THOU, the King of Nations, throned

On blissful height of bounteous Providence,

The Long-defired, Long-promised ! Man's offence Broke off a world from GOD : do Thou redeem ! Now glows Thy Majesty with nobler beam,

The Corner-stone of true Love's triumph, whence The flash of multiform Magnificence

Thrills through the fhrine of Life with jewelled freams !

Come! Quickly come! our cold dark stains efface! Thy Breath to GOD's pure Beauty raised our clay: Renewing Love shall that same Breath display.

Come! Quickly come! raife up Thy new-born race

From flumbrous apathy ! let Zeal confume

Each trace of earth, and Godlike gild the gloom.

O Emmanuel.

THOU, EMMANUEL, Who now doft hide In Substance of dependant Infancy Thine All-fufficing GODHEAD, finners flee, Our King and SAVIOUR! to Thy gentle Side. Hence bursts the Fount of Manhood Deified, Making us meet for GOD. O CHRIST, to Thee The gathering of the nations soon shall be,

178 The Transfiguration.

To own as Judge the SAVIOUR they denied.

Come ! Quickly come ! Bid their blind raging cease,

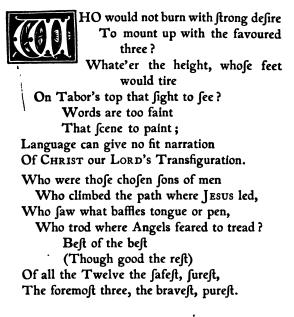

Joy of Thy Saints and Terror of Thy foes !

Arife to fave us and Thy Power disclose !

- Come! Quickly come! Thy Prefence gives us Peace!
- The bond of Saints Thy lonely Cradle brings,

And Hofts unfeen adore Thee King of kings.

The Transfiguration.

The Transfiguration. 179

O pass not by their honoured names; Peter the prompt to do and dare. The loving John, the faithful James Breathe with their LORD the mountain air. But mountain air And prospect fair, All, all are loft in wondrous gazing At JESUS' Form in brightness blazing. For, while he prayed in accents low, That Human Form became Divine; His Raiment glitters as the fnow, With Heavenly Glow His Features shine, Transfigured, bright, White as the light. But lo! while bending they adore Him, Two forms in Glory stand before Him; Moses the meek-from Sinai's height Who gave the Law 'mid thunders loud ; Elias-who in chariot bright Accending pierced the opening Cloud; The glorious two, Now fent to view JESUS the Radiance here refuming, Which erst He wore, ere Man's sad dooming. But not alone to view they came; High converse with their LORD and ours They held of suffering, death, and shame, Of triumph too o'er Satan's powers.

But where are ye Apostles three? A dizzy dimness o'er them creeping, They fank awhile, unconscious, sleeping. Awaking foon in wondering fear Peter, his brethren's mouth-piece, cried-'Tis good, 'tis bleffed to be here, Where, LORD, Thou deigneft to abide; With prayer and praise Three Tents we'll raife ; Three structures, reared with labour pious, For Thee, for Moses, and Elias. The random words escaped his tongue, (For he and they were fore afraid) Such Mystic Wonders round him hung, He scarce was conscious what he faid. While yet he spoke A bright Cloud broke In overshadowing gleams around them, And from the Cloud these Words astound them-This, This is My Beloved Son, To Whom, well-pleased, all Power I give; Hear Him (for He with Me is ONE) And from His Lips learn how to live-Down to the ground (As that high found Paffed from the Cloud, with tones o'erpowering) The listeners fell, in wonder cowering.

The Transfiguration. 181

How strange their thoughts what tongue can fay? Their terrors who can understand ? Till Jesus viewed them as they lay, And touched them with a tender Hand-Arife, my Friends, The Vision ends: Arife (He cried) and fear no longer, Arife with faith and courage stronger. With wakened fight in vain they ranged The fainted Two again to see; Alone with JESUS! all is changed : Yet found they all, Good LORD, in Thee; As down He led-Tell none (He faid) This wondrous Scene, till from Death's prifon The Son of MAN again is risen. Down from the Mount, fresh work of Love Soon claimed the SAVIOUR's healing Power; But John and James and Peter strove With hearts more zealous from that hour, To keep that Word They now had heard In folemn charge-with rapt reflection On Death, the Grave, the Resurrection.

A Hymn for the Holy-Days of the Church.

HE Christian must on Holy-days Abstain from all unlawful ways; From things forbidden he must cease, As hurtful to his Spirit's peace.

Repreffing all defires to roam, The Mind must keep itself at home; And, earthly thoughts expelling thence, Must bar the doors of flesh and sense.

Who fees not that fuch calm repofe A concentrated power bestows To worship, on His glorious Throne, The LORD, Who is our GOD alone?

The Intellect, the Memory, The Will, moreover, then fo free, With every faculty of Soul, Muft yield to His entire Controul.

We muft rejoice alone in GOD, And grieve to have provoked His Rod; And turn, with hope and holy fear, His gentle Words of Love to hear.

His Influence let us realize; His Absence fear; His Presence prize;

To Him, whate'er may happen, bring Each adverse and each prosperous thing.

More deeply cherisched be the thought Of what our Bleffed LORD has wrought In Gifts bestowed, or claimed again; And what His Promises contain.

He has our numerous fins forgiven; And, from His boundless Store in Heaven, Out Souls, renewed in Righteousness, He will with endless Riches bless.

The Gifts of Nature and of Grace Our Souls must now in filence trace; Think on the wicked's doom of woe, And what reward the Just shall know.

We must reflect what wondrous loss Our SAVIOUR suffered on the Cross, That we, redeemed from endless flame, Might be rewarded in His Name.

So alfo, in this thoughtful ftate, The mind must love to meditate With what serene and glorious rest The Citizens of Heaven are blest.

The very purpose of this Day, When servile works are put away, Is that the Soul may use her wings, And rise to gaze on Heavenly things.

Thus let us now ascend on high, And pierce by faith the orient sky; And see the Saints' rich Joy and Love, In the Jerusalem above.

With plenitude of Grace fupplied, Their happy Souls are fatisfied, Poffeffed of all they wifhed below, And freed from every mortal woe.

Within, without, and everywhere Celestial Glory fills them there; From GoD, their All, around them all Rays of immortal Splendour fall.

In freedom there, through wondrous Grace, They see His Beauty Face to face; And, filled with rapture at the sight, They love Him with intense delight.

From His bleft Countenance alone The Light of Glory is their own : The whole Celeftial Company Hence gather all they wifh to be.

O happier far than tongue can tell The blifsful City where they dwell, And where, in purity, they fee The Glory of the TRINITY !

Hence all the radiance of the fky, With all its focial harmony :

The Angels and the Saints above Drink from one Fount of glorious Love.

To praife with all their Spirit's might The FATHER of Eternal Light Is all their action—to be bleft In Him for ever, all their reft.

From this the thoughtful mind will fee, In reft or movement, it must be, Throughout the hours of Holy-days, Devoted to JEHOVAH'S Praise.

For Bleffings given while he lives, For those which GOD in promise gives, The Christian now in lively song Must praise the LORD with heart and tongue.

Who thus on holy Festival Is free upon His GOD to call, Knows best within himself the way To celebrate a Holy-day.

To us this knowledge while we live, King of Eternal Glory, give ; Then we in Heaven Thy Name will praife With Angels in immortal lays.

To Christ hanging on high.

OW with vivid defire In thine accents of fire, Voice in my Heart weeping, A new meafure try;

No longer lie sleeping; He heareth on high.

Mid vain talking merely, Diftinguifhed most clearly The words of emotion Contrite and fincere, The fong of devotion He loveth to hear.

This Wood is the token Of Faith never broken, Of Love never told,

Faith crying to me— Draw near and behold Where He hangeth for thee.

Here, fin ever hated Thou haft expiated, Thou, Lamb ever pureft, Of fin's mifery The burden endureft, Hope giving to me.

To Chrift hanging on high.

I living, adore Thee, I loving, implore Thee, Lamb ever faireft,

Beftow upon me, Of all Gifts the rareft, A Heart turned to Thee.

Make calm by a Word, This Heart tempest-stirred, The guilt far removed,

May I cry unto Thee---I have finned, most Beloved, Have pity on me.

Raife up cleanfed in brightnefs, This Soul in Death's likenefs, Sublime and fet free

In Thy Goodness immense, I groaning implore Thee For true penitence.

If fully beftowing Thy Grace to o'erflowing, Even here may the Spirit

Enraptured unfold Her wings, to inherit The Palace of gold.

Thou, bleffed Salvation, Doft give invitation,

The May-fide Crofs.

To unending Pleafure Doft draw me above, Where I beyond meafure May joy in Thy Love.

Thus while I behold Thee, Sweet Peace doth enfold me; I hope for the conquest, And ever to be In the rapture of Rest Abiding in Thee.

The May-fide Crofs.

í.

ILENT we refted where a towering Crofs On the dry fields of far Bavaria ftands;

And wide as man's illimitable loss,

Its all-embracing arms, like Love, expands.

Upon the wondrous fixture drooping low Its wooden weight, a Human Figure hung! That melancholy Form, I mark it now; That ghaftly Look, from dread endurance wrung.

Its Brow was crowned in mockery with thorn, That dimmed its calm compofure all with Blood; So deep, fo difficult the Paffion borne,

That suffering seemed to fill the impassive wood.

Age had not yet its heavy honours hung Upon that Afpect meek, and Godlike Form; Youthful, not His the vigour of the young, The foot to flee, or breaft to brave the florm— O great Example !—fuperhuman tie Fashioned in Heaven! love-chant of many parts By Angel chorus fung, while glad reply Echoes on earth from thous fand bleeding hearts ! Ah matchless Beauty! what compared to Thine The chiselled grace of young Antinous' form ? What wreath so graceful as the cruel spine? What chisel like Heaven's dreadful anger-florm?

When evening hangs her filver lamps on high; And ftill, when morning in the Eaft is fhining, That great white wondrous Figure marks the fky.

No Rizpah wipes that cold and clammy Brow; No fhield is thine againft the fiery fun; Thou that o'erfhadoweft all, unfhaded Thou Bear'ft the great ills of the fallen world alone!

Hard were it on fuch picture long to gaze, And not believe it Very CHRIST to be-

- True Sun, though shooting through a mist its rays; Dread Avatar, Incarnate DEITY.
- And Memory treasures still the mournful Figure; And Fancy opens wide her half-shut eye;

And Faith herself recruits her failing vigour At sight of that immortal Constancy.

There still It stands : no friendly form is nigh ; Only the way-worn Pilgrim kneeling down

With head reclined, but tearful upward eye, Forgetting in that Sorrow all his own.

There through the changing year the flars look forth,

And each above in filent glory fings;

Both when the winter strips the cold blue north, And when the west wind spreads its summer wings.

And fometimes haply as the pilgrim paffes,

While the dark wind pipes loud, the shadowy Form

Seems all to fwell and figh, while mournful maffes Come through the paufes of the driving ftorm.

Peace to fuch thoughts-

And yet be pardon mine, If fometimes all too fondly I may fix My penfive gaze where Love has fet her fhrine, Within thy blood-ftreaked boughs, mysterious Crucifix !

D quam Glorificum.

An Ancient Latin Poem.

BLISS beyond telling, To muse all alone, When the Spirit is dwelling Serene on its throne;

When the Bridegroom is near, Difcerned through a glass, Where no shadows of fear Cast a gloom as they pass.

Alas! that this gladnefs Comes feldom, foon flies; O'erclouded by fadnefs It fades and it dies: For life till the end Is a wearifome ftrife, And Man muft contend Againft ills that are rife.

Lo! Sin is prevailing, And waxes more bold;

While Love unavailing

Grows faithlefs and cold. From far and from near

Comes the Foe with a fhout : Within there is fear;

There are fightings without.

D quam Glorificum.

Oh! why 'mid my forrow Are gleams thus allowed, Which the grief of to-morrow Shall veil in its fhroud ? What is life at the beft But a burden of care, With feldom a reft From the weight of defpair ?

O Speck in creation, How can'ft thou complain, Though fore thy probation Of forrow and pain? Forgetting that life Is no feafon of eafe, But of watching and ftrife, Till the battle fhall ceafe.

As gold is made purer By trial of flame, My Son, fo grows furer Thy faith in My Name. I chaftife whom I love, It is writ in My Word, Nor are Servants above The lot of their LORD.

OME! let us wander by the filent beach Of this our mimic lake or inland fea, Type of the Haven where our Souls would be,

And learn the leffons which its waters teach, As all GoD's voicelefs Creatures ufe to preach.

We need not travel to the Holy Land,

To trace the facred print of JESUS' Feet,

Where, without ebb or flow, the wavelets beat With mystic murmur o'er the level fand Of Galilee's world-venerated strand.

Sweet are the Fountains of fair Jordan's Lake, Bitter the ocean-fprings of yon Sea-bay; O'er both, most bright, most blue, the sun-gleams play,

While fitful breezes folemn echoes wake, And oft the encircling crags in terror quake. GoD's Voice is heard in thunder underground; The rumbling, reeling earth, man's laft fole ftay, Labours with gape and heave to roll away; The feething billows, one huge tidal mound,

Pour their volcanic torrent far around.

Woe to Bethfaida ! to Chorazin woe !— Sad dirge of men's hearts failing them for fear At roaring fea and waves—thy doom is near; Repent, or elfe expect thine overthrow; Though high as Heaven, as Hell thou fhalt fink low.

Then all is calm and fmiling as before; The river cleaves the interlacing hills

With gentle flow, made mufical by rills From yonder fnowy peak's perennial flore, Where many a graffy fleep o'erhangs the flore.

And many a Ti-palm, many a tufted bush With bloffoms glimmering red through pendant leaves

Of creeping parafites, a garland weaves; And giant trunks their festooned branches push Above the tangled scrub and feathery rush.

And many a Fern-tree rears its lofty creft, Embowering leafy nooks of paler green

Than the deep umbrage of the foreft screen, Where birds of varied plumage shun their nest To bask in that sweet sunny realm of rest. Their notes, like filver chimes, fill all the grove With modulated mufic, rich and clear, Cheering the lonely fifher on the mere, Or where his net upon the rock is hove, While fportive fhoals glance harmlefs through the cove.

Here JESUS might have fed the famished hoft; Here wrought the Miracle of frantic swine; On yonder Mount, Transfigured, shone Divine; O'er yon calm waters roamed from coast to coast, Or hushed them with His Word, when tempest-tost.

The Gofpel is not written in a book, A tale that may be read and then forgot; Its work of Love and Truth endureth yet, Or in the filence of this defert nook, Or in the bufy hum we late forfook.

JESUS is everywhere, is very nigh; The Holy Land is in us and around; Grace blends with Nature, Earth with Heaven profound;

To them of loving heart and fingle eye Deep Sacraments all Creatures underlie.

Whofo is wife, like JESUS' Self, will blend The Active with the Contemplative Life;

Leave for awhile the city's cares and strife, In solitude his proud heart's knee to bend, And in the wilderness seek One True Friend. In calm or ftorm, in funfhine or in fhade, His Prefence will go with thee and give reft, Soothing the ftormy paffions of the breaft; Lo! I am with you always—fo He faid— Even to the end; 'tis I, be not afraid.

Wishes about Death.

WISH to have no wiftes left, But to leave all to Thee; And yet I wift that Thou shouldst will Things that I wish should be.

And these two wills I feel within, When on my death I muse: But, LORD! I have a death to die, And not a death to choose.

Why fhould I choofe ? for in Thy Love Moft furely I defcry

A gentler Death than I myfelf Should dare to afk to die.

But Thou wilt not difdain to hear What those few wishes are,

Which I abandon to Thy Love, And to Thy wifer Care.

Triumphant Death I would not ask, Rather would deprecate;

For dying Souls deceive themfelves Sooneft when most elate.

All Graces I would crave to have Calmly abforbed in one---

- A perfect forrow for my fins, And duties left undone.
- All Sacraments and Church-bleft things I fain would have around,
- A Priest beside me, and the hope Of Consecrated ground.
- I would the light of reason, LORD, Up to the last might shine,
- That my own hands might hold my Soul Until it paffed to Thine.
- And I would pass in silence, LORD, No brave words on my lips,
- Left pride should cloud my Soul, and I Should die in the eclipse.
- But when, and where, and by what pain— All this is one to me :

I only long for fuch a death As most shall honour Thee.

Long life difmays me by the fenfe Of my own weaknefs fcared :

And by Thy Grace a fudden death Need not be unprepared.

One wifh is hard to be unwifhed— That I at laft might die

Of grief for having wronged with fin Thy fpotlefs Majefty.

The Paths of Death.

OW pleafant are thy Paths, O Death ! Like the bright flanting weft, Thou leadeft down into the glow
Where all those Heaven-bound funsets go, Ever from toil to reft.
How pleafant are thy Paths, O Death ! Back to own dear Dead, Into that Land which hides in tombs
The better part of our old homes ; 'Tis there thou makeft our bed.
How pleafant are thy Paths, O Death ! Thither where forrows cease
To a new Life, to an old paft,

Softly and filently we hafte Into a Land of Peace.

How pleafant are thy Paths, O Death! Thy new reftores our loft; There are voices of the new times With the ringing of the old chimes Blent fweetly on thy coaft.

How pleafant are thy Paths, O Death! One faint for want of breath— And above thy promife thou hast given : All, we find more than all in Heaven, O thou truth-speaking Death.

How pleafant are thy Paths, O Death ! E'en children after play Lie down, without the leaft alarm, And fleep, in thy maternal arm, Their little life away.

How pleafant are thy Paths, O Death! E'en grown-up men fecure Better manhood, by a brave leap Through the chill mift of thy thin fleep— Manhood that will endure.

How pleafant are thy Paths, O Death ! The old, the very old, Smile when their flumberous eye grows dim, Smile when they feel thee touch each limb—

Their age was not lefs cold.

How pleasant are thy Paths, O Death !

Ever from pain to ease; Patience, that hath held on for years, Never unlearns her humble fears

Of terrible disease.

How pleasant are thy Paths, O Death !

From fin to pleafing GOD; For the pardoned in thy Land are bright As Innocence in robe of white,

And walk on the fame road.

How pleafant are thy Paths, O Death ! Straight to our FATHER's Home ;

214 In a Ulaon of the night, &.

Let thousand thousand voices raise The joyous strain, the Bridegroom praise; And as in harmony they blend Repeat they ever without end—

Alleluia! Amen.

In a Uillon of the night when deep Sleep falleth upon Men.

N dreams I flept, where Ifrael wept of old,

Her walls down-torn, her altars shorn of gold :

And in my dream Euphrates' ftream rolled by With fullen pride, in ocean's tide to die.

At first, how bright, how clear the night had seemed----

Sweetly at even the lamps of Heaven had beamed ; All toil was stayed, the winds were laid in calm— From dells and bowers, went up of flowers sweet balm.

Sudden, on high was heard a cry of woe;

Heaven's darkest pall fell over all below.

With flashing flame God's thunder came-that found

Whofe echoes hold faint hearts or bold spellbound.

So on that shore, long years before he lay In Heavenly trance, and upward glance alway Daniel, that Seer whose holy fear and love Gained a blest sight of Saints' delight above; When from the seas a fourfold breeze had blown, When Beasts on wings, and mystic things were shewn.

So from my view flowly withdrew the veil : Full on my fight a Form of Light I hail. A wondrous power in that dread hour was mine : Scathlefs to hear thofe Words of fear Divine— "No anfwer give if thou would'ft live—be ftill— Where'er I go thefe thunders flow God's Will; At Whofe Command I fweep the land of fin Till ye, like us, be glorious within.

O! happy those when night shall close whoe'er Spotless have worn their robes; for morn is near."

A Tradition of S. John the Ebangelist.

WO thoufand years have wellnigh paft Since he, the gentleft and the laft Of all that holy band,

That with their LORD and SAVIOUR bore

The weary toil and labour fore, Led by His guiding Hand,

Hath paffed unto his rest away, Where Love can never more decay And Faith and Hope are o'er; All gently clofed his eyes in fleep, E'en while his Children round him weep,

That he may stay no more.

They laid him in the hallowed ground, And many a day they watched around,

And deemed the earth did wave At every breath of flumber fweet, And gently heave beneath their feet

Upon his lowly grave.

And long they watched the glad flowers grow, And deemed that still his breath below

Did heave that little mound ; For aye they thought to hear once more The tones of Love oft heard before,

And lift their peaceful found.

They thought upon his last farewell, How with faint voice he still would dwell

On Love and Love alone ; How, while his Children all flood near Fondly his parting words to hear,

Love breathed in every tone.

And when they asked why that one word, From him to long, to often heard,

Was all he uttered still,

He said, as faint his accents fall-

That Love, and Love alone, would all Our SAVIOUR'S Words fulfil. Then as his eyes in flumber clofed, They deemed he now awhile repofed,

And laid him in the grave ; And, as they watched long years around, They ftill would think that graffy mound

Did gently heave and wave.

And thus would they long vigil keep Over the place of his last sleep,

And aye in Love would dwell. Those early days of Peace are o'er : Do we of later ages store

His peaceful Words as well?

How tread we now the paths of old, With Faith all faint and Love grown cold,

With feeble steps and flow; Our very Souls cling fondly fixed, With scarce a nobler longing mixed, On fancied joys below.

Yet oft in glowing words we speak Of Love all holy, pure and meek,

While strange the sense they claim; For, joined in an unholy tie, False Creeds and Faith all sheltered lie Beneath this specious name.

It is not thus; for faint from far, Soon as we heed it not, the ftar

Of Truth more dimly gleams

hymns of Pobalis.

The Defire of God.

KNOW not what I could defire Wert Thou, dear Being, only mine; Wert Thou to crown my Soul with gladnefs,

And still be near and call me Thine. The vext crowd to and fro are hurrying, With eager glance they search around;

They call themfelves the wife, the prudent, And yet this Treasure have not found. One thinks his hand the Prize now grafping-Lo! what he hath is nought but gold; Another, earth and fea exploring, Hath for a Name his quiet fold. One for the Crown of victory ftriveth, One for the Poet's wreath of bay, And thus the ever-changing glitter Attracting all doth each betray.

To you Himfelf hath He revealed not? Can you forget Who died for you? Who for your fakes from Life departed— Yea, Scorn and bitter Anguifh knew? Have ye not read, have ye not liftened? Of Him, from Him ne'er heard a word? How He brought down Divineft Mercy, What endlefs Good on us conferred?

How from high Heaven He descended, The exalted Son of Mother blest? What Tidings to the earth He carried— How many healed by Him find Rest? How, by pure Love drawn down, He offered Himself for us, a Victim free? Low laid in earth, of GoD's own Temple

The eternal Corner-stone to be?

And shall not such a Message move you? Is not This MAN sufficient found?

Your doors to Him will ye not open Who paffed for you Hell's difmal bound?

Hymns of Pobalis.

Will ye not then lofe all things gladly, Forego with joy each idle thought, Your hearts for Him alone referving Whofe Grace is promifed you unbought?

Lift Thou me up, Thou Gentle SAVIOUR ! Thou art my world, my life is Thine ; Though nought of earthly hope were left me, I know my Recompense Divine. Thou all my love with Love returness; Thy Truth for ever shall endure ; The Heavens bow down in adoration ; Thou dwelless till within me sure.

The Defire of Death.

WAY, below the earth's broad breaft,
Far from light's realms defcending !
Storms of woe and wild unreft
Departure glad portending;
The narrow bark fhall waft us o'er
Full foon to land on Heaven's calm fhore.
Bleft be that everlafting night;
Bleft, never-broken flumber :
Day with toils hath worn us quite,
Cares too long encumber ;
Now vain defires and roamings ceafe,
We feek our FATHER's Houfe in peace.

What fhould we do in this cold world With Love and Truth fo tender? Old things are in oblivion hurled,

The new no gladness render : O forrowful his heart and lone Who reverent loves the past and gone !

Those ages past, whose purer race High thoughts with ardour fired, When Man beheld our FATHER's Face, And knew His Hand desired; While many a simple mind sincere Resembled still His Image clear.

Those days of old, when flourished wide Stems of Patriarch story; When even Children joyful died And suffered for Heaven's Glory; While though life laughed and pleasure spake, Yet many a heart for strong Love brake.

Those times of yore when GOD revealed

Himfelf in young life glowing; With early death His Paffion fealed,

His precious Blood bestowing; Nor turned aside the stings of pain Us nearer to Himself to gain.

Through deepening mifts how vainly gaze Our fond thoughts, backward turning:

What still delays our wished return?

The Loved have long been fleeping; Their grave our earthly journey's bourne—

Enough of fear and weeping! With fruitless striving long annoyed The heart is weary, the world a void.

Strange rapture ever new, unknown, Through the faint frame is thrilling : Hark ! the foft echo of our moan

The hollow diftance filling ; Whence the Beloved towards us bend, Their breathings of defire afcend.

Down to the Bride, to CHRIST we go,

The Bridegroom gone before us; Be of good comfort, mourners; lo!

Grey twilight deepens o'er us : A dream diffolves our chains unbleft, Our FATHER takes us to His Reft.

Beholding in her tomb Heaven's opened door,

And hearing in her knell His Summons ring-

- ' Come up, dear Child, and dwell in Rest for evermore.'

The Earth He trod is confecrated ground; One flone His Feet have touched hallows the whole,

Reclaimed for Heaven's just uses, from the round Of torrid heats, to either utmost pole :

Where He alighted burft a Spring, that flows To every land, and ever widening goes,

Sustained by what distils

From the everlasting Hills,

And still shall swell, a River broad and deep, Till its great flood, with all-compelling sweep, The bars and gates of Hell triumphantly o'erleap.

Whofo receiveth this, doth all receive :

His faith can foar no further; all the train Of Signs and Wonders written, that doth leave

A breach in Nature's statutes, to explain By reason's rules he aims not, lest as wise Himself professing, folly's meed he gain :

But, in mute awe profound

Upon that holy ground Standing unfhod He hears, amidft the cries Of jarring doubts and creeds, the ftill fmall Voice Speak to his immost heart, and trembling doth rejoice.

His the unfettered Faith to childhood given,

That questions not how such a thing might be; Whom large experience hinders not that Heaven Should mix with earth, but whose clear eye doth see

228

In happy dreams the golden Ladder bending, And Angel-feet for evermore defcending : Thus human and Divine To childlike hearts combine, Who from the world's Soul-deafening noife retreat, And meekly fitting at the Mafter's Feet Lift to His Heaven-brought Words in contemplation fweet.

Jael.

LONELY Woman's feeble hand— A mail-clad Warrior in his might— At her tent-door behold her ftand To greet the Captain of the fight.

Stern greeting hers! for from on high Unbidden comes the LORD's Beheft, And fires with wrath her gentle eye, And arms with fraud her guilelefs breaft.

LORD, whence is this ? what fpell is caft ? Whence this up-heaving flood within, This lightning-blaze, this whirlwind-blaft, Too calm for rage, too pure for fin ?

It comes : it comes : she may not pause ; Herself the hammer of Heaven's will, She executes the unwritten Laws, Nor wists the word that bids her kill. One blow—and where is he whofe head Gave strength and guidance to an host? Low at a woman's feet and dead, Man's foe and GOD's lies ever lost.

And who shall doubt—that in GoD's Book Hath scanned the Gospel through the veil, And learned beyond the Law to look— Whose is the hammer and the nail?

The Woman among women bleft, Where but at Bethlehem is fhe? The victor vanquifhed in his reft, Where but on crimfon Calvary?

'Twas she who, when the strife ran high, Gave flesh and birth to God's Own Son, Gave to the Life the power to die, And raise by death a world undone.

O Son of Mary! cheat our foe, Down with him even to the ground ; In the grave's flumber lay Death low, And in the weak let ftrength abound.

Funeral Hymn.

ROTHER! now thy toils are o'er, Fought the battle, won the Crown; On Life's rough and barren shore Thou hast laid thy burden down: Grant him, LORD, eternal Rest With the Spirits of the Blest.

Through Death's valley dim and dark JESUS guide thee in the gloom, Shew thee where His Footprints mark Tracks of Glory through the tomb : Grant him, LORD, eternal Reft With the Spirits of the Bleft.

Angels bear thee to the Land Where the towers of Sion rife, Safely lead thee by the hand To the fields of Paradife : Grant him, LORD, eternal Reft With the Spirits of the Bleft.

White-robed at the cryftal gate Of the New Jerufalem May the Hoft of Martyrs wait, Give thee part and lot with them : Grant him, LORD, eternal Reft With the Spirits of the Bleft.

Funeral Hymn.

Choirs of Angels over us Bear CHRIST's weak and trembling Lamb, Give thee peace with Lazarus At the breaft of Abraham : Grant him, LORD, eternal Reft With the Spirits of the Bleft.

Reft in Peace : the gates of Hell Touch thee not, till He shall come For the Souls He loves so well— Dear LORD of the Heavenly home : Grant him, LORD, eternal Rest With the Spirits of the Blest.

Earth to earth, and dust to dust, Clay we give to kindred clay; In the fure and certain trust Of the Refurrection Day: Grant him, LORD, eternal Rest With the Spirits of the Blest.

CHRIST the Sower fows thee here : When the eternal Day fhall dawn He will gather in the ear On that Refurrection morn : Grant him, LORD, eternal Reft, Light and Life at Thy Beheft, With the Spirits of the Bleft.

The Story of the Crols.

The Question.

N His own Raiment clad. With His Blood dyed, Women walk sorrowing By His Side.

Heavy that Cross to Him, Weary the weight, One who will help Him waits At the gate.

See! they are travelling On the same road-Simon is sharing with Him, the LORD.

Oh whither wandering, Bear they that Tree? He Who first carries it-Who is He?

The Answer.

OLLOW to Calvary; Tread where He trod, He Who for ever was SON of GOD.

234 The Story of the Cross.

You who would love Him, stand, Gaze at His Face, Tarry awhile on thine Earthly race.

As the fwift moments fly Through the bleft week, Read the great Story the Crofs will teach.

Is there no beauty to 'You who pafs by,' In the lone Figure which Marks that fky?

The Story of the Cross.

Thy Face I Scan, Bearing that Cross for me, Son of MAN;

Thorns form Thy Diadem, Rough Wood Thy Throne, For us Thy Blood is ſhed— Us alone.

No pillow under Thee To reft Thy Head— Only the fplintered Crofs Is Thy Bed.

The Story of the Crols.

Nails pierce Thy Hands and Feet, Thy Side the fpear; No voice is nigh to fay, Help is near. Shadows of midnight fall Though it is day; Thy Friends and Kinsfolk (tand

Far away.

Loud is Thy bitter Cry; Sunk on Thy Breaft Hangeth Thy Bleeding Head Without reft.

Loud fcoffs the dying Thief, Who mocks at Thee; Can it, my SAVIOUR, be All for me.

Gazing afar from Thee, Silent and lone, Stand those few Weepers Thou Call'st Thine Own.

I fee Thy Title, LORD, Infcribed above—

' JESUS of Nazareth,'

King of Love !

What, O my SAVIOUR, Here didst Thou see, Which made Thee suffer and Die for me? The Appeal.

HILD of My Grief and Pain, Home of My Love, I came to call thee to Realms above.

I faw thee wandering Far off from Me; In Love I feek for thee— Do not flee.

For thee My Blood I fhed, For thee alone— I came to purchafe thee For Mine Own.

Weep not for My Grief, Child of My Love ; Strive to be with Me in Heaven above.

The Reply.

H, I will follow Thee, Star of my Soul, Through the deep fhades of life To the goal!

Yes, let Thy Crofs be borne Each day by me; Mind not how heavy if But with Thee.

The Pallon.

LORD, if Thou only wilt Make me Thine Own, Give no companion fave Thee alone.

Grant through each day of life To ftand by Thee ! With Thee when morning breaks Ever to be !

The Pallon.

Jesus dying.

VER each tower and minaret, And where in channel dark as jet The ftreams of Kedron toil and frct,

Falls the inexplicable Veil, The Sign when Nature's powers shall fail Of universal woe and wail.

No light and fhade, in interchange Softening the dark horizon's range, But fudden midnight ftern and ftrange !

Rushed the uptreasured Darkness from Its hidden, uncreated home To witness God's own Martyrdom?

Or did the LORD Who hides His Face In Shadows that betoken Grace, And drapes in gloom His Dwelling-place,

The Pallion.

Did He in His most awful Mood Curtain around the Holy Rood From man's unchastened neighbourhood?

Or came the Type and Form wherein Wrong works, to watch the ftrife within, And learn the death of death and fin?

Thou God That hideft, who can tell, Unless Thou teach us how to spell And learn aright the Miracle?

It hushes all things; not a found Or far or near is heard around; The guard seems rooted to the ground.

No word the Divine Sufferer faith; Only is heard His heaving Breath Fighting the duel fierce with death.

And breaking o'er His quivering Lips : Only the Blood that as it drips Throbs through the palpable eclipse!

Oh, vanquifhed Light return once more; Oh, breaking Heart that we adore, When fhall this travail-pang be o'er?

When shall the day its fetters burst, And JESUS, from the Tree accurst Speak once, and own Himself athirst?

The Pallon.

Laft act of His Humility Better to witness, than to see This still and voiceless Agony.

SAVIOUR, and Suffering GOD ! when I, Knowing it is my time to die, Upon my final crofs shall lie;

When Nature's deepening shadows fall O'er Soul and sense, and like a pall Suit all things to the funeral;

In my eclipse, oh, let me see Thy Sorrows, borne in love for me, Upon Thy Crofs, on Calvary-

Borne, that I might in dying reft, And lay, undarkened, undepressed My head on Thy all-loving Breast.

Fefus dead.

STAY the obsequious fingers ! O spare the myrrh and balm ! From the depths of this pure filence

This inexpressive calm ; From the lineless Lips where Slumber Sets her confecrating feal,

Back on the world that wronged Him, He smiles His last Appeal.

The Pacion.

Not like daylight's laft effulgence, So tender yet fo bright; When reluctantly the glory Juft flafhes out of fight : But Sorrow and Forgivenefs Are blended on His Cheek, Like the gleam that fills the twilight As the dawn begins to break. For Him is no more forrow,

There is neither change nor lofs; Life has no further torture, Nor Agony, nor Crofs: The Counfels of the Ages, The Deftiny of Time, At laft are confummated In this Martyrdom fublime.

He was weak, when in the Manger He drew an Infant's Breath; He was weak, when in the Garden He forrowed unto Death; Beneath the Crofs He fainted, On the Crofs He bowed His Head : But here is more than weaknefs— All is finifhed ! He is Dead !

But the Love that is undying Lights His Features, like a Mind; And His final Look is pleading, With the Heart of Humankind.

ě.,

The Pallon.

That owns, when it is hardeft Death's power to control, And conquer and o'ermafter The paffions of the Soul.

And thus His Look is pleading— No more your anger keep : O My Brother, give thy pity ! O My Sifter, turn and weep ! I was True, in Love unceasing, Though My Labour was unprized ; And My Crown of forrows pierced Me When I faw that Love defpifed.

Ah, the world remains unheeding, And will not brook the fight :

Quick ! Shade the Features, winding The Corse of GOD in white :

Let the hands that Love has hallowed Cloje fast the holy Eyes; Let the two familiar faces

Look on Him where He lies.

There He lies! the wondrous Master Upon Whose Lips we hung; Who had Might upon His Finger, And Life upon His Tongue: Still and cold! that glorious Teacher Who had GODHEAD in His Eye! Oh, cruel Heart within me, Wilt thou never break and die?

Thoughts from the Manual of S. Augustine.

He that dwelleth in Love, dwelleth in God, and God in him.

HO neither loves, nor feeks for JESUS' Love, His Soul a barren defert fhall remain ; And life will prove

To him, whate'er its joys, but life in vain.

To live for Thee, O LORD, alone is Life; To live without Thee, were at once to die, 'Twere but the strife Of aimles folly swiftly passing by.

Most Merciful ! to Thee I give anew The life and understanding which I owe; That Thou art true And wilt that life restore, by Faith I know.

Believing, I will love Thee and adore, With Whom I hope for ever to remain, Or, could I more, In endless Rest and Blessedness to reign.

What Soul, unloving, feeks not after Thee, The flave of fin and earthly love impure, His lot fhall be The helplefs thrall which guilty men endure. Thoughts from S. Augustine. 243

O may this bondage never, LORD, be mine, But let my pilgrimage fecurely end Along the line Of a spirations pure which Heavenward tend. My Soul, in this her exile, longs for Reft; Be that to her, O LORD, for which the longs, Softly expressed In contemplation (weet, or grateful (ongs ! In forrow, or in joy, when tumults (well, Grant her the shelter of Thy guardian Wing; Do Thou compel A calm, from whence foe'er the tempests spring. O richest Master of the noblest Feast, And bountiful Dispenser unto all, Even the least, On whom the mercies of Thy Goodness fall! Do Thou to weary Souls [weet Food afford; Thy fcattered Children fafely gather in; O Loving LORD, Set free the bound, reftore the loft in fin ! Lo! at the door a wretched Wanderer stands And knocks! Obrightest Day-spring from on High, Brightening the lands Of death and fin, in mercy hear his cry! Open ! and let this craving suppliant in, That freely he may find his way to Thee, And rest from sin, And with Thy Heavenly Food refreshed be.

244 Thoughts from S. Augustine.

For Thou, of Life the Bread and Water art, Of Light eternal the eternal Fount,

The living Heart

Of righteous Men who climb the Heavenly Mount.

There shall be no more Death, neither forrow, nor crying.

HRICE bleffed Land of Heavenly gladnefs!

Where life is Life in endless flow; Where undisturbed by fear or sadness Greatness and Peace their sweets bestow; Where Health is pure, unchecked by sickness, And 'laid up' Treasure never sails; Where no more Death betrays its weakness, Nor Time its fleeting course bewails; Where Happiness unyoked from sorrow Fills up its ample store with Love; And face to Face, no more we borrow Figures to shadow God above.

There too, we know as we are known, The heights of Love Divine we fcan, And fee the Light from out the Throne Enlightening ere the worlds began; The unfailing Food of Life is there, Beholding Whom our Souls are fed; Beholding, yet with longing care Still to behold—fill upward led. All quickening there, with beauteous Ray The SUN of Righteousness is fet, Illuming all the golden Way Where Citizens of Heaven are met. Nor only fo! but the Redeemed Are there, one mighty World of Light, As never Mortal could have dreamed Of fun or stars, fo dazzling bright! To GOD Immortal joined are they Who no corruption more shall see; And now, O JESU, day by day They claim that Pledge which fell from Thee-FATHER, I will that where I dwell Whoe'er are Mine may dwell with Me, As Thou and I, fo they, may tell The wondrous Blifs of Unity!

Childlike Holinels.

EAUTIFUL is Noon! The glory and effulgence of the day; Bright zenith of the Sun's majestic sway, Whose sceptred light floods forth for Nature's boon.

Hushed are all birds; the shortened shadows lie Crouched'neath the trees. We feel a Prefence nigh, As from our shady nook, On the clear outward glare we look, And reverence the Power Who hath set forth His Image in this hour. Beautiful is Eve!

The ftars are tangled in her deepening Veil; On the great fea grows dim the fnowy fail; With twitterings low, the birds their concert leave; The dewdrops form upon the thirfting blades, And timid Peace fteals from her filent glades.

The village hum is ftill;

The sheep are folded on the hill;

And we our spirits yield

Unto the rest that wraps sky, wood and field.

Yet, lovelier far

Than Noon-tide, or the infant steps of Night, Is Morn! Rekindled Hope and new-born Might Rife up, and hail his westward-coming car. And there is song in Heaven and song in earth; And ocean dimples o'er with smiling Mirth;

And the fad evening heart,

That thought not from its grief to part,

Sees with astonished eyes Rays of unlooked-for joy mount up the skies.

Infpiring is the fight Of Manhood's Piety! Amid the fight Of this world's harafs, work and care, The weary day, the fhortened night To mark his unforgotten prayer, His evening queftioning of heart,

His faith still burning in its shrine; Loyal to Heaven, in Senate, Feast or Mart, Bringing to earthly labours Love Divine.

Childlike Holinels.

And beautiful is Age ! As worldly cares do less its heart engage, When, like the tranquil end of day, Its warmest feelings cease to rage, And shed a clear but quiet ray, Shining as stars, benign and fair : And Youth grows reverent at the sight; And Children gather round the well-loved chair Of CHRIST's tired Pilgrim, bidding Earth 'Goodnight!'

But oh ! more fweet than all, Than Manhood's faith, or Life's calm autumn fall, Is holy Childhood ! 'Tis the dew That after-hours can not recall ; A joy which years can ne'er renew ; 'Tis incenfe in a virgin fane ;

'Tis new fallen fnow from fields above ; The white-bleached robe, awhile without a ftain, Drawing our gaze of mingled awe and love.

No more the facred voice Which interposed, and bade faint hearts rejoice Falls on our ears. But echoes tell That GOD, for nearest Heaven, makes choice Of Infant hosts. His Asphodel For the young, spotles brow is twined; And unveiled Vision waits the eyes Of childlike Purity, with Love enshrined In hearts, where'er they beat beneath the skies.

The Advent.

OW by fhining Forms attended, By what golden ftair, He, the SON of GOD, defcended, Tell me, Earth and Air!

Hark ! the Heaven itfelf is ringing, All the blue wide arch Rolls a found of Angels finging His triumphal March.

Not with iron fteeped in flaughter, Nor with blood-red feet Comes He! but like rills of water Where the dry funs beat : Love with happy eyes before Him Melteth fin like fnow ; All whom He hath made adore Him, Fount of Peace below.

Wife Men of the East unravel Wondrous Signs afar;
Forth to Judah's land they travel, Led by the new Star:
Thither, for their Soul divineth Some great Birth foretold,
Each his feveral Gift configneth, Incense, Myrrh and Gold.

The Advent.

On the quiet hills, far fleeping In a filver light, Shepherds lonely watch were keeping Mid their flocks by night, When strange Harmonies above them Burfting, wave on wave, Told of CHRIST come down to love them, CHRIST, Supreme to fave. Turn and look where feeble, tender, Helples to behold, Lies our King, bereft of splendour, Touched with heat and cold: In a stable, in a manger, Heir to forrows born, Even He, a BABE, a Stranger, Naked and forlorn. Tell me what Divine Affections Throng that Infant Brain ! Say what dreamy recollections Breathe, preluding pain! Holy CHILD, Prieft, Prince, and Prophet, That mysterious rest Shadows, though men know not of it, Anguish in Thy Breast. Read, O Man, that facred ftory, How the GOD most High Came down, emptied of His Glory, Here to mourn and die-

The Advent.

Canft thou, ere the long nights darken O'er thine evil day,

Canft thou hear it, and not hearken, . Weep, repent, obey?

Yet, when thou art filled with fadnefs At thy SAVIOUR'S Woe,

Peals an Angel-ftrain of gladnefs And thy joys o'erflow :

By that All-fufficing SPIRIT,

Born to human Breath, Souls Eternity inherit, And men vanquish Death.

Thus to hail Thine Advent hither, Grant, O LORD, to me

Large delight and griefs together May united be:

Here though bitterness hath found Thee For our guilt undone,

GOD's high Pæan fails around thee For a conquest won.

Thus alternately to borrow Health from pain and lofs, Joy's companionfhip with forrow Yield me from Thy Crofs; Tears for Thy deep Tribulation And fin's wineprefs trod, Praife for uttermost Salvation And the Hymns of God.

Of the various Mansions and Rewards of the Elect in the Heavenly Jerusalem.

N My FATHER'S Houfe on high, Where He reigns above the fky, Many Manfions, paffing fair, I for Mine Elect prepare :

They alone shall enter in Who in holy strife with fin Fight till they the battle win.

Foremost there is Mary seen, 'Mid the Virgins Virgin-Queen : Blest is she, supremely blest, Thus preferred before the rest : Close to Me she holds the seat For My Best-belovéd meet, With the Angels at her seet.

Glad is fhe with great delight, Keeping ever in her fight Me, her own Beloved Son, Who alone the Victory won, Seated at the FATHER's Side, Ruling o'er creation wide, King of all the Glorified.

Joying with the Heavenly Choir, Adam, man's primeval Sire, Gladly renders thanks to Me; Comforted to hear and fee How the fallen human race, Loft through his defection bafe, Is by Me reftored to Grace.

Lo! the Patriarchs with mirth Leap for gladnefs at My Birth : Promifes they heard of old Now accomplifhed they behold : All the nations, Faith confeffing In My Name, receive the Bleffing, Endlefs Life through Me poffeffing.

Sweetly harping in My Praife There the Prophets tune their lays; Joyful they have found the Grace Thus to fee Me Face to face: In the world, in days of old, While they lived of Me they told; True were all their fayings bold.

David, Ifrael's Pfalmift fweet, John, who gave Me Baptifm meet, In the place of light Divine, With efpecial brightnefs fhine : Sent before, as I drew nigh, Not fo much to prophefy, As to point and teftify.

How illustrious appear, Those My twelve Apostles dear! In My Throne of Glory sharing, Part with Me in Judgment bearing: From themsfelves to Me they turned, All their earthly treasures spurned; With My Love their spirits burned.

Martyrs brave, of faith unfailing, Who, ten thoufand deaths affailing, For My Name their witnefs bare, Robes of gleaming crimfon wear; Shining clear, in fplendour bright, Glowing with a rofy white, Raifed to Honour's topmost height.

All who patiently endured Glory have with Me fecured, Decked with fewer pearls or more, As they heavier trials bore; Now their groans and tearful fighing Stores of gladness are supplying, Source of pleasure never dying.

Free at length from earth's turmoils, Each according to his toils, Well Confeffors are repaid, In befitting robes arrayed; Purple veftures are their due, Blending tints of diverfe hue, Crimfon red with azure blue.

Golden chains about their neck Mine elected Teachers deck; Doctors, by My special Love, This Reward posses above; By whose doctrine, clear and sound, Faith in Me, with Virtue crowned, Spread to earth's remotest bound.

Monks, who kept the life Divine, Drink their fill of My new Wine; Feafting with their Heavenly King Songs of joy and praife they fing : All the labours which they wrought, Difcipline, with rigour fraught, Sweeten now their every thought.

Anchorites, with Grace endued, Hermits, from their folitude, With bright beatific glance View My beaming Countenance : Thirfting fore this Blifs to tafte, Long they fojourned in the wafte, And a ftraitened life embraced.

They that brake a ftubborn will Strict obedience to fulfil Now are My Companions made, And in garments fair arrayed : Now no felf-conftraint they ufe, No inviting pleafure lofe, Nothing fhun which they would choofe.

S

 Humble Souls, and poor in fpirit, Exaltation great inherit :
 Once by men on earth abased,
 Warmly now by Me embraced :
 They for whom contempt was shewn,
 To My Side are raised alone,
 Seated on a lofty Throne.

Virgins, pure in life and heart, Bear with Me a gladfome part; Through the Halls of Heavenly fong, In the dance, they fweep along; Perfume fweet they caft around, With immortal garlands crowned; All their Hymns My Praifes found.

Conftant Widows, true and chafte, My celeftial Glory tafte : Great indeed is their reward Who were faithful to their LORD : Earthly nuptials they difdained ; In the Heavens a Houfe they gained, And My glad Embrace attained.

Well-beloved, with Me abide Holy Souls in wedlock tied; They, according to My Will, Zion's holy City fill: From their bleffed children's ftore Grows the band upon the Shore, Saints in number more and more.

Unto those whose continence Triumphed o'er the joys of sense Many crowns by Me are given, For the times that they have striven; Glittering with brighter sheen As the struggles they have seen Harder and more fierce have been.

Safe they kept their innocence, Guiltless of the great offence, Much they marvel, much rejoice, At their Heavenly-guided choice; How throughout they were defended From the sin to which they tended, Sin which with their birth descended.

Penitents, with equal joy, Reft in Peace without alloy : Now their Souls are cleanfed within From the ftain of all their fin : Hence their glory; hence their praife; Hence to Me immortal lays With exulting heart they raife.

Mafters, Servants, bond and free, Nurfed in wealth or penury; Every fex and every age, Prince and peafant, fool and fage; Each, according to his meafure, Holds a never-failing Treafure, In the Realm of peace and pleafure.

All this Heavenly company Live for evermore with Me : Wondrous glad is their thank fgiving In the Manfion of the living : Round them they behold difplayed More than all for which they prayed While below, on earth, they ftayed.

Earthly pleafures therefore leave, To the Heavenly country cleave : Let thy labours know no bound, That thou mayeft be holy found, So, when thou haft bravely ftriven, Unto thee fhall part be given In the Happiness of Heaven.

Fount of Bleffing, whence doth flow Every good that man can know; Holy TRINITY, the fum Of the Saints' reward to come; Still Thy Majefty transcends All the praise which Thee attends, To the age that never ends.

Grant that with Thy Saints above, One in Faith and Hope and Love, We, amid the ranfomed throng, Join the everlafting fong : Unto Thee our anthems pour, Thee with glowing hearts adore, Praifing Thee for evermore.

Thoughts in Lent.

Confolation.

ARK! yon white-robed Angel-choir Strike their tuneful golden lyre; Hark! responsive to their cry Pure and faint-like Souls reply,

They whose victory-crowned brow Knows not sin nor suffering now: Hark ! how floats that sound along; List ! the notes of Heavenly song— Holy, Holy, Holy, LORD ! Bursts from each soft echoing chord, Robed in Brightness o'er the Sun, Thou, the High and Holy ONE !

LORD ! what earthly voice can tell Joys which minds Celeftial fwell ? Or can join with them to raife Hymns of never-ending praife ? Yet wilt Thou Thyfelf impart To the meek and contrite heart ; Nor wilt Thou, O GOD, defpife A broken Spirit's facrifice. He that trembleth at Thy Word Need not fear Thy glittering Sword, Reconciled through Thy Dear SON To the High and Holy ONE.

Thoughts in Lent.

Though Thou hear'st the Seraphs cry, To the humble Thou art nigh ; Though in Heaven Thy Dwelling-Place, Thou hast yet a Throne of Grace; Thou hast faid that Thou wilt be With each Soul that feeketh Thee, Him in Righteousness array Till the great and final Day, Fit him by Thy SPIRIT's Power For the peaceful parting hour : In those Heavenly regions high, Past mortal thought or mortal eye, Thou hast faid that such shall be In those glorious Realms with Thee, By Thy SPIRIT, through Thy SON, When life's toilsome course is done, With the High and Holy ONE!

Humiliation.

OUNT of all Mercies, lo, I come Again to feek my long-loft Home, And Thee the GOD of Comfort pray— Turn not Thy Suppliant away. Thou Who reftrained Thine Anger's power In Salem's penitential hour, Thou Who wast found, and found to blefs The Wanderer in the Wildernefs,

Merles from the German. 263

Who hearest grief and suffering's cry And washest out the purple dye, Who sinful Nineveh didst spare, Hear! oh, hear! my contrite prayer.

I ask not that Thou should'st restore The earthly joys I loved before; I ask not that my life's sad sun Should in its former splendour run; The Christian's hope, his first glad song To fallen Souls no more belong; That Robe so spotless once, so bright, Is ever solled in human sight: I only ask Thee—nor deny To hear Thy Suppliant's mournful cry; I only ask, O GOD of Heaven, To die in peace, to die forgiven !

Merles from the German.

Retirement.

H, whither flee, or where abide? Where is the lone fequestered spot, Where outward things can reach me not

And from their turmoil I may hide?

Can no deep solitude be found Where prayer and praise might ceaseles be To Him Whofe Grace had set me free From each distracting sight and sound? For desert wastes my spirit longs; Had she the pinions of a dove, There would she seek the Source of Love Far from these restless noisy throngs; She dare not longer make abode, She cannot keep her own Faith pure, Where men are caught in Folly's lure, And strive but to forget their GOD. Then forth my Soul! Escape amain From fnares that long have held thee fast; Quit worldly schemes and friends at last, That so thou may'st that rest attain, Where voice nor touch nor fight can come To break thy commune deep and still With Him Who every want can fill, Who is alone our proper Home. There in some narrow quiet cell, My Paradife, my Promised Land, These wandering thoughts I might command, And fixed in rapt devotion dwell, No foe to thwart with blame or praise; My GOD alone should fill my Soul, As toward my peaceful death should roll

In changeless course my tranquil days.

Alas! poor Soul! hadft thou thy will, 'Twere refting ere the field was won; How hopeft thou all foes to fhun
When blind felf-will goes with thee ftill ? In outward things thou feekeft reft, But thou wilt never find it fo; Nought outward is fo much thy foe
As what thou haft within thy breaft.
Safe is Obedience, that alone; No loyal Soldier leaves his poft, Though toil or pain or life it coft, Until his Captain faith, ' Begone.'
And Faith knows not to paufe or choofe,

And flees no strife however stern, Where in the struggle she my learn How in GOD's Will her own to lose.

But if thy heart on Peace is bent, O'er fair false dreams no longer brood Of blest, congenial solitude, They will but breed deep discontent; No Paradise is left us here; Our Peace is in a will resigned;

Then amid crowds thou yet may'ft find Thy Unfeen LORD most surely near,

Merles from the Berman.

Midnight.

I gazed abroad ; no ftar of all the crowds That people Heaven, was fimiling through the clouds To cheer my fight That dreary night.

At dead of night I fcaled the height Of giddy question o'er our mortal lot, My fearchings found no answer, brought me not One ray of light In that deep night.

At dead of night In still affright I turned, and listened to my throbbing heart; One pulse of pain alone, whose ancient smart Had dimmed sweet light, Beat there that night.

At dead of night I fought the fight, Humanity, of all thy pain and woes; My ftrength could not decide it, and my foes O'erwhelmed me quite In that deep night.

Bethlemane.

At dead of night All power and might I yielded, LORD of Life and Death, to Thee, And learnt Thou watchedft with me, and that we Are in Thy Sight In deepeft night.

Bethlemane.

IN hardens, all the heart with ice encrufting,

And narrowing its current evermore ; Therefore, O SAVIOUR, Loving, Pitying, Trufting,

Thy Heart, the ice of sin ne'er crusted o'er,

Was tenderer to feel each pang that tried Thee Than any heart that ever broke or bled, The timid Love that followed yet denied Thee, The felfifh Fear that kept far off or fled.

But fin must ever weaken while it hardens, Enfeebling to endure, or act, or dare, Till nothing fave the balms of Heavenly Pardons Can nerve the heart again to do or bear.

Then must Thy Heart be stronger far to suffer Than any sinful heart that ever beat ;

- And if Thy Path than any path be rougher, Yet haft Thou Strength unfcathed its woes to meet.
- What tide of grief then, Mightiest, o'er Thee rushes

Thus tasking e'en Thy Patience and Thy Trust? What woe beyond all woe Thy Spirit crushes, Bowing Thee Sinles, Spotles, to the dust?

Martyrs for Thee have gone to meet their anguish Singing glad Hymns e'en with their dying breath, Not all their tortures causing once to languish The hope that led them forth for Thee to death.

Thy Stephen's face shone like a holy Angel's, Uplifted midst the stones towards Thy skies, Beaming from radiant brows Thine own Evangels, And glowing with the welcome in Thine Eyes.

- Yet Thou, LORD, liftest not Thy Face to Heaven, But bowest prostrate on the dewy sod ;
- Thy Soul exceeding forrowful with death-pangs riven,

Thy Sweat of anguish as great drops of Blood.

What ftorm is this in which Thou all but finkeft, Whofe Arm has borne fo many through the flood ? What bitter Cup is this from which Thou fhrinkeft, Strength of all Martyrs, Patient LAMB of GOD? The fin of all the world, whose throne Thou claimest, Hadft made fo fair, fo fallen, loved and fought! The fin of all Thine Own, to whom Thou cameft, Thou cameft, and Thine Own received Thee not!

The fin of all the Saved, that dying bleffed Thee, Who from the fting of Death hadft fet them free; The fin of all Thy Martyrs who confeffed Thee, And died rejoicing that they went to Thee.

- This is the weight of Agony unfpoken Which Thee, O Higheft, thus fo low hath laid?
- The curfe of all the law mankind had broken, The fin of all the world which Thou hadft made.
- Earth's ferried woe and crime in one compreffing, Thou buriest all within Thy single Breast, And changest thus our every curse to Bleffing,
 - Giving us Life through death, in labour Rest.

Dld Teltament Hymns.

David and Barzillai.

N Bleffing parted from the King By Jordan's brimming wave, Yet fhalt thou hear the City fing With him beyond the grave.

270 Dld Teltament Hymns.

Thy Monarch's home should yet be thine, Jerusalem the blest,

Though Gilead's balms in all their calms Have steeped that aged breast.

O birthday crown of fourfcore years, Which fome with strength attain ! Vain conquest, to survive with tears And more than manhood's pain !

The King that eye shall yet descry In all His Beauty rare;

To Angel's lute no voice is mute, No ear is liftlefs there.

Rizpah, the Daughter of Aiah.

EFORE those bones unshrouded, On Gibeah's deathful hill, Beneath the skies unclouded, Beside the gasping rill, Watch! lonely Mourner, keeping, With all thy fackcloth spread, The raindrops of thy weeping, The harvess of thy dead.

Those gracious tears are winning The Bleffing from above, The Sacrifice for sinning, Bathed with a sinner's love;

Dld Teltament Hymns. 271

Not yet upon the mountains Falls there the promifed dew; Break, Heart, thy forrow's fountains, Baptizing them anew.

Lift! lift His Crofs, Wood-hewer, Draw! draw that water's tears-The latter and the newer, The purer rain appears; There droops a Sinlefs BROTHER His fweet atoning Brow; There breaks the Virgin Mother A fpotlefs heart below.

Is it well with the Child?

The cornfield's crefted wave, He fank upon the Reaper's breaft Whofe garner is the grave.

- O well is it, fweet Child, with thee, Soft lies thy drooping head,
- Death's pillow is thy Mother's knee, Thy bier the Prophet's bed !
- 'Tis not new Moon, nor Sabbath foon, No grief the Prophet knows;
- No new Moon now of hope haft thou, No Sabbath of repose.

272 Dld Teltament Hymns.

Hold! Mother, hold the Man of GOD, Lay there thy forrow's lofs; He wakes not to the Prophet's rod Who fleeps beneath the Crofs.

O full are they of healing fweet, His Saints, ere CHRIST appears, Ere mourners hold those bleffed Feet, Or wash them with their tears!

Elijah and Elisha.

TERN Remembrancer of error With the lightning of thine eye, Locking with the key of terror All the portals of the ſky, Calling, while the bleſſing lingers, Laving flames on Carmel's ſteep, Ere the cloud with dewy fingers Scoops the vapours of the deep : Man of GOD, no CHRIST I ſee— What have I to do with thee ?

Earth with fire and blood baptizing, Mingling with the gracious rain, Then on wheels of flame uprifing,— Shine upon the mount again; There with wrathful Moses standing, Smiting with the vengeful rod, Fire from Heaven and earth commanding, Make thee like the SON of GOD : Darkeft of the Clouded Three— We will build no house for thee !

Caft thy mantle on another, Who Jhall all thy terrors quell— Kiffing Father, kiffing Mother, Ere he bids the world farewell; Like thee only once in curfing, When the fcoffing fons rebel, As the SPIRIT gently nurfing, Save when Ananias fell: There the SON of GOD I fee— Prophet, let me cleave to thee!

Thine the still small Voice remaining, Chiding Horeb's stormy blast, Hushing all the world's complaining, When the start store store store All our angry passions cease, Softened by the SPIRIT's Smoothing All to Gentleness and Peace, Perfect Love, without a fear-SON of GOD, I see Thee near!

т

An Allegory.

STOOD in the fhade of a ftately Tree, The Foreft Monarch; far and wide It fpread its branches on every fide; Fruit alone there was none to see

On the wide-spread boughs of that stately Tree.

A stern dark Man, from whose gloomy brow Passed never a fearful frown,

Rode through the Foreft up and down; His steed was pale as the driven snow, And he carried an Axe at his saddle-bow.

Wherever that pale white horfe did tread, Some fapling tall or gnarlèd oak Fell by the stern Man's ruthless stroke, Or some the fairest of flowers lay dead, Like grass on the house-top withered.

Yet all unchanged was the fylvan scene, For still as he journeyed from place to place,

He left of his prefence no lafting trace, But the Foreft grew on as thick and green, As through it the pale horfe had never been.

While I mused on this, forth from the glade

That same pale horse and its Rider stern,

With fixed fell purpofe, feemed to turn, Till where the tall Tree caft its fhade, Horror of horrors ! their courfe was ftayed. Oh, what fear ! oh, what difmay !

I would have fled from the doomèd spot, But my spell-bound limbs suffered me not; I would have opened my mouth to pray, But the words unuttered died away.

Thrice he brandished his Axe in the air !

Thrice the Hand of ONE unseen

Came the Axe and the Tree between, And I heard a Voice—Depart! forbear! Let it alone another year.

Reluctant the stern Man obeyed, And slow withdrew; but ere he passed, Forth his Axe from his hand he cast, And the keen edge of the glittering blade At the root of the stately Tree was laid.

And One, ' bright as the Morning Star,' Yea, ' bright as the Sun' when he rides at noon

Through the cloudless sky, ' fair as the Moon,' Awful as serried armies are, Bearing their ' banners' aloft for war,

Stood and cried—Repent! repent! Now the Axe lies at the root Of every Tree not bearing fruit; Ere thy Day of Grace be fpent, Child of Adam, repent! repent! Then as far as my fight could pierce the wood, I faw that Axes all around,

At the root of the Trees, covered the ground; And the Trees were no longer Trees, but I stood In the midst of a Human Multitude!

Aged Sires with hoary hair,

Tender Infants, Children young,

Women and Men, fair and strong : But at the foot of each one there Lay an Axe, sharp and bare.

And then a lurid darknefs feemed To cover the whole, and forth there broke Gnafhings, wailings, fire, fmoke; Awful Words not to be named— God be praifed, I had but dreamed!

The Burial.

HEN the LORD JESUS Crucified Ere death unto His FATHER cried— I yield to Thee my Soul—and died ;

When the Centurion standing nigh With mighty stirrings heard that Cry And GOD in CHRIST did glorify;

276

When they who gathered round as one The things to witness which were done Had wildly beat their breasts and gone;

Joseph the rich man then waxed brave The Body of the LORD to crave That he might lay It in the Grave.

When Pilate bade it fo to be There came a little company And fadly gathered round the Tree.

From Hands and Feet the nails they wrenched, Weeping that they fo late had blenched, And came not till the Light was quenched.

From His dear Head they took the Crown, Half thinking He might know His Own, And fadly then they took Him down.

Upon the earth its Maker lies ; They gently clofe His All-pure Eyes, They feel His late-felt Agonies.

Each gracious Arm, which stretching wide To clasp the world for which He died, So long was parted from the Side,

Each Arm, so kind to things so base, Now seeks Its natural resting-place, Yet ceases not from that embrace;

ı

But for the Blood which left each Vein They need not wash That sacred Stain, To wash all else It doth remain.

Where is the Linen Joseph bought? The Spices Nicodemus brought, Aloes and Myrrh? Be wanting nought.

The fnowy Cerements wrap Him well, The Spices Him yet fweeter tell, We add our hearts with Him to dwell.

Slowly they lift Him from the fod, With holy fear the path is trod, As men should walk who bear their GOD.

In reverent order fad and flow From the dark place of Death they go, Or weeping wild or fobbing low;

And yet they tend to happy bowers, Alone among the garden-flowers They go to lay their GOD and ours.

Now to the hard Rock He is borne ; Sweet Rock by after-pilgrims worn, Sweet Field of the dead Wheaten Corn.

A little while their Truft they keep, A little while they pray and weep, And then they lay Him down to fleep.

They close the Tomb and go away To keep that awful Sabbath-day, But with the LORD in heart they stay.

How may a foon-forgotten rhyme Thus faintly fhadowing things fublime Bear fruit to live in after-time?

Look back, O Brother, on the Hill, Where late the Enemy had his will, Where eve is falling calm and ftill.

What crowns its fummit now? declare; Thou fay'ft a Crofs alone is there; A Crofs alone? O would it were.

O blind with error ! pray for eyes, Still on the Crofs the Victim dies, Still fin the Sinlefs crucifies.

More ruthlessly the ploughers plough, More sharp the thorns about His Brow, More cruel nails transfix Him now.

Daily by fins of Christian men In busy street and peaceful glen The LORD is crucified again.

Daily by fins of me and you The LORD is crucified anew; What, Men and Brethren, fhall we do?

We, His true murderers heretofore Will bear the Burden Joseph bore, Will take Him from the Cross once more.

The broken contrite-hearted wail May lift the thorns, may wrench the nail, May all the fad paft countervail.

So, ere our life's fun reach the west, We will take down the Only-Blest, And lay Him in the Grave to rest;

Lay Him to reft, and caft within, Through His dear Dying, all our fin, Then wait and weep and ftrive to win.

The Crofs stands out against the sky; The LORD has left it. Ye and I Must hasten where He died to die;

Be ours awhile the nails and thorn, So never ours the fhame and fcorn In the great Refurrection-Morn.

So never be to us addreffed— Depart, ye curfèd, to unreft; But—Come ye, of My FATHER bleft.

The Power of Contrition.

An Ode from the Italian.

POWER irrefiftible In lowly prayer contained ! There's nothing but unfeigned Repentance may procure.

Afcend, my Soul, to Golgotha, And fee the Crofs difplaying A proof beyond gainfaying That all this hope is fure.

Remember, in Thy Majefty In Heaven when Thou art feated----The contrite Thief entreated----Remember me, O LORD, Of finners me the wofulleft. The zeal of his confeffion Had under death's oppreffion A thrill of warmth reftored.

And JESUS to the fuppliant Inclined His Ear to pardon; Said—Thou in Heavenly Garden This day fhalt be with Me. His FATHER'S Realm of Bleffednefs He brought him to inherit, When He refigned His Spirit Upon the painful Tree.

The Power of Contrition.

Before the Apoftles' Fellowship This penitent Transgressor Was made by Grace possessor Of Heavenly Riches sure. O Power irressiftible In lowly prayer contained ! There's nothing but unfeigned Repentance may procure.

O Tear beyond all valuing Which penitence expresses: No pearl the East posses Can be compared with thee. In Heaven the very profligate Becomes admitted by thee, And let but GOD descry thee, No Rigour more hath He.

Thou Tear, that Mary Magdalen's Face trembling rannest over, Thy glistening to discover Made all the Angels glad. 'Gainst forfeitures innumerous An instant compensation, An earnest of Salvation In thy great worth she had.

And when upon the countenance Of Peter thou didft trickle, From eyelid unto fickle Lips that untruth had ftained, Thou cleared'ft all his perfidy : Such is thy worth excelling, And finful Souls paft telling Have cleannefs thus regained.

O would this gem paft valuing Were granted me to cherist ! May Grace before I perist This boon confer on me ! For, where the tear spontaneously The contrite Soul express, No pearl the East posses Compared with it can be.

Lux advenít veneranda.

A Sequence for the Feast of the Purification.

AY of bright illumination, Day of choral jubilation; Kindling hearts have caught the blaze;

Joyful light which brings another Feaftday of GoD's Virgin Mother, Sacred Day of folemn praife.

Let melodious voices founding, Hearts with deep emotion bounding, Part in glad thanksgiving bear :

284 Lux adbenit beneranda.

Praise to GOD's supreme Perfections! In our glowing recollections Let His noble Mother share.

Glorious in her exaltation, Tender in commiseration,

Named from penitential Love : Crowned with Dignity Maternal, With Virginity eternal, Shining in the Heaven above.

As the Bush with fire was glowing, Yet the flames, their power foregoing, Scathèd not the tenderest rod; So she whom the SPIRIT graces, Free from conjugal embraces, Maid and Mother bare her GOD.

Sealèd Fount of waters rising, Garden shut, yet fertilizing

With the feeds of Virtues, she : She was that mysterious Portal Closed by the King immortal, Ne'er for man unclosed to be;

Gideon's Fleece with dewdrops streaming, Field with scented odours steaming,

Fragrant to the bounds of earth ; Aaron's Rod in secret growing, Earth with Righteousness o'erflowing

For the faithful in that Birth.

Types of her, the mystic Fountain, Were the Castle, Temple, Mountain, Palace, Chamber, City fair : And whatever names of glory Mark the Saints in facred ftory, Let her also in them share.

Blest was she, with Grace endued ; By her name is joy renewed, Lilies to her fragrance yield, Honey by the fweetness fealed

In her lips is far outdone: Richer than the wine's red glow, Whiter than the gleaming fnow, Softer than the dewy rose, Brighter than the moon fhe fhews

In the Light of the True SUN.

Thou, O King of Hofts (upernal, Vanquisher of powers infernal, Way which must to Heaven be taken, Nor by constant hope forsaken; Gather to Thyfelf the erring, Call them back, their spirits stirring

By the faithfulness of Thine : Son of Mary, true Phylician, Grant us our devout petition ; Look not on fin's aggravations, But behold our supplications; Guilty Souls in fear abiding, Only in Thy Love confiding, Take into the Life Divine.

Master, say on!

HOU art gone Home, Thine earthly Work complete :

Yet from the calm height of Thy Heavenly Seat,

By Thine own Meffenger, the PARACLETE, Master, say on !

Those many things that Thou hadst yet to say We fain would hear, and be they what they may, Would bear them for Thy sake and in Thy way; Master, say on!

We have heard Thy loved Voice, and followed Thee

All through Thy Life, through all Thy Ministry From Bethlehem to glorious Bethany; Master, fay on !

Friends freshly parted soothe their yearning pain With written words that make them one again : Link us to Thee by Thy Sweet Comfort's chain; Master, fay on !

Dear are glad tidings from a diftant ftrand; But dearer are the traces of Thy Hand, The greetings from Thy far-off Holy Land; Master, say on!

Behind, hopes turned to griefs, and joys to memories

Are fading out of fight :
Before, pains changed to peace, and dreams to certainties
Are glowing in GoD's Light.

Hither come backflidings, defeats, diftreffes, Vexing this mortal ftrife :

Thither go progrefs, victories, fucceffes, Crowning immortal Life.

No jubilees, few gladfome feftive hours Form landmarks for my way : But Heaven, and earth, and Saints, and friends, and flowers Are keeping Eafter-Day !

The Lord's Largess.

WO Days, by contrast linked together, Sharing the wealth of spring-tide weather, The buoyant cloud, the breezy calm, The budding growth of flower and palm, Each with a holy hiftory Fraught with a hidden Mystery: To that, the depth of shame and sadness; To this, the height of glorious Gladness. That, darkest hour of forrow's night, Is brightened by the coming Light; This, to enhance her joy, would fain Glance backward to that shade again. Lo! for each pent-up pang of trouble The promised Peace is rendered double; No claim receives its due discharge, But more-the LORD hath heard at large : He bids the sinful throng depart, Whofe watch weighed down each stony heart; Then fends those hearts so cold and hard The Bleffing of an Angel-guard. The Earth's drear curfe of brier and thorn On the bleak hill of Calvary borne, Returns from Paradifal bowers An Easter boon of buds and flowers.

Ad perennis Uitae Fontem.

A Hymn of S. Peter Damiani on the Joys of Paradife.

OR the Fount of Life eternal is my thirsting Spirit fain,

And my prifoned Soul would gladly burft her fleshly bars in twain,

While the exile strives and struggles on to win her home again.

- As she groans beneath the troubles which with weary weight oppres,
- She is thinking on the Glory which fhe loft through wickednefs,
- And the thought of joy departed but increaseth her distress.
- Who can tell the perfect gladness of the Peace within the skies,
- Where, of living pearls upbuilded, Mansions for the Bleffed rife,
- Where the golden halls and rooftrees shine and glow with radiant dyes?
- Framed alone of precious jewels stately Dwellings there appear,
- And the highways of the City, paved with gold, as crystal clear;
- Mire is far, and filth is banished, nought that may pollute is near.

290 Ad perennis Ultae Fontem.

- Winters fnowing, fummers glowing, never thither pain may bring,
- There the gorgeous rofes flower in the calm of endlefs fpring,
- Balms exude, and crocus blufhes, lilies fair are bloffoming.
- Meads are sheening, fields are greening, honey drops from combs of bees,
- Liquid odours, fragrant spices, shed their perfume on the breeze,
- Never falling fruits are hanging from the ever leafy trees.
- There no moon through phases passes, sun and stars bestow no light,
- But the LAMB on His glad City, Light unsetting, Shineth bright ;
- There the day is everlafting, gone for aye are time and night.
- For the Saints, now crowned in triumph, like the fun in radiance glow,
- Greet each other in that gladness which the Saints alone can know,
- While, secure, they count their battles with their subjugated foe.
- Fleshly wars they know no longer, fince with blemish stained is none,

- For the fpiritual body and the Soul at last are one;
- Dwell they now in Peace eternal, with all stumbling they have done.
- To their first estate return they, freed from every mortal sore,
- And the Truth, for ever present, ever lovely, they adore,
- Drawing from that living Fountain living fweetnefs evermore.
- And they drink in changeless being as they taste those waters clear;
- Bright are they, and fwift, and gladfome, no more perils need they fear;
- There the youth can know no ageing, never cometh ficknef near.
- Thence they draw their life unending, passingness hath passed away,
- Thence they grow, and bloom, and flourish, freed for ever from decay,
- And deathless hath swallowed up the might of death for aye.
- They know Him Who knoweth all things, nothing from their ken may flee,
- And the thoughts of one another in the inmost heart they see;
- One in choofing and refufing, one are they in unity.

292 Ad perennis Alitae Fontem.

- And though each for divers merits there hath won a various throne,
- Yet their love for one another maketh what each loves his own,
- Every prize to all is common, yet belongs to each alone.
- Where the Body is, together in their flight the eagles speed,
- There the Saints and there the Angels feek refreshment in their need,
- And the Sons of Earth and Heaven on that One Bread ever feed.
- Ever full, yet ever craving, they defire, and yet posses,
- But their fulness brings no loathing, and their hunger no distress,
- Eagerly they eat for ever, ever eat in joyfulnes.
- In new harmonies unceafing they with voice melodious fing,
- While their liftening ears are gladdened with the harps' exulting ring,
- And for He hath made them victors, praises chant they to their King.
- Where the King of Heaven is prefent, happy is the gazing Soul,

She is not dead, but fleepeth. 293

- And she sees the double framework of the globe beneath her roll,
- Sees the fun and moon and planets and the ftars that ftud the pole.
- JESU, Palm of all Thy Soldiers, who in Thee alone confide,
- Bring me to that Holy City when my belt is laid afide,
- Grant that I may share the portion of the Saints who there abide.
- While the war is yet unended, give me vigour for the fray,
- Give me, when the fight is over, Peace that paffeth not away,
- Give Thyfelf to me, O JESU, as my one Reward for aye.

She is not dead, but acepeth.

ISTER, once more with fairy touch Wake music's spirit from the strings, While o'er the rose the twilight blush And the tired throstle folds her wings.

My body lies within this room Worn by the strife of busy day— But far beyond the deepening gloom My Soul hath fled, far, far away.

294 She is not dead, dut lleepeth.

Beyond yon mountain in the clouds, Whofe white peak faintly flufhes ftill, I fteal 'mid Angel-glift'ning crowds That flowly float adown the hill.

What feems to thee a wild blue plain Among cloud headlands, is a lake, On whofe clear ripple refts no ftain, While Angel-voices o'er it break.

Their long robes gliftening as they pafs Oaring on gently with foft flight, Cloud-fhadows noifelefs o'er the grafs— Are thefe the Children of the Light?

Seven Angels coronalled with gold And lilies, lift above each head Their white arms, in whose tender fold A little Sister lieth dead.

A Baby-angel, on whofe face God's holy Dew is shining yet, Who neftles in her resting place, Her lips with tearful kisses wet.

O'er the blue lake their footfteps fail, While myriad echoes haunt the fky, Around that tiny form fo pale, Around that fleeping ftirlefs eye.

Just where the fringe of deathless flowers Is kiffed by every dimpled wave,

She is not dead, but lleepeth.

They lay her in the careless bowers Of Paradise beyond the grave.

Yet one Boy-Angel stoops to kifs The filver Crofs upon her brow-In the lap of Eternal Blifs The Baby is no Baby now.

Higher and higher foar the wings-I cannot fee their azure eyes; Yet one clear voice upfoaring fings-In me its mufic never dies.

In filence of the wakeful night, Befide the hurry of Life's stream,

I liften with a strange delight, I wander in a stranger dream.

I dream that men may cark and moil, And yet their labour be in vain; Their knowledge but a mocking toil Which lands them on the shores of pain.

But that dead Baby feeth now What our dim eyes aye fail to fee-The glories of that radiant bow That links Time to Eternity.

I dream GOD's Angels ftand around To watch the Baby's waking fmile, As couched on the holy ground Where nought may enter to defile.

296 She is not dead, but leepeth.

She reads with knowledge, clear and strong, The Truths from Angels eyes concealed, And bears upon a flood of song Love's fuller, brighter Creed revealed;

Is fondled by the LORD'S Redeemed, Is kiffed, and paffed from hand to hand, As one upon whose face had gleamed The love light of the old home land.

And o'er the lake, and through the clouds, Gazing they yearn to hear once more, From out fin's mift that overfhrouds The furges of earth's troublous fhore;

Once to hear how their loved ones fare; Once to breathe—We are happy here, Where is no fin or ftrife or care, Where childlike Love hath loft all fear.

'Tis o'er—the music Melts away— Death's voices tremble on its tide. Oh, in my Soul, through life's brief day The wife grief of that fong abide !

The Holy Sacrifice.

EHOLD! all things await Thy Coming, LORD, in state. The Altar-Vessels gleam, the Tapers burn:

O must not we prepare Our hearts Thy Light to share, And should not all our Souls with longing yearn ? O Childhood, dear to Him Who fways the Cherubim, O Manhood, with the careworn brow fo pale, That into Truth can'ft look, And wilt not shadows brook. Come! at His Shrine the Incarnate LAMB to hail. And thou, true Woman's heart, That knew'st not to depart When thy LORD lay deferted in the Tomb, Rejoice! The greatest now Before Him bend the brow. Come ! earth's remoteft Nations, there is room. Once, SAVIOUR ! once alone Upon Thine Altar-Throne, Dear Calvary's Cross, didst Thou for sinners die; But in Thine own Abode Thou art the LAMB of GOD. And blendest earth and Heaven in spoufals high.

The Holy Sacrifice.

As victims flain of yore Beside the open door, Within the veil by fire Heaven's Gifts became, Love infinite, Divine, On Heaven's translucent Shrine Confumes, and yet confumes not, in its flame. Sweet LAMB of GOD, once flain, Who alway doft remain The Undying LAMB on Heaven's vast Throne above. At this most wondrous Feast Each Chriftian Soul is Prieft, And yields Thyfelf, the Sacrifice of Love. Lo! over earth's expanse, Beneath Heaven's countenance. A myriad Altars wait the Incarnate Gueft, Who floops, whilft time and space Lie in His Arms' embrace, To be the Inmate of the faithful breast. As from the fource of day A myriad funbeams play Upon earth's vales, and fill each chaliced flower, So He, Who guards Heaven's Throne, Still makes His Presence known Through earth's wide courts, and comes in Love and Power. Not in all gems of Inde Couldst Thou be fitly shrined,

Most gracious Presence, Heavenly, yet most True;

The Holy Sacrifice.

Our earthly accents fail, Nor Heaven may speak the tale, But hearts may yield the fervent homage due. Descend, O LORD! And we Will supplicate, through Thee, For all we love in earth or Spirit-sphere, And for Thy costly fake We know that GOD will take Our feeble prayers, as flowers of love and fear, And bind them in a wreath To circle Hell and Death And draw the universe to His great Throne. This is our fervice due; Come! Children, aid may you, For CHRIST is here, and Children are His Own. And all the facred throng Shall join in our glad fong; Angels, Archangels, Thrones and Hierarchies, And she, that Virgin Blest, Who cradled on her breaft The LORD of all, and killed His fleeping Eyes. With her each Patriarch great, All Souls that conquered hate, Prophets, Apostles, Martyrs, all as one, Swell high the blisful Song Which, ages vast along, High Heaven shall carol to the FATHER'S SON.

God's Acre.

O HOLY GHOST, come! fire Our hearts, and joy infpire Worthy His Prefence Who defcends this morn. Peace, Mortals: fong nor fpeech Can this great Mystery reach; Into a world of finners GOD is born.

Bod's Acre.

UN was fhining bright and fair, Wind was hufhed, and calm was there, Calm, and Peace beyond compare In GOD's Acre.

Flowerets blooming, rare and gay, Decked the Grave-plats on that day, And each Chaplet feemed to fay— We fade and bloom.

Thought I then with joy and woe Of dear Friends I once did know, Sleeping now long years ago In God's Acre.

Thought I then with throbbing brain, Heart was beating—not with pain, For I heard a glorious Strain From God's Acre.

Bod's Acre.

"We—the Voices feemed to fay— Far from pain and grief away, Ever, for thee, lone One, pray, Watches keeping.

"Thine awhile must be the strife, Thine the battle-field of life, Thine the day with forrow rife, Yet be hopeful.

"Wear thine armour, Soldier brave, Sailor, breaft the fwelling wave, One there is all ftrong to fave, Then be faithful.

"Wipe the tear-drop from thine eye, And reprefs the rifing figh : We unfeen, yet ever nigh, Will cheer thee on.

"Ye who toil, and we that wait By the bright and golden Gate, Till we reach the higheft ftate, In CHRIST are one."

Sun was shining bright and fair; Blest Spirit-voices filled the air; With thankful heart I said my prayer In God's Acre.

The five fmooth Stones of David.

Though signs there are of martial pride, None armed for combat come. A mighty Champion's standing here, And all his form gigantic fear : Fierce is his look, his Challenge loud ; Pale terror haunts the fainting crowd.

His height fix cubits and a fpan, By half he paffes mortal man:

Who can his stature reach? The very love GOD gives of life To turn from such unequal strife

Would all but madmen teach. Thus argue still the worldly wife, For ever seeing mountains rise, And trembling lest a little breath Should swell into the storm of Death.

A brazen helmet on his head Nods terrible, and plates are spread Of polished brass around;

The five (mooth Stones of David. 303

Of stature vast he treads the earth Like offspring of some monstrous birth.

And fhakes the folid ground. Impregnable appears the fhield One bears before him on the field; His hands, like hazel wand, uprear Of dreadful length his iron spear.

Methinks I trace in him again The great Arch-enemy of men,

In verse immortal told : He, when his fury fiercest burned, From armoury celestial turned—

And why art thou lefs bold? 'Twas Angels and an Arm Divine Repulfed him then : fuch arms are thine: The Soldiers of a Heavenly King To combat Heavenly weapons bring.

Thou who in youth hast often read, "Salvation sure shall fence the head,

True Peace the feet defend, Strong Faith, refifting every dart With ample Shield, fence every part,

And round thy steps descend"— His simple Word to thee is "Stand! Girt round with Truth, and in thy hand Tight grass, to serve for spear and sword, The two-edged falchion of His Word."

304 The five smooth Stones of David.

There's but one fecret in the fight— The trufting to ANOTHER's Might;

For, strange as it may seem, Whoe'er shall to the lists descend, Though armed in proof, without this Friend,

Will find his ftrength a dream. We wreftle not with things of earth, But fubtle Foes of airy birth : Who combats in that fhadowy field Muft more than mortal weapons wield.

He who this Champion vast withstood Thought not e'en royal armour good

Whofe temper was unknown; But mindful of a former strife, Trusted Who then preferved his life

Would ftill with triumph crown. Now first, ere join we in the fray, A moment each in earnest pray; Together turn we then and look For five smooth Pebbles in the Brook.

Inquire you where that River flows? On Sinai first the Fountain rose,

Then Judah's valleys laves, Till, mixing with the waters free, From one fmall Well in Galilee

It swelled to mightieft waves : And still with never-ceasing song It rolls majestical along,

The five fmooth Stones of David. 305

Fountain of Peace in every land, Or Zembla's ice, or Afric's fand.

One Stone resplendent o'er the rest, Fit Jewel for an Angel's breast,

Shines bright in cold or heat; And not in all yon Eastern train, 'Mid mines of gold where Sultans reign,

May fuch your vision meet : No larger than the mustard's seed, From it such lustrous rays proceed, Where'er Faith's lucid sparkles shine, They make whate'er they touch Divine.

Fragment of fome unfhaken Rock This feems, whofe force may bear the fhock

Of tempest and of tide; And though, perchance, of rougher face, It stands with more enduring grace

Than fmoother works of pride : If placed befide the waters' brink, Who treads on it fhall never fink ; Wild though the waves of forrow roll, They may not whelm the Patient Soul.

In the clear depths another lies Of which secure a Shaft may rife

Afcending day by day; Upright and pure, the bufy morn Shines on it from the early dawn

Till gleams the evening ray :

306 The five imooth Stones of Dabid.

Contented with the rules of old, It feeks no adventitious gold Of man's device. Thus fpake the LORD! Obedience asks no further word.

Goodly thy ftructure : clouds will form And fhroud it with the coming ftorm ;

Perchance thy heart may quail-The Pillar of Obedience rock Unfteady 'neath the thunder shock,

Well-nigh the basement fail; Faith's Jewel will its light supply More radiant through its bright ally: Who could with earthly forrow cope Unlighted by the Gleams of Hope?

Now all feems polifhed, fixed, fecure, Rock, Pillar, Jewel, to endure

And shine through years to come; Yet somewhat still deficient seems, A warmer glow to shed its beams

On neighbour and on home : It fhines with fuch diffusive ray, Ne'er on one spot its glories stay ; Base, column, capital above, All sparkle with the Rays of Love.

O might I fuch a Temple rife, Compact with what the LORD fupplies, The Unction of His Grace !

Hymns for Whitfuntide.

O might my life henceforward be Pure, ftraight, from worldly follies free, Stedfaft in its own place ! Patient myfelf, with active Zeal, True Love that can for others feel, With Hope ftill cheerful in my breaft, And Faith in an Eternal Reft.

hymns for Whitfuntide: from the Latin.

Jam Christus astra ascenderat.

OW CHRISThad climbed the ftarry skies, Once more returning to his Own, Fraught with the FATHER'S Gift of Price,

To fend the HOLY SPIRIT down.

Onward the Solemn Feast-day rolled, Upon its seven-fold circle borne; The mystic week of weeks, that told The coming of that blessed morn.

It comes, the third Hour of the day, While thunder shakes the world's wide dome, ' And, as the blest Apostles pray, Heralds aloud that GOD doth come.

Hymng for Whitluntide. 308

Forth from the Everlasting SIRE The FLAME Divine falls manifest, With the True WORD's enkindling Fire To fill each faithful Christian breast.

The HOLY SPIRIT breathes abroad, And while their freshened hearts rejoice, . They speak the mighty Works of GOD With varying tongue, but one true Voice.

To men from every Nation called, Barbarian, Latin, Jew, and Greek, Wondering alike, alike appalled,

With tongue of each the Preachers (peak.

False Jewry then, with heart untrue, And spirit stern and evil-willed,

Dares madly taunt CHRIST's faithful few-* Yea, with new wine these Men are filled !?

But with high deed and sign of might Peter confronts the crowd, and shews By proof, on Joel built aright, That falfely speak those faithles Jews.

Beata nobis gaudia.

OUND roll the weeks our hearts to greet, With blissful joys returning; For lo! the Holy PARACLETE On twelve bright brows fits burning.

Hymns for Whitsuntide.

With quivering Flame He lights on each, In fashion like a Tongue, to teach That eloquent they are of speech,

Their hearts with true Love yearning.

While with all tongues they fpeak to all, The nations deem them maddened; And drunk with wine the Prophets call, Whom GoD's Good SPIRIT gladdened; A marvel this, in Mystery done, The Holy Paschal-tide out-run, The duly numbered days have won Remission for the saddened.

O GOD moft Holy, Thee we pray With reverent brow low bending, Grant us the SPIRIT's Gifts to-day, The Gifts from Heaven defcending : And fince Thy Grace hath deigned to bide Within our breafts, once fanctified, Deign, LORD, to caft our fins afide, Henceforth calm feafons fending.

Inter sulphurei fulgura turbinis.

MID the whirlwind and the thunder cloud, Amid the lightning fires that flash abroad; With blast of trumpet sounding long and loud, On Sinai's Mount of awe, Unto Thine ancient Race their ancient Law Thou givest forth, O GOD:

310 Hymns for Whitluntide.

By terror thus Thou trieft their faithlefs hearts; Doft fin forbid? Or as the price of fin Doft death affign? But what avail thefe fmarts; Can dark and difmal threat In them obedience or true Love beget, Can dread their homage win?

Lo! at the foot of that still smoking Hill 'The People, heedless of their plighted troth, The loved, the faithless People, faithless still, A molten Image make, And for an Idol their True GoD forsake, The GoD of Sabaoth.

Oh! without Thee, our Souls' far better part, What can our poor weak minds avail, O LORD?
Pour light upon our fpirits; from our heart Its iron hardness draw, And make us, for Thou canst, obey Thy Law, And doers of Thy Word.

Quo vos Magistri Gloria, quo Salus.

O where your Mafter's Glory Invites your band abroad; Go forth for man's Salvation And bear the Word of GoD; Go where the Virgin harvest of all lands— Gowhere a Brother's Soul your loving care demands.

Hymns for Whitfuntide. 311

Go! facred Band : behold ye, Even now the fields are white; For Brethren thrice a thousand Have caught the Words of Light; Matured whereby, and ripened like a field That GOD hath bleffed, their fruit a thousand fold they yield. Pricked to their inmost hearts'-core They weep with bitter tears: And in the hallowed laver Their stains of by-gone years Fain would they wash away-they burn, they burn. For that bleft Stream whofe waves all stains to freshness turn. But not to Judah's border Shall that bright funshine cling, The Sun, where through all regions He runs his golden ring, Lights up fresh fields of triumph for your feet, And warms all hearts with glee your glad some call to greet. A thousand fanes are falling;

Proud wifdom vails its front;

The courtly tyrant trembles;

The murdering fword is blunt :

Wild though the torturer's wrath—his furies cease,

And conquered vengeance quails before the Men of Peace.

Come! All-creating SPIRIT, Thou a new world didft frame; On us Thy Power out-pouring, Our Souls with Love enflame; Almighty God, All-gracious, All-benign, Us with Thy Grace renew, and make us wholly Thine.

The Church.

HOUGH thou art lowly now, Pale and discrowned, Laying thy holy brow Faint on the ground,

Traitors deceiving thee, Scorners furrounding, Falfe teachers grieving thee, Cruel hands wounding; Though the ftorm hover Frowning and dark; Though the wave cover The walls of thine Ark, And Hope's fweet Dove for thee Bring not one leaf, Mother, our love for thee Grows with thy grief!

What if her word may be Void of command !

What if the fword we fee Drop from her hand! Shall we not fear her?

Dare we forget her ? Cling we the nearer !

Love we the better! Let our thoughts only paint

What she has been; Meek as a lonely Saint!

Crowned as a Queen ! When she lies dumbly Gather we humbly

Kneeling and fay-Powerlefs and lonely! Speak, whifper only,

We will obey !

No idle figh for her ! Ye who would die for her, Nerve ye to live for her ; Suffer and ftrive for her ; Pray for her tearfully ; Hope for her fearfully ; Let your tears rain on her, Till each foul ftain on her Paſs from the ſight,

And there remains on her Robes of pure white!

By the dews of thy morning, Holy and foft, ٠,

By words of fweet warning Uttered so oft, By accents adorning Daily which rife, Where spires upsoaring Pierce the deep skies, By Him Whofe Miffion Gave, not in vain, The awful Commission-Remit and Retain ! By the Life which thou livest E'en now in thy shame, By the Food which thou givest We dare not to name, By the Gifts that are in thee, Power, Faith, and Purity Seek we to win thee From floth and obscurity. Answer our loyalty Waiting and weeping ! Put on thy royalty! Rife from thy fleeping! Take thine own place again Where stars are bright, And from GOD's Face again

Drink deathlefs Light! Rife and fubdue to thee All, as of old, Thofe that were true to thee,

Those that were cold;

ĺ

Children who pained thee, Rebels who took thee,

Foes who difdained thee,

Friends who forfook thee! Yes, all fhall gaze on thee, Showering their praife on thee, As those pure rays on thee

Vifibly shine ; Earth, now no home for thee, Then shall become for thee

One mighty Shrine, One vast Community, Known by its Unity Truly Divine !

Call ye this vanity, Work never done, Which poor Humanity Mars, ere begun ? Nay, no defpair for us ! Think on CHRIST'S Prayer for us— Let them be One ! Ear to the thunder dull, Senfe-blinded eye, GoD ftill is wonderful, CHRIST yet is nigh !

The Salutation of the Breek Church on Cafter Day.

PRINGTIDE birdsare finging, finging, For the daybreak in the East, Silver bells are ringing, ringing, For the Church's glorious Feast.

CHRIST is rifen ! CHRIST is rifen ! Sin's long triumph now is o'er. CHRIST is rifen ! Death's dark prifon Now can hold His Saints no more. CHRIST is rifen ! rifen, Brother ! Brother, CHRIST is rifen indeed !

Holy Women fought Him weeping, Weeping at the break of dawn, Sought their LORD where He lay fleeping, In the love of hearts forlorn, Life for death on death's throne meeting Joy for forrow, faith for fear, For their tears the Angel's greeting— CHRIST is rifen ! He is not here. CHRIST is rifen ! rifen, Brother ! Brother, CHRIST is rifen indeed !

Loved Apostles, scarce believing In His Triumph o'er the grave, Hear the tale amid their grieving, Hasten eager to the Cave, Find the folded grave Clothes lying, Death's unloofed and fhattered chain, Find Him gone, Death's power defying, From the Cavern fealed in vain. CHRIST is rifen ! rifen, Brother ! Brother, CHRIST is rifen indeed !

Mary comes, a refuge feeking For her mourning and her fhame, Lo! a well-known voice is fpeaking, Lo! the Mafter calls her name— Firft, the life o'er fin victorious, She who wept for fin adored, For her tears the miffion glorious To announce the Rifen LORD. CHRIST is rifen! rifen, Brother ! Brother, CHRIST is rifen indeed!

For her tears, O glad reverfing Of the Woman's work of old, Glorious Tidings now rehearfing; For the tale in Eden told, Woman's voice that tale fupplying, Brought in death by Satan's lie; Woman's voice is now replying— CHRIST is rifen ! we fhall not die. CHRIST is rifen ! we fhall not die. Brother, CHRIST is rifen indeed !

Where the noontide rays are falling On the rugged mountain side,

318 Salutation of the Breek Thurch.

Brethren journey, fad recalling How He loved, and how He died. He is with them! He is hearing How their truft and hope had fled, To their loving faith appearing In the Bleffing of the Bread. CHRIST is rifen! rifen, Brother! Brother, CHRIST is rifen indeed!

Flashing back the funset glory Burns a cafement high and dim, There the Ten, on all His Story Sadly dwelling, speak of Him. He is there! the Light that never Into twilight fades away, Day-ftar of the Dawn that ever Breaks into the perfect Day! CHRIST is risen! risen, Brother! Brother, CHRIST is risen indeed!

Saints! your Crofs in patience bearing, Mourners! [tained with many a tear,

Penitents! in forrow wearing

Darkest weeds of shame and fear, CHRIST is risen! lose your sadness

Joying with the joyous throng,

Faithful hearts will find their gladness Joining in the Easter song.

> CHRIST is risen ! risen, Brother ! Brother, CHRIST is risen indeed !

De Laudíbus S. Scrípturae.

CHRIST is rifen! CHRIST the Living, All His mourners' tears to flay, CHRIST is rifen! CHRIST forgiving Wipes the flain of fin away. CHRIST is rifen! CHRIST is rifen! Sin's long triumph now is o'er; CHRIST is rifen! Death's dark prifon Holds His Faithful never more. CHRIST is rifen! rifen, Brother! Brother, CHRIST is rifen indeed!

De Laudíbus S. Scripturae.

An ancient Latin Poem.

O cull the gems of fuch a theme for praife,

Though in a feeble fong is gracious toil;

This is the household grain for famine days

That Hebrew Pilgrims drew from Coptic soil.

The palatable Manna from the sky

Flavoured with every fweet to every lip; Briefly in price it doth the gold outvie,

In sheen the Sun, in taste what bees do sip.

What day brings earth, it doth to mankind bring; Day lights the fields: this lights the Soul within;

320 De Laudíbus S. Scrípturae.

A garden-brook, a fathomlefs waterfpring Nurturing all thoughts, all hearts o'erparched with fin;

GOD's Pafture and CHRIST's Wine-ftore : Heavens that glow

With stars for every mystery they hide;

This the quick writer's pen, and this the bow Whofe medicinal shafts each heart divide.

The in-wheeling wheels that like to Ocean's flow

Are full of wonder, all are here again; Four forms, one kind, that mount or ftand or go

As the indwelling energies ordain.

The Roll upon the LAMB's Right Hand, writ through,

Within the mystic, and the plain outside;

Here Moses' face is hidden from the view;

- Here CHRIST's own Glory draws the veil aside.
- This which in figure Moses, CHRIST in deed Sprinkled with Blood, both form and matter holds;

The old, the form, the new Law for our need More large; what that would cover this unfolds.

While lasts the type that testifieth, Deep Calls unto Deep. Fit title for the twain :

A slender bolt doth those abysses keep,

But to embrace them were an effort vain.

Here evermore to muse, to search, and know

Is to enjoy Heaven's light, and Heavenly store; No better lot has man, than studying so,

To root his life where Life is evermore.

Happy, who thirsting, in this spring can find Elixir to embalm his life each day;

Else doth the man seem tasteles to my mind

Who fails, to learn by heart this Heavenly lay. Who studies it for wealth or human praise

He is not wife nor yet to Wifdom near; She for herfelf must courted be always,

And oh what boons she gives her lover! Hear :---More chaste the love becomes; the sense more bright,

From temporal preffures is the mind more free; The text breeds virtues ever, renders light

The Soul, and bids all mortal failings flee !

5. Patrick's Coat of Mail.

RM me to-day, in this awful hour, Myprayer to the All-Holy TRINITY, My faith in Him Who reigneth in Power,

The GOD of the Elements, FATHER, and SON,

And PARACLETE-SPIRIT, Which THREE are The ONE,

The Incomprehensible DEITY.

Arm me to-day, my Prayer to the LORD, To CHRIST the Eternal WORD,

Who came to redeem from sin and death

322 S. Patrick's Coat of Mail.

Our fallen race ; And I would place The Virtue that compaffeth His Incarnation lowly, His Baptifm pure and holy, His Life of toil and tears and affliction, His dolorous Death, His Crucifixion, His Burial facred and fad and lone, His Refurrection to life again, His glorious Afcenfion to Heaven's high Throne, And laftly His Coming dread— His terrible Coming to judge all men, Both the living and the dead.

Arm me, and keep me, in this dark place, With Virtue that dwells in the Seraphim's love ; The Virtue and the Grace

That are in the obedience And unfhaken allegiance Of all the Archangels and Angels above : And in the hope of the Refurrection To everlafting Reward and Election ;

And in the Prayers of the Fathers of old ; And in the Truths which the Prophets foretold ; And in the Apostles' manifold Preaching ; And in the Confessor's faith and teaching : And in the purity ever dwelling

Within unfullied virgin's breaft; And in the actions bright and excelling Of all good Men who the Lord confeffed. Arm me to-day, in this fateful hour, The Heaven above with all its power, And the fun with its brightnefs, And the fnow with its whitenefs, And fire with all the ftrength it hath, And lightning, with its rapid wrath, And the winds with their fwiftnefs along their path, And the fea with its deepnefs, And the rocks with their fteepnefs, And the earth with its coldnefs---All thefe I place By GoD's good Grace Between myfelf and the Devil's boldnefs.

Arm me to-day,

O God, my stay;

May the Strength of GOD now nerve me ! May the Power of GOD preferve me ! May GOD the Almighty be near me ! May GOD the Almighty cheer me ! May GOD the Almighty hear me ! May GOD give me eloquent fpeech ! May the Arm of GOD protect me ! May the Wifdom of GOD direct me ! May GOD give me power to teach and to preach ! May the Shield of GOD defend me ! May the Hoft of GOD attend me, And ward me, And guard me, Against the wiles of Demons and Devils, Against temptations of vice and evils, Against bad passions and wrathful will

Of the reckless mind and the wicked heart; Against every man that designs me ill,

Whether leagued with others or plotting apart.

In this hour of hours I place all thefe Powers Between myfelf and every foe Who threats body or Soul With danger or dole ; To protect me againft the evils that flow, From lying Soothfayers' incantations ; From the gloomy laws of Gentile Nations ; From Herefy's hateful innovations : Be all thefe my defenders, My guards againft every ban, Againft fpell of Druid and Witch and Magician ; Againft knowledge that renders Thick night the condition Of fpirit and Soul of man.

> May CHRIST, I pray, Protect me to-day Againft poifon and fire, Againft drowning and wounding, That fo, in His Grace abounding, I may earn the Preacher's hire.

5. Patrick's Coat of Mail. 325

CHRIST, as a Light, Illumine and guide me ! CHRIST, as a Shield, o'erfhadow and cover me ! CHRIST be under me ! CHRIST be over me ! CHRIST be befide me, On left hand and right ! CHRIST be before me, behind me, about me ! CHRIST be this day within and without me ! CHRIST, the Humble, the Lowly, the Meek, CHRIST, the All-powerful, be In the heart of each to whom I fpeak, In the mouth of all who fpeak to me,

In all who draw near me, Or see me, or hear me.

Arm me to-day in this awful hour, My Prayer to the Holy TRINITY! Glory to Him Who reigneth in Power, The GOD of the Elements, FATHER, and SON, And PARACLETE-SPIRIT, which THREE are The ONE, The Everlafting DIVINITY.

Salvation dwells with the LORD, With CHRIST the Omnipotent WORD; From generation to generation, Grant us, O LORD, Thy Grace and Salvation!

Dies est laetitiae.

Hymn on the Nativity of our Lord Jesus Christ.

N this feftal Day we fing Joyful tidings hearing, For this Day our Heavenly King On our earth appearing

Comes a Sweet and Lovely CHILD, Born for us of a spect mild,

Made for us a Creature ; He Who reigns in boundless space, God, Who has no form, nor face, Takes our human feature.

Mother here a Daughter fee ! Here the FATHER SON is ! What more wondrous things could be ? GOD and MAN here One is ; Servant is, and Mafter too, Whom, though here, we cannot view, Nor can apprehend Him ; Prefent here, yet diftant far : Loft in deepeft mift we are, None can comprehend Him. Nature at this Wonder done Loft in mute furprife is, When a Rofe, GOD'S Only SON,

From a Lily rifes;

When a Virgin gives Him birth, Him, Who made the Heavens and earth, Him, our GOD Eternal: And her facred Virgin Breaft Feeds Him, and affords Him reft. In her love Maternal. Lo! an Angel bright appears In deep night descending, Calms the humble Shepherds' fears, Who their flocks are tending ; Joyful Tidings brings to earth Of the King and SAVIOUR's Birth, Infant feebly crying, He Who is the Angels' LORD, By all Heaven and earth adored, In a Manger lying.

Cryftal pure will ftill remain Sunbeams through it ſhining, So the Virgin knows no ſtain, No high gifts reſigning ; Spotleſs after, as before, Her bleſt Womb for mortals bore GOD to earth deſcended ; Bleſſèd is that Virgin Breaſt ; Bleſt thoſe hands, which firſt and beſt CHRIST, an INFANT, tended.

Night in darkness shrouds His Birth, Who the Sun gives splendour, In a ftable lies on earth Earth's Prince and Defender. That right Hand fo clofely bound Fixed the brilliant ftars around, And the Heavens extended; He is heard in infant Cries

Who with thunder rends the skies, With dread lightnings blended.

Lo! the Virgin humbly goes, In her chafte Womb bearing GoD's Own SON, to rank with those,

Who in crowds repairing, Are in Bethlehem enrolled : O may we our names behold

On Heaven's glorious portals, With those Angels, who in love Glory sung to GOD above,

Peace proclaimed to mortals.

Now with prayer be homage done,

Hearts and voices raifing,

Worshipping the Infant Son,

And the Mother praifing : Here a Wondrous CHILD is found, Publifh then His Name around :

Thee our LORD imploring, We proclaim our GOD most High, Thee our JESUS ever nigh,

With all earth adoring.

Bo, and come.

CHRIST, Who with Almighty Hands This our being gave us, When we broke His high Commands Would be born to fave us; To Him now devoutly pray---LORD forgive our fins this day, Do Thou never leave us, Let us not at death be loft, But to join Thy Heavenly Hoft In that hour receive us.

Go, and come.

HOU fayest to us, "Go! And work while it is called to-day; the Sun

Is high in heaven, the harvest but begun;

Can hands oft raised in prayer, can hearts that know

The beat of Mine through love and pain be flow To foothe and ftrengthen?" Still Thou fayeft "Go!

Lift up your eyes and fee where now the Line Of GoD hath fallen for you, one with Mine Your Lot and Portion. Go! where none relieves, Where no one pities; thruft the fickle in And reap and bind, where toil and want and fin Are ftanding white, for here My Harvests grow: Go! glean for Me 'mid wafted frames outworn, 'Mid Souls uncheered, uncared for; hearts forlorn, With care and grief acquainted long, unknown To earthly friend, of Heaven unmindful grown; In homes where no one loves, where none believes, For here I gather in My goodly Sheaves." Thou fayeft to us, "Go!"

Thou sayest to us, "Go!

To conflict and to death." While friends are few And foes are many, what haft Thou to do With peace, Thou Son of Peace? A Man of war Art Thou from Youth ! when Thou doft girded ride,

Two stern Instructors, Truth and Mercy, guide Thy Hand to things of terror; friends and foes Thine Arrows feel; a Sword before Thee goes, And after Thee a Fire, confusion stirred Among the nations even by the Word Of Meekness and of Right. "Yea, take and eat Of these My Words," Thou sayest, " they are sweet

As honey; yet this roll that now I prefs Upon your lips will turn to bitternefs When ye shall speak its message; lo! a cry Of wrath and madness, ere the ancient Lie That wraps the roots of earth will quit its hold, A shriek, a wrench abhorred; and yet be bold, O ye My Servants! take My Rod and stand Before the King, nor fear if in your hand

It feem unto a ferpent's form to grow; Rife up, My Priefts! My mighty Men, with found Of folemn Trumpet, walk this City round, A Blaft will come from GOD, His Word and Will Through hail and ftorm and ruin to fulfil; Then fhall ye fee the Towers roll down, the Wall Built up with blood and tears and tortures fall, And from the living Grave the living Dead Will rife, as from their fleep, difquieted; O Earth, this Baptifm of thine is flow! Not dews from morning's womb, not gentle rains That drop all night can wafh away thy ftains. The Fire muft fall from Heaven; the blood muft flow

All round the Altar."-Still Thou fayeft, "Go!"

And that Thou fayeft, "Go!" Our hearts are glad; for he is ftill Thy Friend And beft beloved of all whom Thou doft fend The furtheft from Thee; this Thy Servants know; Oh, fend by whom Thou wilt, for they are bleft Who go Thine Errands! Not upon Thy Breaft We learn Thy Secrets! Long befide Thy Tomb We wept, and lingered in the Garden's gloom; And oft we fought Thee in Thy Houfe of Prayer, And in the Defert, yet Thou wert not there. But as we journeyed fadly through a place Obfcure and mean, we lighted on the trace Of Thy frefh Footprints, and a whifper clear Fell on our fpirits—Thou Thyfelf wert near; And from Thy Servants' hearts Thy Name adored Brake forth in fire; we faid, "It is the LORD." Our eyes were no more holden; on Thy Face We looked, and it was comely; full of Grace, And fair Thy Lips; we held Thee by the Feet; We liftened to Thy Voice, and it was fweet; And fweet the filence of our Spirits; dumb All other voices in the world that be The while Thou faideft, "Come ye unto Me!" The while Thou faideft "Come!"

We faid to Thee, "Abide With us! the Night draws on apace; but, lo! The Cloud received Thee, parted from our fide, In Bleffing parted from us! Even fo The Heaven of Heavens muft ftill receive

Thee ! dark

And moonlefs fkies bend o'er us as we row. No ftars appear, and fore againft our bark The current fets; yet nearer grows the Shore Where we fhall fee Thee ftanding, never more To bid us leave Thee! though Thy Realm is wide, And Manfions many, never from Thy Side Thou fendeft us again; by fprings ferene Thou guideft us, and now to battle keen We follow Thee, yet ftill, in peace or war, Thou leadeft us. Oh, not to fun or ftar Thou fendeft us, but fayeft, "Come to Me! And where I am, there fhall My Servants be." Thou fayeft to us, "Come !"

Ì

The Three Comings.

The First Coming.

EN thousand stars were burning bright To charm the lonely Shepherd's eye, But not a watcher turned that night

To count the gems in Bethlehem's ſky, All Heaven was up and chanting ſtill— Glory to GOD, to Man good will!

How eager then that liftening throng Preffed to the lowly Manger gate To greet their Infant GoD with fong, And at His Feet with homage wait

Till e'en the walls with rapture thrill— Glory to GOD, to Man good will !

Bleft BABE ! on this Thy holy Day From gaudy funs of earth we turn, To where with foft and spotles ray

The Star of Bethlehem loves to burn : Hark ! LORD, our fongs the Manger fill— Glory to GOD, to Man good will !

Thus at Thy Cradle while we kneel,

And from Thy Lips a Bleffing seek, Bid o'er our hearts Thy Image steal,

Humble like Thee and good and meek : Thy Birth-day Promise thus fulfill— Glory to GOD, to Man good will !

The Second Coming.

HE Universe is shaking Big with stupendous fong. Skies into voice are waking With chorus loud and long; The Morning Stars are singing With a sublime accord, And all Heaven's courts are ringing-Thy Kingdom come, O LORD ! With a profound emotion Earth hears the lofty strain, And burfts into devotion Mountain and rock and plain : Ocean glad homage paying With all her waves is heard, O Forests! ye are praying-Thy Kingdom come, O LORD! And now of rapt creation Time's kindreds catch the found, And each successive nation Rolls the great Anthem round; Till at the Throne of Glory Breaks in one mighty chord, The universal Story-Thy Kingdom come, O.LORD ! In wondering expectation, LORD! shall we ever wait ?

The Three Comings. 335

Great Monarch of Salvation, Affume Thy royal State : Angels and Saints implore Thee, Gird on Thy conquering Sword, And bow all hearts before Thee----Thy Kingdom come, O LORD!

The Third Coming.

N my laft long flumbers lying I fhall hear, O Trump, thy found; Time itfelf and Nature dying, Say, and where fhall I be found? Sun and Moon grow pale with wonder, Stars appalled with horror flee, Seas and Earth are rent afunder, JESUS, LORD, remember me!

Hark ! again that Trump refounding, Heaven's diffolving pillars nod;
Rife, O Man !' the Voice is founding, 'Rife to meet Thy Coming GOD !' On the Clouds of Empire riding, SON of MAN, Thy Form I fee; Mid Thy radiant Hofts prefiding, JESUS, King, remember me !

Yet again, again 'tis pealing; Sinners! mourn in helples woe;

The Dld-Pear's Blemng.

Righteous ! hail the morn revealing All Redemption can beftow; Earth ! draw nigh and hear the ftory, Yonder bar is raifed for thee; Mid the lightnings of Thy Glory, JESUS, Judge, remember me !

Once upon a darkened mountain I that Form in Blood efpied; I approached the crimfon Fountain And was cleanfed beneath the tide; At Thy Crofs for Mercy fighing Peace I found and Pardon free: To Thy Throne for refuge flying, IESUS, GOD, remember me!

The Dld-year's Bleang.

AM fading from you, But one draweth near, Called the Angel-guardian Of the coming Year.

If my Gifts and Graces Coldly you forget, Let the New-Year's Angel Blefs and crown them yet. For we work together; He and I are one:

The Dld-year's Blemng.

Let him end and perfect All I leave undone. I brought good Desires, Though as yet but feeds; Let the New-Year make them Blossom into Deeds. I brought Joy to brighten Many happy days; Let the New-Year's Angel Turn it into Praise. If I gave you Sickness, If I brought you Care, Let him make one Patience. And the other Prayer. Where I brought you Sorrow, Through his care at length It may rife triumphant Into future Strength. If I brought you Plenty, All wealth's bounteous charms. Shall not the New Angel Turn them into Alms? I gave Health and Leifure, Skill to dream and plan, Let him make them nobler-Work for GOD and Man. If I broke your Idols, Showed you they were duft, Let him turn the Knowledge Into Heavenly Truft.

Ulerleg.

If I brought Temptation, Let fin die away Into boundlefs Pity For all hearts that ftray. If your lift of Errors Dark and long appears, Let this New-born Monarch Melt them into Tears. May you hold this Angel Dearer than the laft— So I blefs his Future, While he crowns my Paft !

Uerleg.

God did send Me before you.

OD hath fent a MAN before thee ! Faint not, fear not, Chriftian Soul; One hath run the race thou runneft, One hath won for thee the goal.

God hath fent a MAN before us! Whatfoever griefs opprefs, He hath known them in the fulnefs Of extremest bitterness.

GOD hath fent a MAN before us, Tried and tempted e'en as we, Who hath fought our every battle Who hath won the victory.

Uerleg.

GOD hath sent a MAN before us. Not along Life's bright highway 'Mid the beauty and the fragrance And the pleasant light of day; But in lonely paths and rocky, Where we only trace the Road By the drops of Blood which tell us Where the MAN of Sorrows trode. Yea! He sent His CHRIST before us Unto Pain and Agony; Nor from Death's dark hour withheld Him, Willing for our fakes to die. He within the Veil is entered. Where He offers still on high, Priest and Victim, for our cleansing, Sacrifice unceafingly ! ł

The Lord shewed him a Tree.

The Disciple.

HEW me a Tree, my Gracious LORD, For o'er my troubled Soul

The bitter waters of defpair In whelming torrents roll : Thou Who of old by Marah's tide The healing Wood didft fwift provide, Oh! hither fpeed in Love and Power, And fhed Thy Light on this dark hour.

Aerleg.

The Divine Master.

There was a Tree in Eden set The day that Adam fell,

A Tree, whofe fweetnefs mortal words May not effay to tell : Though 'neath its weight thy weaknefs fink, To thofe dark Waters' cheerlefs brink Bear it, and caft it boldly in— It hath Divineft Medicine ! The MAN of Sorrows' royal Throne— That Word all grief, all woe hath known. Doft thou defpair ? oh ! hafte to take The Crofs where I, in anguifh fpake— Wherefore My God, doft Thou forfake !

The Disciple.

Seeking as erft a fweet'ning Tree, To Thee, O LORD, I hafte, For heavy on my fainting Soul

The hand of grief is preft. 'Mid bitter foes, 'mid friends grown cold Alone I ftand : oh ! now behold, And deign in love the Wood to fhow That can to fweetnefs change fad woe.

The Divine Master.

O hard of heart ! haft thou not yet Found hidden in My Crofs Virtue for all that bitterest seems, All gain for every loss? On Calvary from the scornful Tree The Words were spoken e'en for thee, For thee, that thou mayest speak and live— They know not what they do, Forgive !

The Disciple.

I ftand upon the awful brink Of Jordan's bitter Stream ; Cold flow its waves,—O LORD, my LORD Whofe Pity did redeem, Thou Who in every trial-hour Haft fuccoured me with faving Power, Caft in the Tree, the fweet'ning Tree, Left I be borne away from Thee And fink and perifh utterly !

The Divine Master.

My Child, in paffing through that Stream No evil need'ft thou fear; My Rod and Staff, the Holy Crofs, Sheds fweetnefs ever here: Take to thee then My Words as fhield— FATHER, to Thee My Soul I yield! Stoop to the waves, My Crofs fhall bear thee o'er, Calmly and fafely bear to Canaan's fhore.

Laetabundí jubilenus.

A Prose for the Transfiguration.

RISE and fing a joyful Lay, O Bride! to Him thou lovest well; On this most folemn Holy-day

Be it thy joy to tell

(So He but aid thee) how the Light Of GODHEAD gleamed on Tabor's height.

O He was ever what He then

Appeared, Death's Conqueror strong and true, Giver of Life to dying men-

But He had hid from view All that befpoke Him GOD until, As on this Day, He fought the Hill.

And O! while He was kneeling there His Face became a Sun for Light, The Garb which girt the Only Fair

With utter whiteness white, Foreshowing how with Beams Divine The Just should one day rise and shine.

And when the CHRIST, the Power of GOD,

To Peter and the Brothers bleft That Excellence of Glory showed,

Two Prophets left their reft, This Truth to witness from the dead— To talk with GOD how dear, how dread!

And then a cloud o'ershadowed all, And thence the Everlasting ONE Crowned with His Voice our Festival. Saying-This is My Son-Since there Omnipotence is rife, O hear, O heed that WORD of Life. O clad in Brightness passing bright Behold the universal King, The Light of Saints, the cloudles Light Which lightens everything, The HOLY ONE of GOD, the CHRIST For earth's Salvation facrificed. O now there should be rage in Hell, For now is loft for evermore The bitter claim the Serpent fell Had on our race before; The FATHER'S WORD in Flesh revealed The mortal wound of Flesh hath healed. He died for us, He rose again That Heaven and Earth at one might be, And ended evermore the reign Of the last Enemy; And now, Transfigured, He it is Whom the Great FATHER owns for His. But troubled by those Accents dread Upon the earth those Fathers three Lay till another Word was faid-Arise, nor fearful be-

The Land that is afar off.

HERE is the Land he fawin glorious Vifion, The lone old Prophet in the Sea-

girt Iſle,

True antitype of all the dreams Elysian, Fashioned by Hope earth's sorrows to beguile?

Call them not idle, all the tales they fabled Of Happy Isles in far Hesperian Seas,

Whofe straining sight no torch of Truth enabled To pierce by faith the unseen Mysteries.

Call it not vain, the rude untutored longing For higher life each meanest mind that moves, That murmurs still, when base affection wronging Our nobler part too oft victorious proves.

344

- Where is that Land? above, beneath, around us? Loft in all space, or to a star confined?
- O for one hour to pass the shores that bound us, And fathom all the future of the mind !
- Ye who have left our fide to join the chorus Of holy Minstrels in that distant clime, Wast fome faint echoes of your harpstrings o'er us, To chase the mystery from your homes sublime.
- They fend no found! Sweet Patience fingeth only, "Strive to the end, and ftruggle to the goal!"
- Then, for earth's hours of anguifh, dark and lonely, Bright dawns eternal funfhine on the Soul.
- Then they who mourn for earth's frail joys departed,

Oblivion sweet of all their woes shall gain; The heavy-laden and the broken-hearted,

- Balm for their wounds, and solace from their pain.
- O Mourner, weeping long thy loved ones taken, They tread the fhining paths by Angels trod!

O thou by trusted hearts in need forfaken, Love shall not fail thee in the Land of GOD!

There, Soul with Soul in converse fweet confiding, Nor shy mistrust, nor selfish aim shall know; Pure as the crystal Stream beside them gliding, All wish, all thought, in unison shall flow.

The Land of Beulah.

HEY trod not now the perilous ground enchanted,

They breathed no more the thick and flumbrous air;

- But a delightfome Land by Angels haunted Appeared, Heaven's portal fair.
- Straight lay the road through this bright Country leading,

Balmythe air, and fweet each breath they drew: On corn and wine and all abundance feeding,

Their Souls rich solace knew.

Here evermore they faw the flowers upfpringing; The Sun shone o'er them always, night and day:

Ever they heard the birds in gladness singing, The turtle's voice alway.

Far, far behind Death's shadowy Vale was lying ; They spied not hence the towers of grim Despair :

But lo! before, in golden lustre dyeing

The azure depths of air,

Shone forth the Walls of pearl, the Gates of glory, End of their hope, their hearts' defire and fong;

For this they marched, through all its changeful ftory,

Their pilgrim path along.

And from that Light Celeftial radiance bringing, Fair shining Creatures met them as they trod, Walking amid that Paradise, or winging Their bright way home to God.

And from that City came the found of voices Many and loud, that fang with folemn glee— Even as the Bridegroom o'er the Bride rejoices, Lo! joys thy GOD o'er thee.

Heaven.

HEARD the voice of Harpers, harping fweetly
On harps of gold :
I faw a cryftal River—calmly, widely Its waters rolled.
I caught the flash of turrets, wrapt in fplendour Of funless light,
Like to a star most lustrous, shedding glory Out of the night.
I dreamed of Lands Elysian, emerald Islands In shining seas,
Soft perfumes wasted by sweet-whispering breezes From fadeless trees.

348 The Disciple whom Jelus loved.

I faw the ranks of Angels, filver-pinioned, And golden-crowned,

Swift radiant Forms, that like a funbeam paffing Touched the bright ground.

I faw the ancient Worthies, Heroes faintly Resting in calm,

Clad in white robes, out of great tribulation Bearing the palm.

I faw a King in beauty, cloud-encircled, Shrouded in light, The likeness of a Throne, a Sea of glory

Dazzling all sight.

A Voice as of great waters—Myriads falling Low on the fod :

A Silence : Harps struck louder ; Seraphs singing "Glory to God !"

The Disciple whom Jelus loved.

LANCHED in the blaze of light, all fill and bare,

The Fishers gaze upon Gennesaret.

The funfet comes. Behind the Roman town

The dark boat's circled topfails fwell and fhift, The tuniced boatmen dip their nets an hour, And the fun goeth down on Jezreel. The flickering furnace of the duft is quenched,

The mountain branded as with red gold ruft. But ere the creffet lights are in the vault Where nothing trembles, fuffers, wars or weeps, To the Twelve comes ONE Purer than the ftars ; And as a man juft wakened in a room Fronting the ocean, fcarcely knows at firft, A little whitenefs dawning on the pane, A little line infufferably bright Edging the ripple that orbs out anon, Until he recognize the fun itfelf, So hour by hour their knowledge grew of Him.

And as a mighty City far-off kenned, Stretches with its immeafurable ftreets, And though the fame from every different height Looks different to the merchantmen who wend Towards its guarded gate, driving the afs And camel, bearing fpicery and balm, Figs and all manner of fruits, tinct like the flower, Half a blue week in fummer ere it blows; Not otherwife, before thofe fimple men, That wondrous Nature grew from year to year, Till to S. Three years Love-fheltered from the outer world His Spirit grew, as grows a delicate child Brought over feas from foggy Northern lands, And far a-foreft lodged 'mid Southern pines, Where all day long the needles of the light Dart through green plumes upon the dropping ftems.

OD, Who in Wiſdom ſweetly ordereth all,

Grieving for man long held in direft thrall,

An Angel sent, taught in His Purpose well, The FATHER'S Promise of the Son to tell. He hails the Virgin—GOD and Man, faith he, SAVIOUR, First-fource of all, shall spring from thee.

Not long the Promife halts; He speaks, 'tis done, By Grace conceiving, Mary bears a Son.

Light of the faithful, earth He comes to blefs, Shining on all, the Sun of Righteoujnejs.

A Heavenly fight the fimple Shepherds fee; Not for earth's great ones may that vision be.

Look ! in the Manger ONE is lying low, Whofe Might Divine no earthly bound may know.

The Bright and Morning Star is shining clear, On Jesse's Rod the Flowers of Grace appear.

See, the Three Kings their duteous Offerings bring, Gold, Incenfe, Myrrh, to the GOD-MAN their King.

He, Who for us affumed this mortal life, Muft now endure the Sacrificial knife :

In Jordan's stream a milder Rite He gives; There man his sins doth wash, and washing lives.

The Virgin to the Temple brings her Son, That all the legal Rites be duly done.

There thankful Simeon in his arms doth hold The SAVIOUR long in facred lore foretold.

At Cana's Feast CHRIST's Glory first doth shine, When the pure water blushes into wine. He makes the blind to see, to walk the lame, And tongues long dumb His matchless Power proclaim.

He That is born for man is GOD'S Dear SON, The King of Heaven, and other LORD is none.

Let all the Heavenly Hoft His Praises tell, And all His Saints the chorus join to swell.

The Living Death.

H! fay not that we die! Say not that we, whole Hea

Say not that we, whose Heaven-born Souls inherit

Their life from Life, can ever pass away;

That we, whose source is the Eternal SPIRIT, Can yield what is from GOD to slow decay.

Say! fay! is it to die— To give this weary body unto fleeping?

To lay down forrow's crushing cumbrous load? To rest where we can hear no founds of weeping, Far, far away from life's tear-tracen road?

Oh! fay is it to die— To burft from out this tottering mortal dwelling,

A Spirit unembodied, unconfined?

To view the wide expanse of Glory swelling, And earth and all its anguish left behind? Oh! fay is it to die— To pafs from life's rough channel to the ocean ? To enter on the folemn after-life ? To feel our being pafs with Spirit's motion Free from the conflict and the mortal ftrife ? Say! fay! is it to die— To ceafe to drink the cup of earthly forrow ? To ceafe to tread the narrow vale of tears ? To waken to that day that knows no morrow, Where time is not, nor flowing, ebbing years ! Oh! fay is it to die— When Angels o'er the parting Spirit linger Juft as it paffes to its GoD on high ; And point with beaming fmile and beckoning finger

To far-off Mansions in the happy sky?

Say! fay! is it to die—

To lay aside a body daily wasting

With toil outworn, with weight of care oppress? And spring away with eager faith, foretasting The peace, the quiet of the promised Rest?

Oh! fay is it to die-

To wear the SAVIOUR's radiant Form of brightnefs?

To fee Him as He is, with Glory crowned? To ftand in robes of pure unfullied whitenefs,

Joining the Songs of happy Saints around ?

354 The Living Death.

Oh! this is not to die— To leave a world of changes and of feeming, Where amid fleeting phantafies we dwell; And wing away, as from a ftate of dreaming, To waking and to Blifs unchangeable.

Oh ! this is not to die— Is it not rather into Life expanding, Breaking the trial-ftate to live indeed ? Safe from the tempeft in the haven landing, From ftorms, from toils, from rocking billows freed ?

No! no! we cannot die— In Death's unrobing room, we ftrip from round us The garments of mortality and earth ; And breaking from the embryo ftate which bound us, Our day of dying is our day of birth !

And yet to earth we die— Born to new Life with all its weight of Bleffing, Born to a world where ills can never prefs; Exalted, pure, Angelic joys poffeffing, If this be Death, then Death is Happinefs!

Thoughts in Merle.

The true Light.

SEE the fun go down behind the wood, I watch his glories as they die away, My fpirit yearns to float adown that flood

Of light to endless Day.

For while I ftand and gaze the fhadows fall; What was fo bright and warm grows dull and cold:

No longer plays the light upon the wall, No longer on the wold.

The only light is in the western sky, A fingle streak of crimson and of gold : All things beside within the shadows lie Of evening's sable fold.

So, too, when our fhort day is almost done, And Death casts shadows on the joys of earth, The Light of our dim path will be but One, And He of Heavenly birth.

All round, the shadows of dark thoughts may fall, And all around may tempt the Soul despair :

O! Burning Light of Love, no fears appal If only Thou be there !

Cælestis Urbs Jerusalem.

LEARLY he fang, as only Angels fing— "Turn thou, beloved of GOD, Look on the City of our Heavenly King Which He along hath trod.

- " Founded she is upon the holy Hills : Four ways her buildings face,
- Her firmament the Light of Heaven fills Reflexed from crown to base.
- " In number as the Tribes of Ifrael, Of Pearls her portals are :
- Twelve Angels here their hymns of glory swell To Him Who reigns afar.
- "Her walls are Crystal, and her streets of Gold; And her foundations laid

On Sapphire, Amethyst and Emerald, Whose colours never fade.

- " Nor fun by day, nor paler moon by night In this bleft City burn :
- Ever from out GOD's Throne eternal Light Shines full where'er ye turn.
- "Within those walls, unstained of mortal strife, Fresh streams of Wisdom spring,
- And here the Branches of the Tree of Life Their goodly shadows fling.

- " Those Gates are open, and that River flows For Souls redeemed of sin,
- Who with the Bridegroom and His Heavenly Spouse

For ever enter in."

Boyhood's Home.

E named our flower-crowned Veffel, 'Home,' Ere (he (et fail for worlds to come,

And all on board were young and fair : Full many a happy boat we paffed ; In funny bays we anchor caft

Off islands rich in fragrance rare.

Ah me! that those bright days are gone; We left our Vessel one by one:

Now fome on stranger barks are failing; And fome there are whose Spirits blest On peaceful shores for ever rest,

Far off from wind and ocean's wailing.

The Delcent of the Spirit.

A Hymn for Whitfun-Day.

ILENCE reigned at Eventide, On the day when JESUS died; Shaken earth, in Sabbath reft, Folded Him within her breaft;

Silent on the Easter-morn Rose to Life the Virgin-born.

358 The Delcent of the Spirit.

Silent, through the Forty Days, Bowed the Church with humble gaze; While the LORD in order told To the Shepherds of His Fold How He willed that they should keep Watch and ward around the Sheep.

Hark ! a rushing mighty sound Of the restless winds unbound; In the Heaven of Heavens above Spreads His Wings the Holy Dove: At their waft the kindling choir Wakes to song with Tongues of Fire.

Now the HOLY GHOST doth brood O'er the furface of the flood, And the quickened ftreams are rife With the progeny of Life; On the Font defcendeth He, LORD of Life, abundantly.

On the waters' face doth move To and fro the Heavenly Dove, From the depths of death and fin, Olive-branch of peace to win; Refting-place He findeth none But the Ark of CHRIST alone.

LORD of Life, to Mary's Womb Fraught with GODHEAD did He come : Lord of Life, at Whitfuntide Comes He down upon the Bride,

The Descent of the Spirit.

Bearing through the scented air Presence of the Bridegroom there.

On the Altar dimly shown, Flesh of flesh, and Bone of bone, She shall win Him from above In the Sacrament of Love, That her children may be fed From their Life-blood's Fountain-head.

Range the choir the Bride around On the holy Chancel ground; She is dreft is bright array For this feftal Whitfun Day; Ten long nights fhe watched in vain; Now He comes to her again.

Lily for her Virgin-hand, At her feet the Aloe wand, Frankincense before her fling For the Daughter of the King, And at length the Crown of thorn Roses for her brow has borne.

The SPIRIT and the Bride fay—Come ! Fruit of Bleffed Mary's Womb, Come to hallow ! Come to blefs !. Comfort of the comfortlefs : As to her Thou cam'ft below, Come, LORD JESU, even fo.

The Palimplest : an Allegory.

N the Abbot's oaken Chamber Long the Parchment hidden lay, Given o'er to dust and spider, Buried from the light of day,

Written o'er with Monkish story On each old and crumbling page, Written o'er with Legends hoary Of the dim forgotten age; Till the Traveller's glance alighted Where the Parchment long had lain, And all mildewed, stained and blighted Drew it to the light again; And his loving care bestowing, Day by day its treasures bared, Till he traced in beauty glowing, Olden lines which time had (pared ; Traced the glory underlying, Traced the azure and the gold, Traced, in letters still undying, Treasures which it bare of old; Till the Words of Truth confeffing, Words of Prophet and of Seer, Words of Love and Truth and Bleffing, Stood in all their beauty clear; And the old immortal Story Shone upon its pages plain, Gleaming with their olden glory, Speaking with GoD's Word again.

Brother ! gaze with look as earnest, If earth's leffons thou wouldft trace; Gaze in faith till thou discernest What is written on its face : Dark thick dust is on it lying-Dust of dead and buried times. Every age its dust supplying, Charged with records of its crimes : And the prefence in the Writing First that meets the casual eye Is of Satan, still inditing Records of his victory : Poor men's groans and rich men's weeping, Pinching want and grinding cares, Wars and famines o'er it sweeping-Such the records that it bears. Brother! gaze upon its teaching, As men gaze through the thick night, Till thine eye, its secret reaching, Read its hidden Legend right : Faith shall pierce this dark adorning, Grief and forrow, fin and fhame, Show thee where, in earth's glad morning, GOD hath written His own Name; Show thee, how that Name remaining, Turns its darkness into light,

Uía Sanctae Crucís.

All its tangled courfe explaining, Ruling all its wrong to right; Till, beneath Sin's fad inditing, Tales of woe and tears and blood, Thou fhalt trace the old handwriting— It is GOD's, and it is Good; And the old immortal Story Shines upon its pages plain, Gleaming with the olden glory, Speaking with GOD's Word again.

Aía Sanctae Crucís.

NE bleffed noon in Autumn's sweetest weather,

I wandered forth a pilgrim by the way,

Where GOD's good Providence should lead to stray,

Musing how Truth and Mercy met together.

Now by the rough road-fide, now o'er the meadows, Through the green pastures, by the waters still, Where the gleam-tinted trees beneath the hill Cast round my path their Vale-of-death-like Shadows.

Bleffed be GOD! I had an open Vision-Good Angels were abroad in earth and sky, Of Peace and Beauty, as in fields Elysian.

- All was an Emblem in me and around me, Betokening Gifts more real than appear; High thoughts, mysterious feelings, love and fear Of wondrous spiritual depth and fulness bound me.
- Sudden, as sent from GOD, a mightier Token Than yet my marvelling Spirit had wrought upon,

The Sign adorable of His Dear Son, On which His Blood was shed, His Body broken!

In the dim diftance, by the old flood riven, The purple hill rofe, looming through the mift, Which, gilded by the noonday, crowned its creft

With Saint-like halo, blending earth and Heaven.

And like an Angel's cincture, white and fhining, A filver thread belting the upland's girth Led, as by Heavenward stair, from this low earth To brighter vales on the Eastern side declining.

Here ghoftly pale the mighty Crofs fufpended As 'twere mid air, backed by the hill's bare fide, Was graved by unknown hands in ancient-tide Where, circling round its bafe, the path afcended. Whether to mark the scene of battle holy, Through victory of the Saints on this fair spot; Or Hermit, here embowered in hill-side grot, Emblemed lone Peace and Soul-sweet Melancholy;

Or, likelier yet, bleft Auftin's hooded Sages Led the proceffion from yon fainted tower, And raifed the image here of JESUS' Power, To point the way of future pilgrimages.

The only way to Life and Peace internal, Way of the Holy Crofs, though steep, most fure ! Seek where thou wilt, none other so fecure Leads to the untravelled realms of Blifs Supernal.

Who dares to climb, though way-worn, faint and weary,

Braced by Heaven's freshening gales, gains strength anew,

Sees fights to eyes below ne'er brought to view,

Peopling with glorious fhapes plains wafte and dreary.

Bleft be the hour which led my footfteps thither, On that fweet Feftival of earth and fky ! Chance thoughts fo fown, bear fruit in deftiny For good or evil, which fhall never wither !

Jerulalem, du hochgebaute Stadt.

A German Hymn of the XVII. Century.

ERUSALEM! thou City towering high, Would GOD I were in thee! Mylonging Souldoth ever pant and figh

Within thy walls to be : By faith from earth it fallies, And far o'er stretching plains, Far over hills and valleys, Soars, till thy gate it gains. O joyful day, and O thrice joyful hour, When will thy dawn appear, When I with heart released from fin's dread power. And joy unmixed with fear, My parting Soul commending To GoD's Own faithful Hand, Shall at my journey's ending Reach that bleft Fatherland? Then in a moment shall my Spirit quit This lower element: In filent mystery high-foaring, flit To Heaven's bright firmament Elijah's chariot mounting, Borne on fustaining Hands, That baffle powers of counting,

Of joyful Angel-bands.

366 Jerulalem, du hochgebaute Stadt.

Hail ! glorious City : O that thou would'ft ope Thy gates of mercy wide, To enter which with still deferred hope I long have groaned and fighed; While here my weary Spirit, In this wrong world of fin, The Kingdom I inherit Has thirsted fore to win. Who are these Myriads bright, whose glorious band In countless throng appears, By JESUS fent to meet me on the strand Of this dark land of tears? Of endless Life the winners, These are His Joy and Crown, Whom from this world of finners He chose to be His Own. Prophets and Patriarchs there, and Chriftians all,

Who have in every age

Endured the Cross, or at their Master's call Braved persecution's rage,

Now, amid Joy unbounded,

From earthly forrow free, With cloudless day furrounded, A dazzling Host I see.

When GOD to His bleft Paradife of Joy My Soul at length shall raife,

Pleasures shall fill my mind which never cloy, My mouth glad notes of praise :

Jam the Role of Sharon, ec. 367

Voices in concord vying There Alleluia fing; Unwearied ftill replying There loud Hofannas ring.

From choir to choir, before the LAMB's bright The found is borne along, [Throne, Till Joy's bright Temple to the wondrous tone Vibrates in choral fong : In notes of exultation Unnumbered voices rife, E'en fince the first creation Thus echoing through the fkies.

J am the Role of Sharon and the Lily of the Ualleys.

WILDERNESS of barren fand, With fcorching fun-glare, hot and red, Where whitened bones of men long dead---

A level broad deferted land.

Storms fwept acrofs it, and the fky Deepened its red to blackeft gloom; It feemed a buried nation's tomb, So defolate below, on high.

Years paffed, years flowly paffed again : A long pale line of eaftern light Broke at the murkieft hour of night, To herald founds of fummer rain.

368 Jelus Chrift, the Same, et.

Then on that lone and fandy flat A Lily grows, with milk-white bloom, The wilderness no more a tomb— The desert beautiful for that.

And foon another flower expands, The Rofe of Sharon for the dew And filver morning light fo new; Tranfplanted then to other lands:

But leaving many a Bleffing there, Odours of beauty and of Grace, Leaves for the healing of a race, Rich Gifts forgotten, new and rare.

A barren wilderness no more; Athwart, a way to yonder Fold, Beyond those seas of green and gold, A peaceful bright and sunny shore.

'Thou art the Man:' thou wound'st thy Master still.

He waits, thy LORD, a Vassal on thy will. O, must it aye be so?

Wilt thou not wake at last And sigh—O Thou That seek'st to be beloved, I dare not look upon Thy Tears unmoved : Canst Thou forgive the past?

Ah, with Thy tenderest Heart Mine keeps not pace; 'tis base, 'tis mean, O LORD,

And thrice unworthy of Thy Love adored; But Thou art what Thou art,

And lov'st for Love's fake still. Sunshine can flood the deepest deep with light; Thou art All-Splendour, if my heart be night: Have Thine All-gracious Will!

A Hymn for the Lord's Day.

HIS Day, which JESUS calls His Own, Muft our devout obfervance gain; On it His facred Power was fhown, By rifing from the Grave's domain.

This Fact is now, while life endures, Our weekly celebration made; That the great things its truth enfures May never from our memory fade.

O'er this dark world it poured a ray Of living hope beyond the tomb From realms of everlafting day, So long concealed in trembling gloom.

And thus a pledge our Souls receive Of fure advancement to the fkies; For all who in His Name believe Shall with their Rifen LORD arife. 372

In Him we find a boundless ftore Of Wealth to make us rich indeed; Without referve He makes it o'er, Our common fund in times of need.

Hence Glory, Life without decay, Immortal Bleffednefs above; With Peace and Joy while on our way To claim thefe Bleffings of His Love.

The cheering memory of these things, Revived with Sunday's dawning ray,

To pious hearts the reason brings Why this is called ' the LORD's own Day.'

- O'er death triumphant He arofe On this great Day, and lived anew;
- A glorious Fact in Him, which shows What is in us in figure true.

Our sinful passions being quelled, We rife above them from the dust,

Left the free Spirit should be held In bonds by any cherished lust.

Our pious Souls must now review The Decalogue which GOD has given, And humbly our belief renew In Articles of Faith from Heaven.

The Holy Sacrament must share The loving memories of the Day,

En Dies ett Dominica. 373

And other things, which claim our care, To speed us on our faithful way.

With earneftnefs the mind must shun The tongue's pollution, taking heed Left greater wickedness be done By thoughtless word than manual deed.

With greater vigour we must prefs In duty onwards in GoD's Ways, By thoughts and acts of Righteousness, By meditation, prayer, and praise.

And chiefly now our Souls muft aim, Through Grace which lifts us from the fall, To reft with confcience free from blame In fight of GOD, Who is our All.

The mighty Love of GOD afrefh Must feize us as its rightful lot; That midst the allurements of the flesh

Our Souls, as dead, may feel them not.

And let us afk—Whence we have come? And what and where we are? and why We live? and where will be our home?— And feek a practical reply.

Oh! into mifery from GoD, And into darkness out of light, Came GoD's Similitude abroad, At first so happy and so bright. Now must our sinful wanderings cease; To God we must retrace our way; Then holy Joy and Heavenly Peace Will turn our darkness into day.

The Glory of our primal birth We must for ever keep in view, Lest we become the flaves of earth, And its vile vanities pursue.

Of fpiritual effence free, Divine in his primordial state, Man was defigned by GOD to be The Angels' fit affociate.

The native grandeur of his race The stature of his body proves;

He walks erect, with upward face; And like a God below he moves.

Stamped on his visage here we find The Light of GOD's own Countenance; And the bright image of his mind Shines out in living splendour thence.

Internal Wifdom sheds its light, In glowing thoughts, on things around, The outward witness in our sight Of what within his mind is found.

And then, O Mystery Divine ! Impressed on his anointed brow, The Cross, the SPIRIT's quickening Sign, Has made him CHRIST's own Servant now.

To-day, as CHRIST's, let this be done— The prefent with the paft compare; And think what progrefs has been won, And what the failures—how and where?

Deep hatred of all evil feek ; Of what is good take fpecial care ; And looking towards the coming week, For new and vigorous war prepare.

Within let grateful joy have place That time on earth has yet been given, To grow in Knowledge and in Grace, And meetness for a glorious Heaven.

In holy thoughts and acts like thefe, When earthly works are put away, Our lowly minds the LORD should pleafe, On this His own most blessed Day.

To Thee great Author of our days, True Reft of every faithful Soul, Be given all Honour, Glory, Praife, While everlafting ages roll.

JESUS' Pardon newly won : She whom sin but late was chaining, Now her spousal Gifts obtaining, New-made Bride, in joy is reigning, And a golden Crown hath on.

Next the King in exaltation In her thankful adoration Stands the Bride, and keeps her station In a golden Vesture clad :

378 Habe mercy on me, D Lord,

From the thorns within that bower Springs a Roje, in bud or flower Thinking aye on JESUS' Power, In His royal Bounty glad.

She, the mystic Bride, can never From her plighted Bridegroom sever, May that Bridegroom guard us ever

From the shocks of fleshly vice : May He cleanse us from pollution, Grant us perfect restitution, Save from final retribution,

Bring us unto Paradise.

ITHIN the cool Quadrangle's welcome shade,

Beneath the linen awning, JESUS fought

A moment's quiet, while the fountain played Her pleasant interlude to weary thought.

Through the porch gleamed the rofe-red funfet fnows

Of the wild crags of northern Galilee :

What awful Life is in the GOD-Repose,

That with the Past and Present welds Futurity!

- Up the benched gateway thrills a Woman's cry, As if the fwollen torrent of deep care Had torn down filence in its agony To fling Grief's fecret on the trembling air !
- The lonelinefs of one unuttered woe, The filent tears when every Hope had fled, The facred Love, which Mothers beft may know, When ficknefs glooms around a first-born's bed.

The weary hours befide her little Child, The patient fadnefs of her darling's eye, As with unfelfifh love fhe feebly fmiled All, all, came fobbing on that bitter cry—

- O LORD, Thou SON of David, pity me ! So 'mid the wreck, bareheaded, 'gainft the fpray,
- A drowning Man might shriek across the sea, When hope of human help had past away.
- O LORD, Thou SON of David, pity me ! While ghaftly doubt ftung her fin-laden breaft,
- If for the guilt, done by her fecretly, GoD's Curfe had fallen on what she loved the best.

He did not anfwer her one fingle word, Yet Love was fpeaking in His ev'ry Look : When earth is filent then may Heaven be heard, In forrow's gloom Faith beft reads GoD's own Book.

380 A Song which none but

Think'ft thou He hears not, when for many a day Thy knees are worn with fasting and with prayer? Think'ft thou He turns from any love away, Because thou seeft no Angel on the air?

Tempter, away ! each throb of pain He knows; I will kneel on, and wait His bleffed Time; Up the steep staircase of Life's darksome woes I'll climb and sing, till overhead GoD's Chime

Break with one roar of an eternal Sea ; And lo! if I have prayed He giveth more ; I ftagger down, half-blind with victory,

Whispering the Chant from out the opening Door.

A Song which none but the Redeemed can fing.

E came not in with broad Full canvass swelling to a steady breeze,

With pennons flying fair, with coffers ftored;

For long against the wind, 'mid heavy seas, With cordage strained and splintered masts we drave,

And o'er our decks had dashed the bitter wave, And lightening oft our lading, life to save, Our costly ventures to the Deep were given:

Yea, fome of us were caught and homewards driven

Upon the storm-wind's wings; and some rock-riven Among the treacherous reefs at anchor flung, Felt the good ship break under them, and clung Still to some plank or fragment of its frame Amid the roaring breakers—yet, we came !

We came not in with proud, Firm, martial footftep, in a meafured tread, Slow pacing to the craſh of muſic loud; No gorgeous trophies went before; no crowd Of captives followed us with drooping head; No ſhining laurel ſceptred us, nor crowned, Nor with its leaf our glittering lances bound; 'This looks not like a Triumph,' then, they ſaid; With faces darkened in the battle flame, With banners faded from their early pride, Through wind and ſun and ſhowers of bleaching rain,

Yet red in all our garments, doubly dyed, With many a wound upon us, many a ftain, We came with fteps that faltered—yet, we came !

Through water and through fire We came to Thee, and not through these alone; We came to Thee by blood! Thou didst require One only Sacrifice, and like Thine Own. The Life Thou gavest us Thou didst defire And all was ready for us: Lo! the knife

382 De Parente Summo natum.

And cloven wood were waiting; bound or free We too were ready! In the battle ftrife, Or by the lonely Altar unto Thee We offered love for Love, and life for Life. And as we came to Thee a found of war Ran after us from diftant fields; the jar Of fhield and fword and battle bow; a cry Confufed and harfh, that rolled to 'Victory' And feemed upon the darkening heavens to ceafe; For as we neared Thy City morning broke, And all along its lofty ramparts woke One word of greeting, flooding all the ear And all the heart with folemn mufic, clear As of a Trumpet talking with us—Peace!

A Sequence for the Feast of the Transfiguration.

F the Higheft generated, And not by His SIRE created, From before all time the WORD One GOD with the FATHER reigned,

By the Right to Him pertained, And by Gift of none conferred.

Guilty man from death redeeming, GOD the WORD in outward seeming Was an humble Servant made;

De Parente Summo natum.

Thus becoming a new Creature, He restored our human nature, Nor aside His GODHEAD laid.

In Himfelf, both Weak and Worthy He united; but the Earthy

Clad, not crippled, the Divine : Neither did the ftrong Superior Swallow up the frail Inferior, But by fuffering made it fhine.

Each in its own Nature fingle,

Not as wines with water mingle

Were they in debafement linked ; But that most mysterious Union Which had placed them in communion,

Kept them perfectly diftinct.

Symbol of that high relation Was the WORD'S Transfiguration,

To the eye of faith defigned : Wherein is to us revealed That which was before concealed

By the Veil of human kind.

Like the candid fnow for whitenefs, Like the splendid Sun for brightness.

Lo! the Flesh which sin atoned Is beforehand rendered glorious, Over shame and death victorious,

And the WORD in Light enthroned.

Song of the Christian Confestors. 385

Nor as heirs of Heaven ignore us, Who in type didft go before us When o'er Jordan Jofhua croft.

Song of the early Christian Confessors.

Ì

H, no! we may not whifper now The Name by Hofts adored, No more we chaunt in choral vow Our dear Redeeming LORD.

They drag us flow with bleeding feet To many an Idol fhrine; They bid us tafte the offered Meat, Or quaff the offered Wine.

They ftrive with flow reluctant fires Our conftant Souls to break ; They fpread the charms the world admires, But oh, 'tis death to take—

For neither bright Apollo's bow,

Nor Daphne's laurel grove,

Nor founds of joy, nor sights of woe, Can bend our loyal love.

Yet, if perchance by forrow tried Some fighs our bofoms heave,

They bid us leave the Crucified-But we will never leave !

Oh, no! the quivering limb may throb, May flart the torture tear,

386 Song of the Christian Confessors.

For crown of steel and fiery robe Are hard for flesh to bear.

But heavier was the Robe of fcorn The MAN of Sorrows bore ; And fharper, fharper was the Thorn On bleeding Brows He wore :

And He can cool the torrent wave, Can stop the oppressor's joy; For stronger is His Arm to save, Than theirs is to destroy.

They tell us He is buried now, And all our hopes are gone; They faw not how in vest of snow He mounted to His Throne.

And chains may bind, and prifons dim Our fettered limbs control ; Our Souls, like eagles, fly to Him— They cannot bind the Soul.

The waves that wash our prison wall, The winds that hurry by, The sweet, the gall, are records all Of Love that cannot die.

What if our Spirits tortures bow, Our limbs if fetters fret ? We fee not now His radiant Brow— But how can we forget ?

Being in an Agony, He prayed more earneftly.

HAT are thefe Sighs, thefe low deep yearning Prayers

Stealing o'er the filence of the midnight hour

From yon embowering Grove—the chill damp airs Rifing around, while shivering night-winds cower?

- Nay! draw not nigh—'tis awful, holy Ground. There, fince the fall of eve, through hours of darknefs drear,
- Our LORD in prayer hath knelt, while slumber found

Enwraps that world for which He pleadeth prostrate near.

- Nor will that wearied Form from prayer arise
 - Till the faint-hearted dawn hath gathered ftrength to brave
- The fhades of night : the day may not fuffice For His deep Love which yearns a darkling world to fave.
- That burning, wondrous Love ! O how fhall thefe Low grovelling hearts e'er comprehend its depth and height,

388 Being in an Agony, Ec.

Its breadth and length? enfolding earth and feas,

Heaven, yea, the Heaven of Heavens, in Mercy infinite ?

Words fail to fpeak aright; methinks on earth The filent adoration of o'erflowing hearts

In kindly deeds outpoured best owns its worth; Each little rill which from that loving Fountain starts,

- Bearing fome portion of its Waters fweet Along her lowly courfe, freshening and gladdening all
- Where'er she turns; yet loving best to greet Yon Streamlet broad, and hidden yield her tribute small;

For small, as lowliest drop, what here we deem

The noblest Sacrifice—the keenest grief we know,

The love and labour of earth's short-lived dream, Compared with the deep Ocean of Thy Love and Woe!

Here we may fearless plunge, and find our Life; Sustained upon these Waters, as they rise and fall,

Onward, while lefs and lefs of earth's rude strife Shall reach our ears, abforbed in Thee, our All in All!

- Thou, Who still pleadest in the Holy Mount For slumbering Souls enthralled in shades of night below,
- Plead on for us! that Thine, Celestial Fount! May be the only Source of Light and Love we know.

The open Millon.

HY lies the darkness on the deep Now that the world is old? Why do the signs from Heaven wax faint,

And Altar-fires wax cold? The while men's Souls wait for the LORD By promife and by warning, And wait and watch, yea, more than they That watch unto the morning.

- Why echo still earth's tempest-moans, Without Heaven's ' Peace, be still?' Why cry we yet, ' LORD, if Thou wilt;' Nor hear His calm ' I will?' Why cast we all our anchors out And wish the day were nearer; While yet the far horizon shows No closer and no clearer?
- Nay! ask, if with us in the Ship We prayed our Master come?

Ask, while we yet could see the shore, Set we our fails towards Home? Ask, if as in the ancient days The Word of GOD is precious, Have we the childlike hearts to know The Voice that would refresh us? Afk rather of the chosen Three Nearest to CHRIST allowed, Why, ere they faw their Glorious SUN They paffed beneath His Cloud ? Why, as they marked His Meffengers Adore that bleft unveiling, They heard strange presages of scorn, And buffeting, and railing? Aye! others, like those favoured Ones Are drawn with Him apart, The glory of His Woe to fee With fad and troubled heart : By some unearthly sympathy They know that this their trial Accomplishes His Agony, Desertion, and Denial. The Cloud of mystery draws on And gathers over all, While fearfully they enter in Beneath its folemn pall; But to the trustful gaze, some gleam Seems all its depth to brighten, For verily the LORD their GOD Shall all their darkness lighten.

The open Millon.

' This is My Well-Beloved Son !' The FATHER's Voice is paft ; They waken from their awful trance, And know the Truth at last : The darkness is not terrible, The filence is not lonely, When they see no man any more-Themselves and JESUS only. O Vision of reality, Faith's crowning diadem ! Themselves with JESUS found alone And He alone with them, And never are His Cares fo fweet, Never His Tones so tender, As when He comforteth His Own After their Souls' jurrender. He turns their forrow into Joy, Gives Peace instead of dread, He stays their zeal's too eager haste, Urges their doubt's dull tread ; Till fongs of love and praise burst forth From lips these themes embolden, While that dear Presence is the Light Of eyes no longer holden. Many are those once restless Souls To whom it has sufficed To scale the Mount, endure the Cloud, And be alone with CHRIST: Not heeding all earth's happines, Nor all the world's derifion ;

The Mulic of Heaven.

Only not difobedient found Unto the Heavenly Vifion.

For us, the veil but hides our pain Till perfect Peace be won,

Till man's enfeebled hand be stayed, And GoD's good Will be done :

Our Souls in patience we posses,

GoD's Word cannot be broken,

" This is My Son '—He faith, and we Believe what He hath fpoken.

We dare not deem that Heaven is dark, Though Heaven's light feem dim; Our Mafter looks upon us ftill Although we fee not Him; He leads us onward in His Love, He bears us in His Pity To where the open Vijion fhines In the Eternal City.

The Mulic of Beaben.

HE Mujic of Heaven is attuned to a meafure

Our Spirit's deep thirst ever longs for in vain;

For the music of earth, though it thrills us with pleasure,

Gives pleasure not wholly unmingled with pain.

And though for a moment the ear may be captured By notes that from Paradife feem to have birth, By founds to which Angels might liften enraptured, The dream is difpelled by the voices of earth.

Some weariness, pain, or some passing vexations The half-entranced soul from its bliss will recall;

Or the heart is unftrung, and the fweet modulations On earth-enchained fenfes untunefully fall.

False jarrings of earth will too often begin; And the higher and clearer the anthem is swelling, The more are we confcious of difcord within.

But it will not be thus when to Heavenly regions, Releafed from its thraldom, our Spirit takes wing,

And uniting in concert with glorified legions, Shall learn that ' new Song' which none other can fing.

- For ear hath not heard, nor the senses of mortals E'er caught the ineffable Music below
- Of those Harmonies full which through Heaven's bright portals,

With tide ever rising, unceasingly flow.

There voices Seraphic in concord are vying, And golden the ftrings of each well-tuned Lyre; Heart vibrates to heart, as for ever replying, Unwearied they chaunt in antiphonal Choir.

When refoundeth GOD's Praise in the courts of His Dwelling,

- And shall we then hang the sad harp on the willows, As exiles shut out from the Land of our rest,
- Till we crofs the dark ocean of Death, and its billows

Have wafted us fafe to the shores of the Blest?

No! whenever GoD's Praise in His Temple ascendeth,

The theme and the melody kindle our hearts, And conftrain us, as richly the fymphony blendeth,

To 'wake up our glory' and join in our parts.

And at length, when with Children of Zion admitted

Hofannas to fing by the Throne of the LORD,

Shall all hearts be new strung, and each voice better fitted

With Angels' and Archangels' notes to accord.

holy Childhood.

N the dim morn I wake, My Boy fleeps at my fide, I fleeplefs watch the gleam Of Memory's rufhing tide.

Holy Childhood.

Calling me ever back, Till on the filent fhore I fee a fhadowy form, Myfelf—a Child once more !

With an unearthly hope I clajp the long-loft hand, And jo from Time we wander, From Memory's jhifting jand,

Till through the gates of Morning We mark a rofy Dawn, And the Child kneels in wonder On the Celeftial lawn !

The lips fmile adoration, I finful may not hear; When lo! my Boy's young dreams Fall on my longing ear;

In fleep he prays, 'Our FATHER !' In fleep with his LORD's Prayer, He fills my heart and confcience, He fills the haunted air.

O LORD, make me a Child, Teach me fair Childhood's prayer, Print on my Soul Thy Childhood, Wash away Manhood's care!

Make me a little Child, O LORD, O fill my dreams with Thee,

Then, then, dark Memory's River ! Carry them out to fea,

Out to the far-off furges That gird the fands of life, Bear broken plan, and withered hope, ' Man's paffion, and man's ftrife;

Bear them far, bitter River ! I take the CHILD's pierced Hand; And over moor, through forest, I seek the Blessed Land!

The CHILD in Priestly radiance, Before the golden Door, Absolves; I enter, worship, GoD's Child for evermore!

The End of Man.

LOVED the beauty of the earth, The brightness of the skies, Life wooed me with its careless mirth, My birthright and my prize.

I loved in fmooth felf-chofen ways To guide my wayward feet, I courted men's unmeaning praife, Their fmile was all too fweet.

Stanzag.

The light of Heaven shone pale and dim Upon my earth-bound sight, The echo of the Seraph's hymn For me had no delight.

My life and treafure they were here,

My throbbing pulse beat high, My step was free, my glance was clear

With youth's gay buoyancy.

But youth was short, and life was frail, And human praise untrue, Created beauty but a veil To hide Thee from my view.

"Twas not for thefe Thou madeft me, But for Thyfelf, O LORD; Thou bad'ft me reft alone in Thee, My Prize and my Reward.

All earthly joy shall fail at last, All earthly love grow cold, Save loves by that one Love made fast To JESUS and His Fold.

This earth is but a trial place To train the Souls of men, Till Nature is transformed to Grace, We know not how nor when.

All earthly aims shall have an end, All earthly hopes expire,

Stanzas.

All faiths that are not Faith, but tend To the eternal fire.

One Aim there is of endless worth, One sole sufficient Love,

To do Thy Will, my GOD, on earth, And reign with Thee above.

Who have in life that one true Aim, That one true Hope in death,

Shall pass unscathed the trial-flame And earn the amarant wreath.

From joys that failed my Soul to fill, From hopes that all beguiled, To changeless Rest in Thy dear Will, O JESUS! call Thy Child.

In tempore Vesperi erit Lux.

F old, O LORD, Thy Word was plight, 'At evening time there shall be Light;' Now darkly lowers the coming night— 'JESU, mercy.'

Chill wintry gufts are fweeping by, All faintly gleams the fhrouded fky, The ftars are fading from on high---' Exaudi me.'

We fee each Woe Thy Seers reveal, Each Vial of Thy Wrath we feel, Almost we hear the Trumpet peal— ' Cum Angelis.'

Stanzag.

The Glories of Thine ancient Home Serve but to show the gathering gloom, The Sabbath of the world is come.

Where is the faith our martyr Sires Owned in the canonizing fires, The burning love, the high defires?

Cold is the Saints' unfhrinking Faith, The hope that cheered the Martyr's death— Love freezes at the worldling's breath.

Yet most Thy promised Light display, Lest wandering from the ancient way, Self-trusting still, we fondly stray.

Scarce with faint earth-dimmed glimmerings shine The tapers set to guard the shrine, To Faith's keen eye no certain sign.

Thou only Good, Thou only True, When faith is weak and friends are few, Do Thou that promised Light renew.

Befide the Altars of our land, 'Mid prayers untrue and rites profaned, We wait, O LORD, Thy guiding Hand.

O be one gleam in mercy fent, Ere by the Judgment-cry is rent A flame-encompaffed firmament----' Cum Angelis.'

Stanzag.

Ere yet that last, all-fearching light Breaks but to eternize the night, The dawning of the infinite—

'Exaudi me.'

So, when the dead, earth's countless race, Are ranged before Thine awful Face, May we among the Sheep have place— 'JESU, mercy.'

Requiem Æternam.

To die and be at reft With them that part no more, Rocked gently on the breaft Of loved ones gone before. To die and be at reft Beyond the power of fin, Love an abiding guest The ranfomed Soul within. To die and be at rest-For this our natures crave, The last home of the Blest, The World beyond the grave. To die and be at reft— 'Tis Childhood's earlieft dream, In terror unexprest Shrinking from life's dark stream. To die and be at reft— 'Tis Manhood's bitter cry, With thankless toil opprest Of wasted energy. To die and be at rest-Old age with feeble moan Echoes the long request, To lay its burden down. Sequence on the Holy Spirit.

After Adam of S. Victor.

EALTH of the helples, Crown of Consolation,

Giver of Life, sweet Hope of man's Salvation,

Come with Thy Grace, O come, Sun of the Soul, and let Thy Sunlight shine, And warm with Love's foft glow the hearts of Thine : And o'er the freshening field of Christendom Drop fatness, Dew Divine; Till day by day, and hour by hour, Fed with the fulness of Thy Power, Every woodland, every bower, Burft into leaf and fruit and flower, Filled with true Life's best food, From Thee, the Fountain of all good. One in Substance, GODHEAD One; River, That from Both dost run, Spring, from Either fundered never, Bound to Both, and bonded ever In a mighty unifon,

With a bond that nought can sever; League of power, that none may part, Everlasting—as Thou art. Dew of Each, of Both in One, Rich Vapour rifing from the eternal River; May the FATHER and the SON That Gift vouchfafe Whereof Thou art the Giver, Giver and Gift, Thyfelf on us beftow, Thyfelf—the Well Whofe waters ever flow. Thou heareft the Dew fall on earth, where it lies, From the River thou heareft the Vapour arife,

- And the scent of sweet Odour thou knowest, whereby
- Thy faith can the Prefence of GODHEAD defcry : Dew, that from the GODHEAD burfts,
- Whereof who deepeft drinks the more he thirfts; Thirfting ever with a glow, Quenchlefs, as the Spirit's flow, Flowing alway, alway bleffing; Thirft that knoweth no repreffing.

By Him the Wave is confectate, Where for new Birth the holy people wait, The water on whofe face was borne GOD'S SPIRIT at Creation's morn. Fount, of all Holinefs the fpring

Whence flows true Love abroad, Clear Fount that cleanfeth from all sin,

Fount from the Font of GOD; Great Fount, all fountains hallowing, Without all Bleffing and all GOD within.

The flame there still to burn and never thence depart.

Shadow of the maidens feven, Seven that compaffed the One; Type of the very Truth of Heaven That through all things doft run; All-quickener, That with life the world doft warm, O SPIRIT Septiform : In feveral fhape out-lined, Yet varying not in kind, Forefend it ever, that we fay Of Thee, the Almighty Mind, That Thou doft form obey, To form and fhape confined.

Fire of Life, Life-giving Spring, Cleanfe our hearts, and thither bring Thy Gifts of Grace, to enrich them and to blefs; That, kindled by the flame of Charity, Meet offering we become to Thee Of Love and Holinefs. Breath of the FATHER and the SON, Thou beft Leech of the finful, Solace of the fad, Strength of the weak, the worn wayfarer's Reft, Health of the fick, make Thou the mourner glad. Holy Love, like virgin's, chafte, Fire of Soul, yet maiden-pure, Thofe whom evil paffions wafte May Thine hallowed Unction cure.

Voice of voices manifold, Subtile Voice, by found untold, In the ear, and in the breaft, Voice to each That whifpereft : Voice enbreathed into the Bleft, Stilly Voice and fecret—Voice Making Men of Peace rejoice, Voice of fweetnefs, Voice of blifs, Voice of voices, ours be This Sounding through our inmost heart :

Light, That bidft all lies depart, Light, That falfehood's router art, Light, That draweft unto Thee Faith and Truth and Verity; Light, vouchfafe to us, to all, Life and health and wealth, that we, Lit with light perennial, Live in funfhine, that fhall be Brightening everlaftingly.

Df the Bifts of Bod.

From the Latin.

HOUGH for me the tongues of Angels With the tongues of men were blent, Duly should I ne'er be able, Giver of things excellent,

To return Thee praise, O Greatest FATHER of Enlightenment.

For with Might Thou didft create me For Thyfelf of nothingnefs, And to bear Thy Likenefs fhape me By Thy Wifdom fathomlefs, And with Angels equal make me In my reafon's noblenefs.

Thus with faculties controlling, Faculties fubordinate, Like the pattern of Thy Glory, I furpaffed the brutal ftate, Standing pure, enlightened, holy, Righteous and inviolate.

Yet had all been left imperfect, Having wrought me wondroufly, If as thankless, proud transgressor, Thou wouldst doom me rigidly; If deluded, lost and wretched, Thou wouldst not deliver me.

No! where I was lately fallen Underneath my hellish Foe, Thou'st to hope for pardon brought me In Thy Grace, and laid him low : To Thy Pasture hast Thou called me: Time for Grace Thou dost bestow. Stumbling haft Thou me supported With enduring Patience; Straying hast Thou me withholden With fevere Beneficence; Me delinquent hast absolved, And hast blotted mine offence. Thou on every side dost wash me And dost heal me wounded fore, And when washed and healed, upon me Thou dost Oil of Gladness pour; Gleams of wondrous Hope surround me, When the painful ftound is o'er. Now withdrawing me from danger, Unto good Thou stablishest; Now supporting mine endeavours, Gifts on me Thou lavishest; Where Thou giveft, where Thou takeft Still my weal Thou compassed. Thou providest for my table Daily food abundantly ; Thou dost bounteously for raiment

Things beseeming me supply;

Df the Bifts of Bod.

Care of me Thou takest ever Like the apple of Thine Eye.

Herein likewise must I glory, That to me Thou shoulds confide To bear tribulation for Thee From without and from inside, Since beloved Sons Thou always Hast in such encounters tried.

By the fervice of Thy Creatures I am largely profited, For their uses, like their figures, Witness Thee their Fountain-head : Still by Nature, still by Scripture, Are we to Thy Traces led.

Yet beyond all thefe Thy Creatures Thou Thyfelf exaltedft me By affuming Man's condition In Thy wondrous Clemency, And in Thy Paternal Wifdom To Thyfelf redeeming me.

O what boundless depths of Pity Thy Paternal Grace displays! O the Bounty that we witness In the Filial GODHEAD's Ways! Therefore shall there be no period Of Thy Worship, Splendour, Praise!

LESSED City, holy Salem, Home of peace, by Seers defcried, Rifing in the courts of Heaven, Built of living ftones and tried,

By Angelic hands adornèd, As her fellows deck a Bride.

Coming newly formed from Heaven, Ready for the nuptial bower, Wedded to the LAMB for ever, As a bride in blifsful hour; All her ftreets have golden pavement,

Golden ramparts round her tower.

Bright her gates of pearl are gleaming, Open are her chambers fair ; And by virtue of His Merits

Every Soul shall enter there

Who, in this world, pain or forrow For the Name of CHRIST shall bear.

Hewn with blows, and worn by preffure, Polished stones from every land,

All are in their places fitted By the Builder's matchless hand, Firmly set, to rest unshaken, While the Heavenly mansions stand.

410 The Church, Militant

Corner-stone in her foundation, CHRIST the Rock is furely laid; Who, in both the walls compacted, Hath of twain one Temple made; Holy Sion Him accepted, All her hope on Him is staved.

Sacred is that glorious City, Dear to GOD the mighty King, Mingling with her tuneful praifes Joyous burfts of triumph ring; THREE and ONE their GOD proclaiming, All in welcome Anthems fing.

The Church, Militant and Triumphant.

The Church Militant.

OW strong are her foundations! the opening

How glorious of her portals! Yet within, What Babel-founds of strife! Without, what din

Of malice and of wrath! Those choirs which sing Eternal Alleluias to their King,

How muft they wondering view the power of Jin, Which, round her Jacred boundary who muft win And fold GoD's Flock, Juch direful Jpell could fling, Marring her holy work—our Sion's height O'erſhadowing with gloom, where once ſhone clear Heaven's pureſt radiance! O for a light, Glimmering albeit afar! 'Diſpel thy fear,' A Voice exclaims, 'My Church's mourning night Is well nigh (pent; her Dayſpring draweth near!'

The Church Triumphant.

HO is it clad in garments radiant white, Love on her breaftplate graven, on her brow Salvation diademed ? Above, below, Ten thoufand thoufand Spirits wing their flight, A fhining company. With glory bright The army of Martyrs circle, which through woe And peril, pain and death, dared face the foe, Bearing their palms, with victor-chaplets dight. In mild but awful majefty, to meet The Bride comes forth the Bridegroom, in the fkies Enthroning on her everlafting feat. From myriad Voices fhouts of triumph rife : ' Her warfare is accomplifhed ; at her feet Fallen is the captive's chain—the conqueror proftrate lies !'

Hoices from the American Church.

Heart's Song.

N the filent midnight watches, Lift thy bofom door, How it knocketh, knocketh, knocketh, Knocketh evermore! Say not 'tis thy pulfe's beating, Or thy heart of fin; 'Tis thy SAVIOUR ftands entreating, 'Rife! and let Me in.'

Death comes down with reckless footstep, To the hall and hut ; Think you Death will tarry, knocking Where the door is shut?

JESUS waiteth, waiteth, waiteth, But the door is fast;

Grieved, at length away He turneth; Death breaks in at laft.

Then 'tis thine to ftand entreating CHRIST to let thee in ;

At the gate of Heaven beating, Wailing for thy fin.

Nay ! alas, thou foolifh Virgin ! Haft thou then forgot ?

Moices from the American Church. 413

Song of Faith.

HE lilied fields behold ! What King in his array Of purple pall and cloth of gold Shines gorgeously as they?

Their pomp, however gay, Is brief, alas! as bright; It lives but for a fummer's day, And withers in a night.

If GOD fo clothe the foil And glorify the duft, Why flould the flave of daily toil

His Providence distrust?

Will He, Whofe Love has nurfed The fparrow's brood, do lefs For thofe who feek His Kingdom firft, And with it Righteoufnefs?

The birds fly forth at will ; They neither plough nor fow ; Yet theirs the fheaves that crown the hill, Or glad the vale below.

While through the realms of air He guides their trackless way, Will man in faithless despair? Is he worth less than they?

414 Uoices from the American Church.

As thy day, fo fball thy strength be.

HEN adverse winds and waves arise And in my heart defeat And in my heart despondence sighs, When life her throng of cares reveals And weakness o'er my spirit steals, Grateful I hear the kind Decree That ' As my day, my strength shall be.'

When with fad footstep memory roves O'er smitten joys and buried loves, When like a mourner low I bend, Without a comforter or friend, Then to Thy Promise, LORD, I flee, Still ' As thy day, thy ftrength shall be.'

One trial more must yet be past, One pang, the keenest and the last; And when, convulsed with mortal pain, Struggling I feek for eafe in vain, Then wilt Thou give my Soul to fee That ' As her day, her strength shall be.'

The fashion of this world passet away.

N careless Childhood's sunny hours When all we love is nigh, No thorn amid life's opening flowers, No cloud in all its fky,

Uoices from the American Church. 415

We fear no ill, nor dream of care, But deem each following day Shall light us on to fairer scenes, And beam with brighter ray.

And Childhood's vernal feafon paft, And fhunned Youth's thoufand fnares, When Manhood's autumn comes at laft With forrows, fears and cares, Still, autumn-like its fkies are bright, And ftill the world feems young, And ftill we love its mellow light, Its boughs with fruitage hung.

- But Autumn's golden skies must fade, And Autumn's fruits decay,
- And foon, mid fnows and ftorms, must come Old-age's wintry day;
- A wintry day at best-as short, As gloomy and as cold,
- Till the worn body yields at last, And life lets go its hold.
- And when its earthly hold is gone, The world's brief fashion past,
- Are there no hopes that shall survive, No pleasures that shall last?
- Yes! Christian, it is thine to know Life's but a weary way,
- A short, though painful pilgrimage To realms of endless Day;

416 Moices from the American Church.

Where Faith her crown of life fhall wear, And Hope be loft in joy,
And meek-eyed Love be paid with blifs That time can ne'er deftroy :
For thither has the LAMB gone up Who fuffered, and was flain,
That rifen with Him, His Followers might With Him for ever reign ! 1

The Glory referved.

Such radiant gems are strewn, O what magnificence must glow,

My GoD, about Thy Throne ! So brilliant here those drops of light, Where the full Ocean rolls, how bright !

If night's blue curtain of the sky,

With thousand stars inwrought, Hung like a royal canopy

With glittering diamonds fraught, Be, LORD, Thy Temple's outer veil, What fplendour at the Shrine must dwell!

The dazzling sun, at noontide hour,

Forth from his golden vafe, Flinging o'er earth the golden shower

Till vale and mountain blaze,

But shows, O LORD! one beam of Thine, What, then, the Day where Thou dost shine!

The Prodígal's Return.

Ah! how fhall thefe dim eyes endure That noon of living rays?
Or how my Spirit, fo impure, Upon Thy Glory gaze?
Anoint, O LORD, anoint my fight, And robe me for that World of light.

The Prodigal's Return.

LMIGHTY FATHER, LORD of all, Unworthy as Thy Sons to call, As fervants at Thy Feet we fall.

By all the Love which Thou haft flown For wanderers from Fold and Throne, Have mercy while our fin we own.

As hired fervants, can it be That we must ferve, who once were free? O bring us to ourfelves and Thee.

While still a great way off, we yearn Those tender words of Love to learn Which greet the Prodigal's return.

The Ring shall on our hand be placed, With Love's best Robe shall we be graced, We who our own had so debased.

Ah! hateful now the wretched paft By turns with fwine and harlots caft; We rioted—then ftarved at laft.

Þome.

Thy Welcome, LORD, will purge away The sting of each rebellious day, And Love will pardon All, for Aye,

Rejoicing Thou wilt give for pain, For fighs, a part in Heaven's glad strain, When all the Lost are found again.

Pome.

ISE! Mother, rife! thy Infant is away; See, on the verge of yon Jharp cliff he ftands,

Aiding his tottering steps with clinging hands,

Wandering in fearless play.

Stay! Mother, ftay! move not—nay! not one call;

Stay, or thy voice will make the truant start;

Thrust down that cry within thy bursting heart, Or see thy Infant fall.

Oh! inftinct wonderful of Mother's love, See! filent, ftill, she gently bares her breast! Swiftly her Infant rushes to his nest, And there she class her dove.

So filently our own dear Mother now, Left one of her stray Sheep should suffer loss, Shows us her LORD upon His bitter Cross-Shows us the thorn-crowned Brow. Shows us, frail wanderers in the ways of fin, Our Shepherd bleeding from that pierced Side-

Pierced, that by that entrance opened wide Sinners might enter in.

Oh! may He grant us to that Home to flee, To feel the fulness of that Love untold;

To gaze, and fly unto that One true Fold,

And there for ever be.

Stanzag.

Via, Veritas, Vita.

AST thou been lured by Pleafures gay From the strait Heavenward path to stray?

Seek CHRIST: in Him thou find'ft the Way.

Fain would'st thou, in the pride of youth, The heights of Knowledge climb forsooth? At CHRIST'S Feet sit thou: He is Truth.

Dost tremble at the Soul's stern strife 'Mid World with deadly dangers rife? Let CHRIST dwell in thee : He is Life.

The Soul of Man and the Church of Christ.

WAS night : o'erftrown with clouds, as huge ice-field

Above me spread the vasty firmament;

Athwart that mass, which lay as though congealed,

Stretched, zigzag-wise, full many a ragged rent,

Oping grim gap and unretrieved descent : O'er glacier and crevasse their onward way Moon and attendant Stars, majestic, went;

She shone with light lent by the Lord of day, Within her circling sheen gleamed faint each lesser ray.

Thus through this drear dark world, o'er many a pit,

Dread entrance to abyfs of Sin's fad gloom, The Soul may by the Church of CHRIST be lit Onward to regions of eternal bloom;

Thus, thus will she the dangerous path illume, To them within her pale, throughout the night; Thus will her steady lamp lead on, to whom, Though hid awhile from earth's expectant sight, The SUN of Righteousness vouch safes His glorious Light.

Pro Chritto Mortuus.

420

SAW amid the lurid sky The coward Stars difordered fly; I faw with apprehension dread The troubled Sun and Moon grow red:

Pro Christo Mortuus. 421

E'en in the twinkling of an eye I faw Creation's wonders die, As if for them there was no room; It was, it was the Day of Doom!

I heard the pealing Trump of GOD, I faw the ftartled mountains nod, Earth dropped her brow of ancient pride And oped her huge foundations wide, While Ocean at that warning cry Unbared her inmost channels dry, Afunder burft was every tomb Upon this awful Day of Doom.

I faw before a Throne of Light Than funs ten thoufand far more bright, The quick and dead together fland, The children of each age and land; A varied, ftrange, unnumbered crowd In mingling woe and terror bowed : Old Time had bared Creation's womb To meet upon this Day of Doom.

I faw upon that Throne Divine One like the SON of MAN recline, With Eyes fo bright that from their blaze The Universe fled in amaze : Guilt flood appalled in awe profound As flashed those beamy terrors round, That threatened all things to consume Upon this searching Day of Doom.

Man.

One, one alone upon that day I faw wake up without difmay, Burft the long fetters of the earth, As if to claim a fecond birth ; With tranquil brow and radiant eye Draw the auguft Tribunal nigh, Like a young Star amid the gloom Of this o'erwhelming Day of Doom.

'Twas one who on his vestment bore A great red Cross impressed before, And glistening bright those words outspread,
' Pro CHRISTO mortuus,' I read. Most wondrous sight! a rainbow form Amid the universal storm,
A Phœnix true of endless bloom, The Conqueror of the Day of Doom.

∰an.

A Hymn of Alanus.

IKE a picture all Creation Standeth for our contemplation, 'Tis our mirror and our book : Life and death are there prefented,

All our pilgrimage imprinted,

Calling men to pause and look.

For the rose doth paint our flory, And the rose doth glass our glory, Readeth all our life's brief hour :

Man.

In the early morn she bloometh; Agèd, when the evening gloometh, Falls off the deflowered flower.

Breathing she her life exhaleth; Soon her blushing beauty paleth;

Dying came the flower to earth; Old and new, alike death-laden, Agèd, yet a youthful maiden,

Fading in her dawn of birth.

So unto the youthful comer Minifters his mortal fummer;

Brightly fmiles the fleeting flower : But that morning hath its even, Soon athwart the darkling heaven Cometh on life's twilight hour.

Pain is all man's life and being,

Toil without a hope of fleeing,

Death descending covers all : Sunshine now is storm hereafter ; Death tracks life, and sorrow laughter ;

Darkness on our day doth fall.

Therefore, when this claufe thou readest, See that thou the lesson heedest;

Man, thy life is figured clear; In what state thou camest hither, What to-day thou art, and whither

Tend thy steps, examine here.

Chrift Triumphant.

Weep the coft of past transgreffion, Wail thy sin, tame pride and passion, Cast thy haughtines away; Reinsman of the mind and master, Guard thy trust, lest foul disaster Find thee unawares astray.

Chrift Triumphant.

HO cometh here from Edom's rocks, From Bozrah's haughty tower, That journeyeth glorious in array, Maieftic in His Power?

With Garments red from fields of blood A Conqueror He doth feem !

" I come, Who speak in Righteousness, The Mighty to redeem !"

And why is Thine Apparel red, Like his who treads the vine ? And why, like his who treads the vat, Do all Thy Garments fhine ? "The wineprefs I have trodden out, Have trodden it alone ; And in that bloody vintage-hour With Me there flood not one.

- " In Anger did I trample them, In Fury did I tread;
- Their blood is sprinkled on My Robe, My Raiment all is red;

424

The awful day is in Mine Heart Of vengeance on My foes, The year is come when I redeem My People from their foes.

" And I beheld—but none could fave His brethren by his hand;

I wondering faw no Child of man In that dread day could ftand;

Therefore Mine own right Arm alone My great Salvation brought;

And by My Strength of zeal upheld The conquest I have wrought !"

Yes! Thou hast conquered mightier foes Than Edom's hostile power,

- Hast Victor come from stronger holds Than Bozrah's haughty tower!
- For Thou hast burst the gates of Death, And laid beneath Thee low,

By Thy right Hand and holy Arm, Thine Ifrael's hellifh foe !

Thou didft behold no Child of man His brother's Soul could fave, Or make agreement unto GOD To free him from the grave ;

A costlier price their Souls demand Than man hath power to pay;

And therefore Thou, O CHRIST, wouldst die That we might live for aye! And therefore, when the appointed year Of Thy redeemed came, Thou didft affume the Flesh of man, Didst take a mortal Frame : Thou didft the bloody wineprefs tread Of fuffering from Thy foes, To fave Thy People from their fins, From Hell's eternal woes. And therefore, when o'er Hell and Death The conquest Thou hadst won, Thou didft ascend to GOD's Right Hand, And take Thy glorious Throne ; There still dost Thou retain, O LORD, The Mediator's Seat, Until the LORD shall make Thy foes The footftool for Thy Feet. Gird then, O Thou most mighty One, Thy Sword upon Thy Thigh! Ride forth! Avenge Thee on Thy foes Who still Thy Name defy! But when that winepress of GOD's Wrath Thy conquering feet shall tread, Help us, Thy Children, LORD, for whom

Thy precious Blood was shed!

Thou art our Father! though not us Hath Abraham begot;

Though Isac, and though Israel Our names acknowledge not!

Martyrs' Song.

Thou art our Father still! O CHRIST, And our Redeeming LORD, The Righteousness of GOD most High, The One Eternal WORD!

Martyrs' Song.

E meet in joy, though we part in forrow; We part to-night, but we meet tomorrow.

Be it flood or blood the path that's trod, All the fame it leads home to GOD :

Be it furnace-fire voluminous, One like GOD's SON will walk with us.

What are thefe that glow from afar, Thefe that lean over the golden bar,

Strong as the lion, pure as the dove, With open arms and hearts of love?

They the bleffed ones gone before, They the bleffed for evermore :

Out of great tribulation they went Home to their home of Heaven-content;

Through flood, or blood, or furnace fire, To the Rest that fulfils desire.

Martyrs' Song.

What are these that fly as a cloud, With flashing heads and faces bowed,

In their mouths a victorious pfalm, In their hands a robe and a palm?

Welcoming Angels thefe that shine, Your own Angel, and yours, and mine;

Who have hedged us both day and night On the left hand and on the right,

Who have watched us both night and day, Becaufe the Devil keeps watch to flay.

Light above light, and Blifs beyond blifs, Whom words cannot utter, lo! Who is This?

As a King with many crowns He stands, And our names are graven upon His Hands;

As a Prieft, with GOD-uplifted Eyes, He offers for us His Sacrifice ;

As the LAMB of GOD for finners flain, That we too may live He lives again;

As our own Champion, behold Him stand Strong to fave us at GOD's Right Hand.

GOD the FATHER give us Grace To walk in the Light of JESUS' Face.

GOD the SON give us a part In the hiding-place of JESUS' Heart.

Martyrs' Song.

GOD the SPIRIT fo hold us up That we may drink of Jesus' Cup.

Death is short and Life is long; Satan is strong, but CHRIST more strong.

At His Word, Who hath led us hither, The Red Sea must part hither and thither;

At His Word, Who goes before us too, Jordan must cleave to let us pass through.

Yet one pang fearching and fore, And then Heaven for evermore;

Yet one moment awful and dark, Then safety within the Veil and the Ark ;

Yet one effort by CHRIST His Grace, And then CHRIST for ever Face to face.

GOD the FATHER we will adore, In JESUS' Name, now and evermore :

GOD the SON we will love and thank In this flood and on the further bank :

GOD the HOLY GHOST we will praife, In JESUS' Name, unto endlefs days:

GOD Almighty, GOD THREE in ONE, GOD Almighty, GOD Alone.

The Starry Right.

From the Spanish of Luis de Leon.

HEN nightly through the ſky I view the ſtars their files unnumbered leading, Then ſee the dark earth lie

In deathlike trance, unheeding How Life and Time with those bright orbs are speeding:

Strong love and equal pain Wake in my heart a fire with anguish burning; The tear-drops fall like rain, Mine eyes to fountains turning, And my fad voice pours forth its tones of mourning:

O Manfion of high ftate, Bright Temple of bright Saints in beauty dwelling, The Soul, once born to mate With thefe, what force repelling Hath bound to earth, its light in darknefs quelling?

What mortal difaccord Hath exiled fo from Truth the mind unftable? Why, of its bleft reward Forgetful, loft, unable, Seeks it each fhadowy fraud and guileful fable?

The Starry Dight.

Man lies in slumber dead, Like one that of his danger hath no feeling, The while with filent tread Those restless orbs are wheeling, And as they fly his hours of life are stealing. O Mortals, wake and rife; Think of the loss that on your lives is preffing; The Soul, that never dies, Ordained for endless bleffing, How shall it live falfe shows for Truth careffing? Ah, raife your fainting eyes To that firm [phere which still new glory weareth, And fcorn the low difguife The flattering world prepareth, And all the world's poor thrall hopeth or feareth. O what is all earth's round, Brief scene of man's proud strife and vain endeavour, Weighed with that deep profound, That tideless Ocean-river. That onward bears Time's fleeting forms for ever ? Once meditate, and see That fixed accord in wondrous variance given, The mighty harmony Of courses all uneven, Wherein each star keeps time and place in heaven. Who can behold that store Of light unspent, and not with very sighing

The Starry Pight.

Burft earth's frail bonds, and foar, With Soul unbodied flying, From this fad place of exile and of dying?

There dwelleth fweet Content; There is the reign of Peace; there, throned in fplendour, As one pre-eminent, With dove-like eyes fo tender, Sits holy Love—honour and joy attend her.

There is revealed whate'er Of Beauty thought can reach; the fource internal Of purest Light, that ne'er To darkness yields; eternal Bloom the bright flowers in clime for ever vernal.

There would my Spirit be, Thofe quiet fields and pleafant meads exploring, Where Truth immortally, Her pricelefs wealth outpouring, Feeds through the blifsful vales the Souls of Saints adoring.

Lyra Eucharistica :

HYMNS AND VERSES ON THE HOLY COMMUNION.

EXTRACTS FROM REVIEWS.

"This is a Manual which we owe to the tafte and refearch of Mr. Orby Shipley. It confifts of Hymns, Poems, and Verfes, Profes and Sequences, all connected with the great Chriftian Myftery, and thefe are collected from all fources, ancient and modern. Both as a book of devotion, and in a merely literary point of view, this is a very important little work."—The Chriftian Remembrancer.

"The first edition of Lyra Eucbarifica was a fuccels as great as it was deferved. The fecond edition is in every refpect as admirable, while it contains no fewer than 130 additional hymns upon the Holy Communion. Some ninety of these additional hymns are either new or new translations, and they are one and all worthy of having been incorporated in this volume. But as we noticed the first edition at sufficient length we need hardly do anything now but congratulate the editor on his well-earned fuccels and commend his work without referve to our readers."—The Morning' Herald.

"This Volume is a real gain to English Literature... Befides collecting together [the Translations of feveral Authors] and others which are lefs well known, Mr. Shipley has been able, by the help of friends, to add both original Hymns and new Translations to a very confiderable extent. Here then we have a volume, which will fupply food to the devout mind, in connection with the great Act of Christian Worship, fuch as certainly did not exist before; and to many minds, we apprehend, there will be found to be more of edification in the Hymns, than in Treatifes of a directly doctrinal or didactic nature."—The Ecclefafic.

"The Collection before us is one of the moft valuable, perhaps, which is extant in our language. [The Eucharithic] is a department of Hymnology which hitherto has been only too much neglected in the English Church. . . This great defect, then, is here, in fome meafure, fupplied—moft ably fupplied as far as it goes though, of courfe, it could only, within the neceffary limits of fuch a Collection, be a gleaning from the vaft flores which are available to the Church.... A fecond edition has fince appeared in the fame familiar and attractive typography and binding, and enriched by the addition of 120 new and for the moft part hitherto unpublished poems, which now form the concluding or Miscellaneous Settion of the work. If any of our readers have not yet made themfelves acquainted with its contents, we can affure them that they have a great pleafure fill in flore."—The Church Revievo.

"The Volume before us is the laft addition to the number [of Books on Hymnology]. But it will be obferved, as its title indicates, that the Hymns contained in this Work are all devoted to one fubject. Some idea of the labour incurred by the Editor may be gathered from the fact, that the Book contains [304] Hymns devoted to the Holy Communion. These have been felected from every available Source, many of them being Translations from Medizeval Hymns, while others are original compositions. There are copious Indices, and an explanatory Preface which is not the least interesting part of the work. It would be absurd to fay a word of praise in favour of the Hymns themselves: we cannot gild refined gold."—The Church Times.

"The prefent beautiful Volume will probably be the most popular of the many Collections and Translations relating to the Holy Communion edited by Mr. Shipley. Those who possible bis Divoine Liturgy, will have learnt to appreciate fome of the special beauties of Eucharistic Hymns, as aids to devotion, from the choice specimens, chiefly ancient and mediaeval, collected in that Publication. The comparatively few there given have gradually expanded in the Editor's hands into the prefent Volume."—Joon Bull.

"Works like the Lyra Euchariffica are in two ways uleful. In this Volume are brought together a great number of beautiful Hymns, original and translated, which for private ule will doubtlefs be grateful to many. But it is also a valuable contribution towards the Hymnal of the future. Euchariftic Hymns are needed : here we have [304], fome of which are of a very high order. Mr. Shipley has gathered in his flores from every fide : but we conceive the most valuable part of the Volume to be the translations of Ancient Hymns. It must be a subject of congratulation to the demand for a second edition. The choice of hymns neither goes beyond nor falls short of the teaching of the Church of England." --Tbe Prefs.

"Lyra Eucharifica has a long and learned preface concerning nns and Hymnology, taking note of the chief Collections, ancient and modern, in various languages. . . . All [the Contributions] are worthy to be preferved, and the Volume is a proof that the higheft and moft paffionate human feeling does not neceffarily express itself in the worft poetry. . . This Lyra is another contribution to the yearly increasing number of good Sacred Poems. In outward show [it is a] model of ecclessifical elegance. The fober, imitation-antique flyle of 'get up' is one of the pleasanteft affectations of the day, to eyes wearied with the 'innumerable cheap flains and fplendid dyes,' in which the modern book-cover makers delight."—The Globe.

"There is nothing more remarkable than the wonderful advance which has been recently made in the Anglican Communion with regard to a true belief in the Real Prefence . . . Evidences of this are not wanting on all hands. One fuch is the publication of a very handfome Volume of Hymns and Verfes, called Lyra Eucbariffica, edited by Mr. Orby Shipley. The Book reflects great credit on the Compiler, who has been affifted by many known writers, and is exceedingly well arranged and printed Many of the Poems are original, and of fingular ability and intereft."—The Union Review.

"That this work has fo foon reached a fecond edition is no mean proof of its excellence, and the need that there was for its compilation. Mr. Shipley has confiderably enlarged it, taking effecial care that the additions harmonize with the reft, and thus juftifying us in again faying that for reverence in tone and beauty of expression the Volume is indeed worthy of the great mystery that forms its theme."—Gentleman's Magazine.

"We are glad to fee a fecond edition of this beautiful Volume, beautiful in its external features, but fill more fo in its contents. It is a pleafant fign of the times that fo large a Collection of pieces, many quite out of the rut of ordinary facramental poems, fhould find fo large a circle of readers. We are glad of this alfo for the fake of the Compiler, whofe indefatigable labours in the field of devotional literature deferve to be rewarded. This edition is much enlarged with original and felected pieces."—Clerical Yournal.

"We are glad to fee that this Collection of Hymns and Verfes has attained to the honour of a Second Edition. This fact muft be gratifying to Mr. Shipley, and a fignificant teftimony to the worth of his judgment . . . From the large quantity of matter which was no doubt placed at Mr. Shipley's difpoial, he has made an excellent felection, and produced as delightful a book for devotional purpofes as the most cultivated reader could defire."—Public Opinion.

Extracts from Reviews.

"Lyra Eucharifica and the Divine Liturgy, both of them compilations by the Rev. Orby Shipley, are got up with great typographical luxe, and are edited with Mr. Shipley's usual care."—The Ecclefologifl.

"The peculiar ftamp and beauty of the binding of this Hymnal [Lyra Eucharjfica], which has been evidently defigned with moft exquisite tafte, in accordance with the ftricteft rules of mediæval art, is the first circumfance which ftrikes the Reader on taking it into his hands. Opening the Volume, everything is in character with the exterior-mediæval title-page-mediæval defigns, vignettes, and illuftrations-mediæval printing-and the Hymns themfelves abundantly mediæval and antique."—The London Review.

Lyra Messanica :

HYMNS AND VERSES ON THE LIFE OF CHRIST.

EXTRACTS FROM REVIEWS.

"The Lyra Meffianica of Mr. Shipley is tuned on the principle that, in the happily revived tafte for Hymns and facred Verfe, it is at once more loyal and more politic in Churchmen to feek to fatisfy fuch literary craving from the well-nigh exhauftlefs flores of ancient Hymns which are in exiftence. Lyra Eucharifica was Mr. Shipley's first experiment in this direction. It met with fome fuccefs; but if we are not much miffaken, the fecond attempt will be crowned with far more fatisfactory refults. He now addreffes himfelf much more directly to the general heart of Christendom The Poems follow one another, each marked only by its own heading, like fo many variations of a fingle air. It is delightful to let our thoughts follow the fream of fong as it floats on in gently varied melody; it is both delightful and furprifing to find on examination from how many different inftruments this tide of fong proceeds."—The Guardian.

Extracts from Reviews.

"The felection of Sacred Poetry is decidedly the beft of the kind, and forms a fuitable companion to the Lyra Eucharifica, which we have before noticed briefly. There is, however, this difference: one volume is of neceffity more entirely devotional, intended to fupply meditation to the devout mind on the great Act of Chriftian Worfhip; whereas the Lyra Meffianica, following the chief events in the Life of our LORD on earth, is more diffinctive and dogmatic in its tone. . . . In conclution, we heartily thank Mr. Shipley for this valuable addition to Catholic Poetry. It is a real boon to the Church: and it will, we are fure, be appreciated, as it deferves, by all who have her welfare at heart."—The Ecclefafic.

"It is impofible, in a brief notice, to give any adequate idea of the complete and fatisfactory manner in which almost every detail and afpect of Christian doctrine has been illustrated or expanded by the varied contributions here gathered together; but we may be confident in our judgment, affirming that this volume is in every respect a worthy companion to the Lyra Eucharifica, and will become permanently popular."—The Union Review.

"Mr. Orby Shipley's Lyra Mefianica is not only a beautifully printed book, but it contains fome poems—chiefly translations from mediæval fources—which are not to be found elsewhere. It claims companionship to another interesting Volume, Lyra Eucbarifica, collected by the pious diligence of the fame Editor."—The Christian Remembrancer.

"We have here another beautiful Volume of facred Poetry, put forth, under the fame able editorfhip, with the fame tafteful and attractive embellifhments of type and binding, by the fame eminent publifhers, as the Lyra Eucbariflica, which we commended to our readers' favourable notice a year ago. The plan of the prefent compilation, if lefs unique and fpecific in its character, admits of a lefs limited range of choice and a more diversified intereft in the variety of its fubjects." — John Bull.

"We cannot fay that, upon the whole, we like Lyra Meffianica fo well as we did Lyra Eucbarifica; and yet we are at a lois for a juftification for this opinion.... However, we can eafly underftand that there are many for whom Lyra Meffianica will have greater charms than its elder fifter. De guffibus—and it is a fmall difference after all. The fame principle, as Mr. Shipley tells us, underlies both collections.... If the criticifm which we ought to have put into words has not been infinuated by these fpecimens we are at fault. Our chief difficulty in quoting these famples has been not the finding them, but the rejecting others almost, if not quite, as good in every respect."—The Charch Times. "This handlomely got-up Volume confifts of English and Foreign Hymns. The latter are from Greek, Latin, and mediæval sources. Swedish, Spanish, Italian, and German authors have also been translated; and, of the purely English Hymns, ninety are original. The Collection is a very complete one, and will make an admirable companion to a similar compilation by the same industrious Editor, which he calls Lyra Eucharifica."—Ibe Reader.

"We are glad to obferve that the prefent work, from the care difplayed in its compilation, will be likely to fecure a large fhare of public attention... We have looked carefully through the book, and find in it much to admire. There is a relief in turning from fecular poetry to really good poetry fetting forth the goodness and majefty of the Creator. Mr. Shipley has exhibited much tafte in his editorial duties, and has prefented us with a Volume full of beautiful and fublime lays, that will be read with pleafure and proft."—Public Opinion.

"This is the companion Volume to the Lyra Eucbarifica, noticed by us fome time fince,—its companion not merely in outward appearance, but in that reverence of tone and beauty of expression which we then earnessly commended. If we knew of terms that would more adequately convey our fense of the value of the work before us, we would employ them. Like its precurfor, it is intended for devotional reading at home, and not for public use in the Church."—The Gentleman's Magazine.

"This Volume looks at once elegant and ecclefiaftical. It is a fort of fequel to the Lyra Eucharifica, and is collected by the fame Editor. The Hymns in the prefent collection chiefly concern the Life of CHRIST, and are ancient and modern, English and translated. Very few Hymns belong to a high class of poetry; in thefe, as in other religious matters, it is thought wrong to apply the fevere rules of criticism which are enforced in ordinary mundane literature and art. Mr. Shipley has inferted fome fine compositions, real facred fongs in this volume."—The Globe.

"We are indebted for this admirable collection of Hymns and Verfes on the Life of our Bleffed Lozo to the fuccefs which has been fo well achieved for a kindred collection, entitled Lyra Eucharifica. The former Volume, in fact, has not only led to this, but it muft have prepared for an appreciation of it. There is here a good development of much which was there fuggefted."—The Church Review.

"Mr. Shipley's two handfome volumes [Lyra Meffianica and Lyra Eucharifica] are most valuable contributions to the everyday literature of the Church. Neither trouble nor expense appear to have been spared in their compilation, and the result is well worthy of the pains bestowed."—The Church and State Review.

Extracts from Reviews.

"Mr. Shipley has done good fervice to the Church by editing this Volume. It is a compilation from various fources, Englift and Foreign, of Hymns and Verfes on the Life of our Bleffed SAVIOUR. The Book is divided into fections correfponding with the great Seafons of the Chriftian Year. Every one feems to have willingly allowed Mr. Shipley to ufe their original Verfes or tranflations of old Hymns, and the confequence is that we poffefs in this Book a perfect treafure-houfe of 'Hymns and Spiritual Songs' on the Life of Carstr. As regards typography and 'get up' the volume is fumptuous, though perhaps a triffe too mediæval for fome taftes. However, it is on the whole a very pleafing volume, and is enriched by an interefing Preface from Mr. Shipley's pen. It muft have been the refult of much practical labour and refearch on the part of the Compiler."—The Churchman.

"Lyra Meffianica feems to us the most beautiful collection of Poems which Mr. Orby Shipley has brought together."—The Monthly Packet.

"The reverend Author of the Lyra Meffianica is already favourably known as a hymn collector by his previoufly-publiched volume, Lyra Eucbariflica. He has gone to the fource of the fountain for his infiritation, and dug into the mine whence the true metal is to be extracted.... The Hymns are mostly of an objective character, and group themfelves around the various events in the Life and Hiftory of our Bleffed Lorn, accompanying Him through the fucceffive frages of His humiliation to the record of His glory as an Afcended Man, ' exalted with great triumph into His kingdom in Heaven.' The Author has furniched a rich fource of enjoyment to that now happily numerous clafs of readers who find pleafure in thefe elevating and cheering poetical illustrations."—The Prefs.

"This volume, like its predeceffor, Lyra Euchariftica, published under the fame editorfhip, confifts for the most part of a translation of ancient and mediæval Hymns of the Church.... It cannot be questioned that Mr. Shipley's volume contains much of antiquarian interest, poetic beauty, and religious expression."—The London Review.

"Mr. Shipley's Collection is full of fine pieces, but its very principle is to give us poetry that does not express our mode of faith now, so much as the 'definite and dogmatic truth,' and the mode of translation is often needlefly fiff. It is a fine collection of old Hymns, which by their rendering into English, generally increase, instead of diminishing the distance between ourfelves and them." The Spetiator.
